The formation of the country is peculiar, a remarkable depression extending for discharging it into the Atlantic through | vance. the San Juan river.

The exploration of the route was made by Commodore Lull, and is said to show a practicable route, with lake Nicaragua as its summit level, 107 feet above the sea. This route requires a canal 16 miles long, beginning at the mouth of the Rio del Medio and terminating at Brito. The first seven and a half miles will require an excavation averaging fifty-four feet in depth, and will be the most expensive part of the whole work. Ten locks and one tide lock will be required between the lake and the Pacific. There will then be fifty-six miles of lake navigation. From the lake the Atlantic will be reached through the San Juan river, a sluggish stream 400 yards broad and from ten to twenty feet deep, which will be improved by four dame. A short section of canal, with one lock, will be required to get around each of the upper three dams. From the fourth to the Carribean sea a canal forty-two miles long will be cut, requiring seven locks.

One of the principal difficulties will be in maintaining a sufficient depth of

The estimated cost of the canal is $100,-000,000. Another thing that must be them in France?" taken into consideration is that the country is subject to severe earthquakes, and while these have not been of sufficient violence or magnitude to materially change the face of the country in the past one hundred years, yet undoubtedly they have been powerful enough to have caused immense damage to such structures as dams and canals had they been built at the time.

The Telegram last night printed a lengthy article concerning the express robbery here, stating that it got its facts from a prominent Dalles citizen. We doubt not but that the gentleman who gave the information so glibly was honest in his opinions, and did not stop to think he was acting as judge, jury and executioner. If the parties are guilty they should be punished; but they are not proved guilty yet, not by considerable. The case has not been tried yet, nor has the evidence of but one side been heard. We all of us have an opinion concerning the guilt or innocence of the defendants, and while it may seem strange to those who have already found all the defendants guilty, there are some people who are firmly convinced of the innocence of some of the parties. When the evidence is all in it will be time to pass judgment.

Some subjects grow decidedly wearisome before they are finally dropped from the newspapers. Kings and emperors finally die, and the big head lines are suddenly dropped. Wars come to an end. flood, pestilence and famine come and pass away, while other subjects take their place in the news columns. Of all mundane newspaper things two only are immortal. These never die, and they are the Oregon Pacific and the Astoria railroads. The very latest is that the Union Pacific will purchase the former, and that the latter will be pushed to an early completion.
