He—You women have really no right to the ballot, for the simple reason that in case of a war you would not be able to fight. She—Then why do you allow a man who is crippled to vote? He—Why—if that isn't just like a woman to ask some such fool question like that.—Indianapolis Journal.

MAKES ITSELF FELT
 —the great, gripping, old-fashioned pill. Not only when you take it, but unpleasant, from first to last, and it only does a little temporary good.

The things to take its place are Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One of these at a dose will regulate the whole system perfectly. They're tiny, sugar-coated granules, scarcely larger than mustard seeds. They act in Nature's own way. No reaction afterward. Their help lasts and they do permanent good. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick or Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're the cheapest, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction or money is returned. Nothing can be "just as good."

Salesman—Mr. Haggam ore, I've joined the church. Grocer—I am glad to hear it, James. I hope you'll stick. Salesman—Yes, sir, and—and you'll have to let some of the other clerks sell that pure Vermont maple syrup after this.—Chicago Tribune.

Strength and Health.
 If you are not feeling strong and healthy, try Electric Bitters. If "la grippe" has left you weak and weary, use Electric Bitters. This remedy acts directly on liver, stomach and kidneys, gently aiding those organs to perform their functions. If you are afflicted with sick headache, you will find speedy and permanent relief by taking Electric Bitters. One trial will convince you that this is the remedy you need. Large bottles only 50c. at Snipes & Kinerly's drug store.

Bingo—This dog is too big. I want one to go with my youngest boy. Dog Fancier—What has the dog's size got to do with it? Bingo—I want a dog with short pants.

The success that has attended the use of Dr. J. H. McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment in the relief of pain and in curing diseases which seemed beyond the reach of medicine, has been truly remarkable. Hundreds supposed to be crippled for life with arms and legs drawn up crooked or distorted, their muscles withered or contracted by disease have been cured through the use of this remedy. Price 25c, 50 and $1.00 per bottle. For sale by the Snipes-Kinerly Drug Co.

Peasant (who has just insured his farmhouse)—"What would I get if my house should burn down next week?" Agent—"In all probability, three or four years in prison."—Fliegende Blätter.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

NOT A MERE FIGUREHEAD.

Victoria Said to Take an Active and Beneficent Part in Public Affairs.
 A corner of the veil which screens the inner life of royalty from the common gaze was raised the other day by Mr. Rentoul, M. P., at a meeting of ladies in support of the women's suffrage movement, says the Westminster Gazette. Mr. Rentoul said his idea had always been that the queen was a merely ornamental sort of personage, who signed such documents as were submitted by her ministers, and was restrained from doing any harm by constitutional safeguards. He had, however, recently made the acquaintance of two lords in waiting, who have been in attendance on her majesty for many years, and the information he had obtained from this source had completely altered his views as to the influence exercised by the queen in matters of domestic and foreign policy. He had learned that she is proficient in eleven European languages, and that she has during the last four or five years completely mastered Hindustani, in which she converses with great correctness and fluency with any of her Indian subjects who are presented at court. Her majesty frequently writes to every important sovereign in Europe, and her influence on the side of peace is said to have been very beneficial, her knowledge of foreign affairs being most intimate and accurate. At several critical stages in the relations between European nations the queen's personal influence has been successfully exerted to prevent war. It is even alleged in court circles that her majesty would have been able to prevent the Franco-Prussian war if Emperor Louis Napoleon had not precipitated hostilities on the Rhine before any opportunity was afforded for mediation.

LONG BEFORE PULLMAN'S DAY.

Benjamin Dearborn, in 1819, Thought Out the Sleeping and Dining Car.
 The recent Pullman troubles impart a special interest to a discovery recently made by File Clerk Walter H. French, among the archives of the house of representatives, says the Washington Post. The discovery is in the nature of a petition to congress preferred in 1819 clearly foreshadowing the modern system of sleeping cars. The petition is all the more interesting because the power of steam used in the propulsion of railroad trains at that time was still in its infancy and wrapped more or less in vague mystery. The paper is as follows:
 "The memorial of Benjamin Dearborn, of Boston, respectfully represents: That he has devised in theory a mode of propelling wheel carriages in a manner probably unknown in any country, and has perfectly satisfied his own mind of the practicability of conveying mails and passengers with such celerity as has never before been accomplished, and in complete security from robbery on the highway.
 "For obtaining these results he relies on carriages propelled by steam on level railroads, and contemplates that they can be furnished with accommodations for passengers to take their meals and their rest during the passage, as in a packet; that they be sufficiently high for persons to walk in them without stooping, and so capacious as to accommodate twenty, thirty or more passengers and their baggage."

GOOD FIGHTERS.

Chinese Soldiers Are Fearless and Infinite in Numbers.
 Our knowledge of the modern Chinese in battle has been derived from the wars of 1883 and 1884 with the French.

According to the French narratives of the war in Tonquin, the Chinese generals were deficient in strategy; but the rank and file fought so desperately, with such utter disregard for life, that they generally won the battles, and the campaigns ended in French retreats. Admiral Courbet covered himself with glory by his operations on the River Min, which ended in the destruction of the Chinese arsenals and shipyards, but the admiral had to make all haste to withdraw his force; if he had delayed, not a ship nor a man would have escaped, says the San Francisco Argonaut.

So at the conflict on the island of Formosa. The speed with which the French landed was outstripped by the speed with which they reembarked. French officers who have seen the Chinese in the field shake their heads when foreigners talk lightly of their military prowess. In fact, the question speaks for itself. Given a practically indefinite number of fighting men, every one of whom is ready to die on the field, it goes without saying that it cannot be overcome by a weaker force.

