HE IS INDEBTED.

The subject of "good government" was discussed at an annual banquet of the New York chamber of commerce Tuesday. This in itself is not at all remarkable, and is only mentioned because it transpires not only that President Cleveland can yet write a letter, but that he can write said letter to parties in New York. His letter is as follows:

"It would give me great pleasure to accept this courteous invitation, if it were possible for me to do so, but the demands upon my time are such that I feel obliged to decline. I am none the less indebted, however, for the thoughtfulness and regard of which this favor is an evidence."

The good president's indebtedness did not awaken in time to cause him to express his gratitude for the "thoughtfulness and regard" which his democratic friends expressed while they were anguishing for him to write a small letter before the 6th of November.

Hon. W. Lair Hill, who is now located in San Francisco, is being pushed for the position of superior judge to succeed F. W. Henshaw elected to the supreme bench. His name has been presented to Governor Markham. There is no doubt of one thing, and that is that if W. Lair Hill is placed on the bench, a thorough lawyer will occupy the position. Mr. Hill was for many years a resident of Oregon, and was at one time located here in partnership with Hon. F. P. Mays, now of Portland.

State Senator Cogswell was beaten for mayor of Lakeview by a gentleman named McElhiney. Well, well, this is hard lines indeed. We had supposed that the doughty Colonel would have interposed a constitutional objection to any such action as that, but then he was only beaten by three votes out of 119.

The president is said to be busy preparing his annual message to congress, which meets next month. As the people delivered their message some two weeks ago it should not take long for the president to prepare his. A newspaper man would scissor it, and save time and labor.

A dispatch to the Telegram yesterday states that Mt. Rainier is smoking, which, being liberally interpreted, means that the correspondent is drinking.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our regular correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16, 1894.

"If Secretary Carlisle remains in Cleveland's cabinet," said a democrat of national reputation to a personal friend, "he will deserve to lose every friend he has, and what is more he will lose them. He has been humiliated several times before, but never quite so publicly as in this bond issue. At the very time when Carlisle was assuring, not only the newspaper men but his closest friends, that no immediate bond issue was contemplated, one of his assistants was in New York, under Mr. Cleveland's personal orders, perfecting arrangements with bankers of that city to issue bonds. I remember many instances of the intentional humiliation of members of the cabinet by presidents, who for one or another reason wished to get rid of them without asking for their resignations, but this is the only time I ever heard of the news of a contemplated bond issue being given out by New York bankers before it was known to the secretary of the treasury, and I doubt if such a thing ever happened before. Of course I can understand that this is a peculiarly bad time for Carlisle to leave the cabinet, but if he doesn't do so as soon as he finishes his annual report to congress he will take a big drop in my estimation." This gentleman expresses the situation so well, as it is known in Washington, that it is needless for me to add to it further than that Mr. Cleveland said Mr. Carlisle and himself are in accord.

Republicans see nothing wrong in another bond issue so far as that act of itself is concerned, and if certain democrats and populists in congress attempt to embarrass the administration on account of it, as they now threaten to do, they will get little assistance from republicans. It is the bad policy of the administration and the democratic congress, which has made bond issues necessary to protect the credit of the government, that republicans object to and will continue to object to, until it is in their power to change it.

Considerable amusement has been caused here by a reference to the value of the cuckoo as a weather prophet, made by Prof. Hazen, chief of the weather bureau, in a lecture on "Long range and popular weather forecasts." Prof. Hazen said of the cuckoo: "The bird has a singularly mournful note, and its voice is an invariable sign of a coming storm. I heard one singing in front of the white house last summer." Prof. Hazen is a scientist, not a politician, yet the aptness of his remarks indicates that he also knows something about recent political happenings, although he would probably say, if questioned, that he knew nothing about the political cuckoo.

Senator Peffer very kindly concedes that the republicans will elect the next president and says that the new national party which, in his mind, is to be made up of populists and the dissatisfied democrats and republicans does not expect to elect a president until 1900. And he actually seems to feel hurt because nobody pays any attention to him. The general impression among shrewd observers is that by 1900 most of our people will have forgotten that a populist party ever existed.

Senator Gorman is said to be the father of a scheme by which the democrats hope to certainly save one of the senators from North Carolina and possibly both of them. The scheme is quite Gormanesque. It provides that the governor of North Carolina—a democrat—shall call an immediate extra session of the present legislature, which is overwhelmingly democratic, and that a senator shall be elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Vance, who seat is now occupied by Senator Jarvis, who was appointed by the governor to fill the vacancy until the meeting of the legislature. Although that would be an extraordinary proceeding it would probably be allowed to stand if the democrats are willing to saddle the expense of an extra session of the legislature, which legally expires Dec. 31, 1894, on the tax-payers of the state in order to keep a democrat in the senate until March 3, 1897. But the proposition to have that extra session elect a successor to Senator Ransom, whose term expires March 3, 1895, will be regarded as revolutionary and will be resisted in the courts. The election of Ransom's successor belongs legally to the legislature just elected, the official life of which begins Jan. 1, 1895.

Having made a conspicuous failure in his tariff policy, Mr. Cleveland will, according to those who claim to have been given an inkling of his intentions, in his annual message to congress, attempt to inaugurate a brand new financial policy, with a special view to pleasing the inflationists who control the democratic party of the south and alienating them from the free coinage of silver which he thinks they advocate for no other reason than that they want more money and cheaper money. Mr. Cleveland's occupation—office-holding—has not given him the experience that is absolutely necessary to a successful financier, but his egotism makes him, in his own mind at least, equal to any task.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good as children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always kept a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

"Here is the man," announced Lucifer, "that spent his life trying to elevate the stage, and not without success." Satan looked over his glasses at the latest arrival. "I wonder," he mused, "if he thinks he can raise hell."

The success that has attended the use of Dr. J. H. McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment in the relief of pain and in curing diseases which seemed beyond the reach of medicine, has been truly remarkable. Hundreds supposed to be crippled for life with arms and legs drawn up crooked or distorted, their muscles withered or contracted by disease have been cured through the use of this remedy. Price 25c, 50 and $1.00 per bottle. For sale by the Snipes-Kinersly Drug Co.

Parker (at the football game)—"Tame sort of a show, in't it?" Barker—"Tame! You're the first man I've heard express that opinion. Parker—Maybe I'm not in the humor to appreciate it. I became a member of the stock exchange a month ago.—Truth.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

"Ah," he exclaimed playfully, "why that deep flush upon your cheek?" "Oh, Alfred," she faltered, "your arrival was so unexpected." She trembled, and felt that she might better have taken time to lay it on less deeply.—The Artist.
