Its mother—Oh, John! John! what shall we do? Baby has swallowed its rattle? Its father—Do? Nothing; now he'll have it with him all the time, and we won't have to be forever hunting it up when he cries.—Tid Bits.

ON THE OUTSIDE—

That is the best place to keep the huge, old-fashioned pill. Just as soon as you get it inside, it begins to trouble you. What's the use of suffering with it, when you can get more help from Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets?

These tiny, sugar-coated granules do you permanent good. They act mildly and naturally, and there's no reaction afterward. Constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and permanently cured.

They're the smallest, the easiest to take, and the cheapest—for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get. Nothing else urged by the dealer, though they may be better for him to sell, can be "just as good" for you to buy.

Mistress—Bridget, I don't like your having these men in the kitchen. They are all strangers to me. Bridget (pleasantly)—Stip inside, then, mum, and O'll interjue you.—Judge.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism, or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

Mr. Oldstyle—I don't think that a college education amounts to much. Mr. Sparrow—Don't you? Well, you ought to foot my boy's bill and see.—New York World.

It Should Be in Every House
J. B. Wilson, 371 Clay St., Sharpsburg, Pa., says he will not be without Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, that it cured his wife who was threatened with pneumonia after an attack of "la grippe," when various other remedies and several physicians had done her no good. Robert Barber, of Cooksport, Pa., claims Dr. King's New Discovery has done him more good than anything he ever used for lung trouble. Nothing like it. Try it. DISLIKE THE TELEGRAPH.

The Chinese Regard It as an Instrument of Evil.
Two American bicyclers, Allen and Saechtlen, tell in the Century of their meeting with a Chinaman in the heart of the flowery kingdom who electrified them by addressing them in the purest English. "He was one of that party of mandarins' sons which had been sent over to our country some years ago, as an experiment by the Chinese government, to receive a thorough American training. We cannot here give the history of that experiment, as Mr. Woo related it—how they were subsequently accused of cutting off their queues and becoming denationalized, how, in consequence, they were recalled to their native land, and degraded rather than elevated, both by the people and the government, because they were foreign in their sentiments and habits; and how, at last, they gradually began to force recognition through the power of merit alone. He had now been sent out by the government to engineer the extension of the telegraph line from Su-chou to Urumtsi, for it was feared by the government that the employment of a foreigner in this capacity would only increase the power for evil which the natives already attributed to this foreign innovation. The similarity in the phrases telegraph pole and dry heaven had inspired the common belief that the line of poles then stretching across the country was responsible for the long-existing drought. In one night several miles of poles were sawed short off, by the secret order of a banded conspiracy. After several decapitations, the poles were now being re-cut, and labeled with the words: 'Put up by order of the emperor.'"

PARIS SEWER BOOTS.

How They are Utilized in Making Fine Shoes for Ladies.
Speaking of the fashions brings us to an odd discovery which has recently been made. There is a small shop on the other side of the Seine, in the Rue des Ecoles, which deals exclusively with the second-hand boots of the men who work in sewers. These boots, says a Paris letter, are furnished by the state, and come half way up to the thigh, and each man is allowed a new pair every six months. When new they cost nine dollars; when sold second-hand they realize the modest sum of fifty cents; but as at least six thousand pairs per annum are sent to the Rue des Ecoles it makes quite a booming industry.

The leather of these boots is, so to speak, tanned by the alkaline and greasy water in which the sewer-clearers so perpetually paddle, and they are eagerly sought for by the great Parisian bootmakers; for this leather, being at once tough and light, serves to sustain the curve of the Louis XV. heel. At first this was done by a piece of iron; but that was heavy and clumsy, so finally the ingenious dealer hit upon this substitute, to the delight of the sewer-clearers, who realized a modest sum, and the content of the fashionable bootmaker, whose shoes profited by the change; but the great lady whose satin-shod feet glide over the earth with such majesty of gait little knows that one of the component parts of her dainty footgear has risen from a sewer to reach her.

THE GRAVE OF LAFAYETTE.

An American Flag Has Always Waved Over It.
"While in Paris a short while ago," said a traveler recently, according to the Washington Post, "it occurred to me that it was a fitting act to make a pilgrimage to the tomb of that illustrious Frenchman dear to the hearts of all American patriots, Marquis de La Fayette. I asked a number of people before I could find anyone to enlighten me as to the spot, but after repeated inquiry ascertained its location. The grave is situated in old Paris, within the grounds of a convent that of the ancestors of La Fayette founded, and where repose the remains of many of the French nobility.
"The first thing that attracted my attention in connection with the hero's tomb was that above it floated a silken flag, bearing the Stars and Stripes. It seems that a good many years ago an American gentleman left in his will a sum of money to be used for the special purpose of keeping an American flag forever flying above the grave of La Fayette. It has done so without interruption from the day the will went into effect, and whenever through the wear of the elements one flag becomes unserviceable, a new one straightway takes its place. Through untold centuries the emblem of the liberty which in its early struggles for country had his beneficent aid will wave above his ashes."

Misunderstood.

A young man, who looked every inch the bridegroom, stood in the rotunda of the Great Northern the other day, says the Chicago Times, telling a friend of the manner of his proposal to his bride. She had known of his wild ways and fondly hoped to reform him through marriage. "After I had popped the question and she had accepted me," he said, "I at once began to talk about the wedding. 'We will go away somewhere by ourselves, my dear,' I said; 'there will be no flourish, no cards, no ceremony'—here she interrupted me, and with a dignified sweep of her arm, declared: 'Mr. —, I shall certainly insist upon a ceremony.'"