Awed by a Glass Eye.

One of the many superstitions fears that render the laborers from sunny Italy so generally docile was recently taken advantage of by a shrewd Irish foreman employed on a public job. There was a misunderstanding likely to result in a general strike, and he assembled the men together, listening patiently to their statement of grievances. When they concluded, he called to his side the bookkeeper of the contractor, a man with penetrating dark eyes, one of them quite still because it was artificial. The foreman stated with emphasis, the only terms upon which he would compromise, and the bookkeeper kept his "evil eye" fixed on the crowd. The terms were accepted without a murmur, and the crowd hastily dispersed. The bookkeeper was entirely unconscious of performing any part in determining the controversy.

Chinese Marksmen.
 The accuracy of the Chinese marksman is marvelous, when it is remembered the gunstock rests on the hip. In this way he brings down with great facility birds on the wing, and even the snipe, whose zigzag course renders them difficult to spot with the western fowling piece. In addition, too, he uses no explosive cap, but fires it with lighted fuse.

A HOST IN HIMSELF.

He Was an E Pluribus Unum Sort of a Fellow.

It would be well if all jokes were as innocent as one played by a railroad conductor upon a commercial traveler, and related by the traveler himself in the Yankee Blade. He had left the train at a little station, a junction, on a western branch road, where he was to wait several hours for a train going in another direction. There was no one in sight, and he was looking about in a homesick fashion, when the conductor spoke to him.

"Dull place, ain't it?" said the conductor.
 "Rather," answered the commercial traveler, "especially if you've got to stay here four hours."
 "Oh, well, you won't be without company."
 "But I don't see any. Who are they?"
 "Well," said the conductor, speaking slowly, as if he were reckoning them up by a process of recollection, "there's the telegraph operator, the booking clerk, the cloak-room clerk, the signalman, the storekeeper, the accident insurance agent, the postmaster, and one or two other officials. You'll find 'em inside the station."

"That isn't so bad," the traveler thought, and as the train started he entered the door. The station was dimly lighted, with no one in sight but a sandy-haired man at the telegraph instrument.

"Where are the others?" asked the traveler.
 "What others?" answered the telegraph operator.
 "Why, the cloak-room man, the booking clerk, the postmaster and the rest."
 The man began to grin.
 "Oh, it is that conductor again," he said.

"Well, where are they?" repeated the traveler, with some asperity.
 The sandy-haired man tapped himself on the chest.
 "Them's me," he said. "Come in and sit with us."

And the traveler, appreciating the joke—a sort of e pluribus unum reversed—accepted the invitation, and found himself in pretty good company.

WHY THEY STRUCK.

Workmen Who Object to Sitting Around and Doing Nothing.

It has been customary for many people to consider the condenser laborer as low, lazy and shiftless, yet a writer in Engineering Magazine, says that no stranger could enter one of the mills or pass a day in the pine-timber woods without being surprised by the vigor with which work is performed.
 Work has become an instinct; the laborer knows but four conditions—eating, sleeping, working and, after pay day, a carousal, or absolute idleness.

A curious story of a strike is told at one of the mills. The hours of labor are long—from dawn to twilight. In the winter the hours are fewer, but in summer the saws are buzzing and the whole community alive and at work before the sun has touched the tree tops.

A northern foreman of philanthropic principles took charge of a certain mill, and sorrowed within his heart for the poor fellows wearing out their lives with the cant-hook and saw. So he decreed that from seven o'clock in the morning to six in the afternoon should constitute the labor of a day.

There was a murmur in the camp, and in two days there was a general strike. Called upon for reasons, the spokesman stated the case of the men: "We all juss' doan like dis yar gwine ter work at seven o'clock. Wha's de use ob sittin' aroun' fer two hours in de mawnin' fo' gwine to stan' it. We juss' ain' gwine to stan' it, dat's all."
 So the strike was declared off by the superintendent agreeing to allow all hands to go to work at dawn and keep at it as long as they could see.

BLUE-EYED INDIANS.

They Live in Mexico and Are Known as "Griegos."

In a mountain village, perhaps a day's ride from Mexico City, lives a tribe of exclusive, aristocratic Indians called "los Griegos," the Greeks, says the Chicago Tribune. They are light complexioned and the majority have blue eyes and light hair. They dress principally in two shades of blue and their clothing is good, well made and generally embroidered with the bead and silk embroidery of which Indians are so fond. Their houses are better built and furnished than is usual among Indians. Many have pianos and other musical instruments upon which they play with considerable skill. These "Griegos" have no commercial or social connections with other tribes, holding aloof from even those who live at the base of the mountain on which their village is situated. They raise their own food, do their own manufacturing, have their own schools, churches and social institutions, and seldom or never marry outside of their own tribe. There is said to be another tribe of blue-eyed fair-haired Indians, who have the appearance of Germans living in the Sierra Madre mountains in the state of Durango.

The Japanese Bathing Hour.

In Germany at one o'clock all the world is taking an after-dinner smoke or an after-dinner nap, and business, even banking, is suspended. In Japan the bathing hour is before supper, and between five and six o'clock every living being is nude. The public baths are crowded. At home children, young people and old people are in the tub, getting in or getting out of the tub, which is placed in the garden, in court-yards, shops or on the piazza, without the least apology of a screen. If a customer appears the bather talks business over the water, and in private families callers are neither embarrassed nor embarrassed. In the humble quarters the tubs are set on the threshold, and neighbors on opposite sides of the street gossip, chatter and exchange the most amiable greetings. The national towel is nankin blue.
