"Papa," said the earnest young woman, "I feel that I ought to learn some useful occupation. I'm tired of being a useless expense to you." "Not much you won't," responded the parent. "My creditors would think I was almost broke and be down on me all at once."—Indianapolis Journal.

Four Big Successes.

Having the needed merit to more than made good all the advertising claimed for them, the following four remedies have reached a phenomenal sale. Dr. King's New Discovery, for consumption, Coughs and Colds, each bottle guaranteed—Electric Bitters, the great remedy for Liver, Stomach and Kidneys. Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world, and Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are a perfect pill. All these remedies are guaranteed to do just what is claimed for them and the dealer whose name is attached herewith will be glad to tell you more of them. Sold at Snipes & Kinersly's Drug Store.

Amy Williams—Ruth, dear, won't you walk up to the corner with me? I don't like to go alone. Ruth Ward—I'm never alone, Amy. The Lord is always with me. Amy—Well, Ruth, you walk up to the corner with me, and then you will have company back.—Exchange.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good as children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always kept a bottle of it in the house. After having the grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

"What a beautiful animal that zebra is!" exclaimed the girl that was visiting the zoo. "Y-a-a-a," replied the young man who is always near her, "if it only had stripes winning the othaw way it would be quite a handsome pattern, wouldn't it?"—Washington Star.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhoea of long standing in six hours with one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

"That Joshua story is true, I suppose," soliloquised Mr. Elgg, who had to get Tommy ready for school, "but it was no 8-year-old son he tried the trick on."—Indianapolis Journal.

When persons are weak and languid, from sickness or overwork, feel debilitated and depressed, it is an indication that the blood is out of order, and they need help to throw off the miserable feeling. The best remedy for this purpose is Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier. It restores lost strength, gives vigor to circulation, promotes good appetite and a flow of cheerful spirits. Price $1.00 per bottle. For sale by the Snipes-Kinersly

BIG BRONZE STATUES.

Some of the Complications Encountered in Casting Them.

Where Some of the Largest American Figures in This Metal Are Located—The Process of Their Construction.

Few have any idea of the difficulty of casting a large bronze statue. The popular idea is that molten bronze is poured into a mold, and then, when the metal has cooled, the mold is knocked off and the statue is complete. How much more elaborate is the process, says the New York World, may be gathered from the following description of the casting of a large bronze statue in one piece: After the plaster model has been obtained from the artist it is laid upon a frame and built up all over with a reddish sand, which is peculiarly fitted for the purpose because of its cohesiveness when worked and of its stony hardness when dry. It is imported from France, the best coming from Fontenoy-aux-Roses, about sixteen miles from Paris.

This building-up process is not so easy as it sounds, for the sand has to be applied in little chunks, varying in size but all fitting snugly together, so that they can be taken apart when the impression is complete and the mold is dry.

In an elaborate casting there will be from fifteen hundred to two thousand of these pieces, all of which must be accurately adjusted, or the casting will be imperfect. The most noticeable feature in a bronze foundry is the number of workmen employed in cutting up little chunks of the sand and carefully and tenderly fitting them around the plaster model. These workmen, by the way, are imported along with the sand, the majority of them being French.

The blocks of sand being dry, they are carefully taken off the cast one by one, and as carefully refitted. This is the mold. It is then filled with clay, and when the clay is dry the little blocks forming the mold are again unfitted, and a fac-simile of the plaster cast is obtained. Then comes the most delicate part of the work. The clay model has to be reduced by scraping until it is an exact but slightly smaller copy of the plaster model, for a quarter of an inch has to be taken off its entire surface, and the difficulty of doing this can be imagined, especially when the subject is at all ornate. Assuming the reduction of the clay "core," as it is technically termed, to be satisfactory, the core is introduced into the mold, which has again been put together, and there is naturally a space of a quarter of an inch between the exterior of the core and the interior of the mold. The core is stayed with iron rods so that it remains rigid in the center of the mold, and the glowing molten bronze is poured in from the top and completely fills up the space between the core and the mold; after it has cooled the mold is removed and the clay interior extracted, and the statue is revealed, somewhat rough, it is true, but very nearly as it will appear before the public.

The Astor doors of Trinity church took three years to complete, a good contrast to which may be found, as regards time of execution, in the Washington statue in front of the subtreasury on Wall street, which was completed in six weeks and two days. Speaking of the Washington statue, every one has noticed the bright color, or "patina," as it is called, of the legs of the Father of His Country, while the rest of the body is as grimy as all the other bronze statues in New York city. This is due to the rubbing of the shoulders of street boys and loafers. The founders of the statue say they would make them a handsome present if they would rub the rest of the great man's body, for a "patina" acquired in this way is superior to any that can be given artificially.

The statue that gave the most trouble to the founders, and at the same time is one of the most artistic and beautiful specimens of bronze casting in the country, is Mr. J. Q. A. Ward's statue of President Garfield, in Washington. The nude figures around the statue are responsible for the difficulty of casting. The alloy commonly used for statue-casting consists of ninety parts copper, seven tin and three zinc; that used by the ancient Greeks being eighty copper and twenty tin. At the time of Pausanias they were the first to do any bronze casting; previously articles of ornament were made by riveting sheets of bronze together in the same way that the statue of Liberty is constructed.

The dog that went to the poorhouse. An incident which would seem to prove that a dog learns to understand the language of his country was related by one willing to vouch for its truth. A dog had come to be very old in a family in a country village. One of the family remarked on a certain day, as the dog lay in the room: "I think Sancho ought to be put out of the way. He is only a nuisance now." That afternoon Sancho disappeared, and as the days passed did not return. In the course of a week a neighbor said: "I see that your dog is up at the poorhouse." On inquiry, it was learned that Sancho, having called at the poorhouse and been kindly received, had continued on as a guest. And ever after, although he sometimes made a brief call at his own home, he lived at the town farm, and there peacefully ended his dog's life.

They Were Twins.

The mother of a family showed the ticket collector on the railway a couple of half-fare tickets for her two children. The latter, after looking at them doubtfully, said: "How old are they?" "They are only six, and they are twins." "Ah?" Then after a moment's pause the man inquired: "And where were they born?" The mother (unthinkingly)—"This one was born in New York and the other in Paris."