The Horse's Ears.

When the horse sleeps it is said that one ear is directed forward, why is not known. A writer in the English Mechanic thinks this is to guard against danger, being a survival of their originally wild habits. He says: Watch a horse asleep through the window of his stable and make a faint noise to the front. That ear will be all attention, and probably the other will fly round sharply to assist. Now let him go to sleep again, and make the same noise to the left. The forward ear still will keep his guard, with possibly a lightning flick round, only to resume its former position.

FULL DRESS.

A Siberian Traveler's Protection Against the Cold.
The author of "On Sledge and Horseback to the Siberian Lepers" was determined not to freeze to death. She had a whole outfit of woolen underwear, then a loose kind of waist lined with flannel, a very thickly-wadded eider-down ulster, with sleeves long enough to cover the hands entirely, and a fur collar reaching high enough to cover the head and face. Over all this she had a sheepskin reaching to the feet, and furnished with a collar which came over the fur one. Then over the sheepskin she wore a dacha, which is a fur coat of reindeer skin. But this was only the beginning.

On my feet were stockings made of long hair; over them a pair of gentleman's thickest hunting stockings; over them a pair of Russian boots made of felt, coming high up over the knee; and over them a pair of brown felt valenki. Then I was provided with a large fur bag or sack, into which I could step.

My head-covering was a fur-lined cap, and the ectoceras consisted of shawls, rugs and wraps.
The sledge—one of the elevated kind—had to be mounted. I stood beside it trying to solve the knotty problem of how to get in. There was no step to help me; and there was a crowd of men, women and children gazing at me.

Three muscular policemen attempted to lift me gently into the sledge; but their combined strength was futile under the load. So they had to set me on the ground again.
Then I attempted, in a kind of majestic, contemptuous way to mount without assistance; but alas! my lances would not bend. My pride had to succumb; I was helpless. Two policemen came and essayed another manoeuvre. They took me by the arms, and then, at their signal, I made one desperate, frantic effort, and I was in.

I was in, but I had to be packed and stowed away. The men pushed and pulled and dragged and coaxed, and at last, I and my clothes were ready for starting. As to bowing and thanking my assistants, that was impossible; I just sat, and fairly gasped, and longed to get away.

A LANDLUBBER SURPRISED.

Quickness of British Tars in Clearing a Battleground for Action.
At the words: "Clear for action!" there is a commotion which a landsman might mistake for a panic, as men rush from point to point. A bluejacket, says the London Daily News, never walks when an order is given, but does everything at the double. Everyone knows his station, and goes to it by the quickest and shortest way. With a rapidity that seems wonderful, companions ladders, with their ponderous gangways, are unshipped and stowed away; railings around the low decks, fore and aft, are lowered; the ventilating cowls and chimney stacks disappear, to be replaced by covers flush with the deck; hatches are battened down, water-tight doors closed, and tackle rigged for hoisting ammunition from the magazine. Between decks everywhere something of the same kind is being done as quickly and as quietly, and then the men stand for firing to commence, the great barbettes turntables revolve slowly, trained by unseen power, and the quick-firing guns in maindeck batteries are worked with surprising celerity by detachments of royal marine artillery.

At a prize shooting recently a detachment fired sixteen shots in three minutes from one of the repulse guns, scoring nine direct hits and planting all the other seven shots so close to the target that they would have riddled the hull of a very small ship. The seventeenth round was in this gun when the "cease fire" sounded, so that one gunner, who was loading, must have lifted seventeen hundred pounds in three minutes. This incident gives a vivid idea of the work that would have to be done in action by crews of these quick-firing guns, as well as of the smartness with which the "blue marines" set about their task. Fire discipline will be a potent factor in any future battle at sea, and there can be no better means of acquiring it than by such exercise as one has seen at general quarters during the maneuvers.

CURED BY LAUGHTER.

Cases Where Health Was Restored Through Fits of Mirthfulness.
The remedial effects of laughter are really wonderful. Cases have been known where a hearty laugh has banished disease and preserved life by a sudden effort of nature. We are told that the great Erasmus, the eminent theologian, laughed so heartily at a satirical remark that he broke a tumor and recovered his health. In a singular treatise on "Laughter" Joubert gives two similar instances. A patient being very low, the physician, who had ordered a dose of rhubarb, countermanded the medicine, which was left on the table. A monkey in the room jumped up, discovered the goblet, and, having tasted, made a terrible grimace. Again putting his tongue to it, he perceived some sweetness in the dissolved manna, while the rhubarb had sunk to the bottom. Thus emboldened, he swallowed the whole, but found it such a nauseous potion that, after many strange and fantastic grimaces, he ground his teeth in agony, and in a violent fury threw the goblet on the floor. The whole affair was so ludicrous that the sick man burst into repeated peals of laughter, and the recovery of cheerfulness led to health.

A Face.

Appropos of the fact that those who "came over in the Mayflower" mostly bore such surnames as Winthrop, Haythrop, Lothrop and Lathrop, the Cornhill Magazine tells of a New York parvenu who loudly proclaimed to a Plymouth Winthrop: "My people came over in the Mayflower." "Indeed!" was the crushing answer. "I didn't know the Mayflower took steerage passengers."
