BRIEF MENTION.

Leaves From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

Just watch A. M. Williams' & Co.'s ad tomorrow.

Wild geese will be on sale tomorrow at Jones, Collins & Co.

Klein and Savage were arraigned this morning and were given until tomorrow morning to plead.

The big smoke stack for the cannery has been raised and is being straightened up and fastened in place today.

One drunk and disorderly is "saying nothing and sawing wood" this morning. He has a contract to cut $5 worth.

The grand jury this morning returned a true bill against Savage and Klein and "not a true bill" against Ralph Gibbons.

See Honeywell's ad tomorrow. The Boss Cash Store means the boss for rubbers, boots, clothing and everything else.

There is one thing the Portland Sun is to be commended for and that is that it has none of those infernal coupon offers in it.

The Winans Bros. are evidently putting in their fish wheels to stay, and the amount of lumber they are using is simply immense.

Mrs. Jayne came up from Portland last night to take care of her husband. Mr. Jayne is much better and will be able to attend to his duties in court by tomorrow or next day.

The testimony in the courtroom today dwelt largely on a certain crap game. It is to be regretted that the same testimony was not loud enough to be heard in the grand jury room.

Mr. Dell C. Wilder of 10-Mile, has now recovered from his lame foot caused by a sprain, and receives a check from the Fidelity Mutual Aid Association, through their agent Chas. S. F. Baker, for $28.56 to pay for his trouble.

The second party given by the Union Dancing Club took place last night, and was quite as enjoyable as the first. A number of new members have been added, and the hall is now just comfortably filled for dancing.

The case of the State against O'Brien was up for trial this afternoon with the following jury: F. Kemp, J. R. Woodcock, W. T. McClure, J. W. Zumwalt, C. E. Hill, W. J. Harriman, M. Doyle, B. Warren, Rob Snodgrass, John Bonn, T. E. Wickens, J. A. Wilson.

The case of the State against Broadbent, which was sent up from Hood River, has been before the grand jury today, Broadbent's wife coming up from Hood River to testify this afternoon. It is probable a bill will be returned tonight or tomorrow morning in his case.

There seems to be an epidemic of horse stealing in this state. With horses worth $9 a dozen, one would think the chances of going to the penitentiary for 75 cents worth of "hoss," would deter even the worst thief from taking them, but it don't. Our own private opinion is that a man convicted of stealing a horse, now, should be sent not to the penitentiary but to the asylum.

Mr. G. J. Farley returned from Hood River last night, where he had been attending the funeral of his step-father, Mr. Wm. Lyons. The funeral took place yesterday in the K. of P. cemetery, a beautiful spot about a mile south of the town. The funeral was attended by everybody from that side of the valley, their attendance testifying to the esteem in which the good old man was held.

District Attorney Jayne has been ill for several days. Yesterday he was unable to attend to his duties but today shows some improvement. His deputy, Mr. Phelps, in consequence has more in his hands than he can attend to, as the grand jury is still in session. The trial of O'Brien was postponed for an hour or more this morning after the jury was secured to allow Mr. Phelps to finish some work with the grand jury.

Court Notes.

Halliday vs. Day, motion to strike out sustained; motion to make more definite overruled.

Buchler vs. O'Neill, application for removal to Crook county denied.

Farrell vs. Denton, for trial Monday.

State vs. O'Brien, on trial.

No Contract to Finish the Locks.

When the contract for building the locks and constructing the canal at the Cascades was let to J. G. and I. N. Day the people of the Inland Empire congratulated themselves that the work would be completed just as fast as money could do it. It seems that those congratulations were premature. The people understood, whether they were given to understand so or not by their representatives in congress, that the contract called for the completion of the work at a stated price. Such was not the case. The government agrees to pay the contractors so much per yard for the removal of gravel and rock, so much per yard for what stone and cement is put in the walls and so much per pound for the iron and steel. There is as we have been long since reliably informed, no agreement upon the part of the contractors to complete the work, either within a given time, as the people have been led to suppose, or at all. Why the contract was let in that way, we do not pretend to know, but it is quite probable that when the work becomes unprofitable either through the bother from water, or any other cause the contractors will throw up their contracts and turn the business back to the government.

We regret that this is so, but that it is so we have from parties who ought to know. A little light on this subject would be very acceptable to all the people of Eastern Oregon.

A Lively Town.

The dispatches from Independence yesterday give an account of a lively time there as follows:

Justice Irvine's courtroom was the scene of an exciting event this afternoon. A trial was in progress, in which Ben Hayden and his sons had caused to be placed under arrest two Jordan boys, for assault with a dangerous weapon, they having a quarrel, it seems, drawn a pistol. The testimony on both sides was decidedly sensational, and the courtroom was crowded. During the course of the trial Clel Hayden came in, and, walking up to one of the Jordan boys, drew out a pistol. Some one threw up his arm and the bullet went through the stovepipe and lodged in the wall. Ben Hayden then jumped on the boy, and with the help of officers, attempted to overpower Clel. About this time Bill Hayden came on the scene, with a pistol in his hand. In the meantime the crowd had rushed out of the building, and the door not being large enough, they also went through the large glass front. Bill Hayden was tackled by an officer and several bystanders, and, after a struggle, the pistol was taken away and he and Clel were taken to the county jail. In attempting to put them in, Tom Lowry known as "Stuttering Tom," interfered, and Marshal Williams knocked him down, and then locked him up. A large crowd witnessed the whole affair, and the frantic efforts of those in the courtroom to escape was the subject of much jest.

Look Out for Fun.

The Redmen, at their regular meeting last night, appointed committees and completed arrangements for their grand masquerade, to be given at Wingate's hall New Year's Eve. Program and committees will be published later. A large supply of war paint has been provided for the members of the order—all of it red. Keewaygooshtacunkankangewock (which means the man with a waist) Butts will have charge of the ghost dance, being the principle ghost. The hall will be transformed into a royal wigwam, and in fact, the affair will be the event of the winter.
