China is no longer in the problem. The circus. ultimate division of Corea, the passing around of the spoils and the apportionment of the plunder is what is going to make her diplomats grow gray and her people weary. Russia wants a portion of Corea for a terminus for her Siberian railway because Vladivostock is too far north and not a good and accessible harbor. France wants a coaling station on the island of Formosa, which want properly interpreted means that she now blue, now red, now royal purple, wants the whole island. Great Britain now golden yellow, says Home and would be surlily content with the island of Chusan but would take as much more as she could get. Germany has not put in her claim yet-but it is safe to say she in her claim yet-but it is safe to say she mond presents the appearance of a will want part of the plunder, and Italy crystal pebble, somewhat pointed at and Portugal each have a navy large each end. It usually appears to be of enough to make their requests for coaling stations and an island to appear reasonable.

Chicago has a club known as the Two up, and said to himself: Million Club. The members have for a motto "Chicago First, Last, and All the Time," which, it is needless to add, is not indicative of power to create. The club had a big banquet Wednesday night, at which 500 representative Chicago citizens were present. The remarkable thing about the affair was that seated at the main table was the first white child born in the city, a daughter of Col. R. J. Hamilton. The menced pounding him over the head population of the city is now nearly two millions, and yet within the life time of one person the city has been created. There is no country in the world that can make such a showing. There is but one United States, and there never will be but one Chicago.

Emperor William of Germany in addressing some new recrnits after having administered the oath of allegiance, said among other things: '"Obey the oath you have taken and be courageous, despising death." This piece of advice no doubt rolled sonoriously off the emperor's tongue, but it comes under Josh Billings' description of it being better to give than to receive, "advice and castor oil." SOMETHING ALLUI DIAMONDS.

Their Appearance in the Rough, the Cutting and Best Fields.

The ruby mirrors the flame of fire, the sapphire reflects the blue of the heavens, the emerald pictures the depth of the sea, but the diamond is a dew-drop laden with sunbeams, the most poetic creation of an organic nature. Every moment it flashes a new color-Country.

In the rough—that is, just as the stone has been washed out of the clay and broken loose from the ore-a diaray of light will seem to leap from the very heart of the stone. From this rough form of the gem the diamond cutter decides what the shape of the gem. To accomplish this the rough stone is first split or chipped.

The operation is a most difficult one, diamond has a thorough individuality and must be treated accordingly in order to obtain the best results. The 'splitting" is accomplished by fixing the gem in a block of cement, after which the angles must be split off in accordance with the direction of the erystellization. Flaws are also taken out in this operation and the diamond given its future shape.

The diamonds most highly prized are knowledge of the police. Whether his most complete transparency "water" and the most brilliant "fire."

GANDER AGAINST BEAR. And the Cub Did Not Come Out Best in

An Alameda sale keeper has a casion may require, but withal very discreet. He knows he is not big enough to whip the grocer's dog, but

The other day, says the San Francisco Post, a big gander marched gravely up the street. The bear sized him

"He's my meat." He advanced on the gander, who marched slowly and steadily on till the growling cub barred his way. Then he extended his wings, stretched out his neck and tried to make the cub ashamed of himself. The bear made two or three vicious, but ineffectual, cuffs at the gander and then stopped to see what he had accomplished.

Just at this juncture the gander took a firm hold on the cub's ear and comwith his wings. The cub was a quit-ter, and started to beat a precipitous retreat, but the gander wouldn't let go. He just hung on and thumped

When the dust and feathers settled the gander was trying to find the tender portion of what appeared to be a piece of the bear's ear.

An Encounter with a "Cop" Suggested a "Popular" Song

It is a mystery tomany how a "popution, which often comes in a queer way. vide, hurried up to the post office in haste to inquire about a letter. All the doors on Park row were closed, and Mr. Wood was in supreme disgust.

"Say, officer," he exclaimed to a policeman near by, "how on earth am I going to get into the post office?"

"You'll find your mail in Heaven, young fellow," said the cop, "if you try to get into the post office by the

The officer's reply seemed amusing to Mr. Wood, and it took in his mind the there seemed to be a false note, and Mr. Wood turned his poem into a pathetic little story and some one wrote theaters in Chicago whistling his song. That is the story of how "Wait, Mr. Postman," happened to come into existence and become popular.
