Maud—I understand that Jack proposed to you last night and you refused him. Marie—Yes; although, poor fellow, I am afraid that if he had not left me so hurriedly I might have relented and accepted him. So he told me.—New York Herald.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good as children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always kept a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

Situation wanted—A gentleman, late center-rush on a football team, will attend ladies on their Christmas shopping. Address Rush Line, general postoffice, New York.—Truth.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welschton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhoea of long standing in six hours with one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

Mrs. Brown—Since they have become engaged, they just sit in the parlor, and not a word passes between them. Brown—Perhaps there is no room for it to do so.

When persons are weak and languid, from sickness or overwork, feel debilitated and depressed, it is an indication that the blood is out of order, and they need help to throw off the miserable feeling. The best remedy for this purpose is Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier. It restores lost strength, gives vigor to circulation, promotes good appetite and a flow of cheerful spirits. Price $1.00 per bottle. For sale by the Snipes-Kinnersley

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

We have made arrangements with the San Francisco Examiner to furnish it in connection with THE CHRONICLE. Having a clapping rate with the Oregonian and N. Y. Tribune for our republican patrons, we have made this arrangement for the accommodation of the democratic members of THE CHRONICLE family. A SUSCEPTIBLE INDIAN.

Mr. Lo Was Deeply Impressed by a White Woman's Picture.

Mr. Cremony, in his "Life Among the Apaches," gives an entertaining account of a lady's man with whom he once enjoyed an interview. "A tall, strong, well-made and handsome young dandy," he calls him; strutting about with an air of very superior consequence, displaying his colossal proportions, his splendid leopard-skin saddle, quiver, leggings and the like.

After awhile Sait-jah came swaggering toward me, and said, in broken Spanish: "Our chief says you great medicine; he says your pistol fires six times without reloading; he says you bring the trees which are afar off close to the eye, so you can count the leaves; he says your guns reach a great way and never miss; he says a great many other wonderful things, which I cannot believe. You have bewitched him." Drawing a six-shooter from my belt, I pointed out a tree about seventy-five yards distant, and began firing rapidly. Each shot struck the tree, and blazed off large fragments of the bark.

Sait-jah was astonished, and made no attempt to conceal the fact; but his admiration broke into emphatic expression when he witnessed the precision and reach of our Sharp's rifles, and the rapidity with which they could be loaded and fired. His pride had evidently received a heavy fall, and his lofty bearing was toned down many degrees.

In my possession was the miniature of a young lady, whose graces of person, cultivated mind and amiable disposition rendered her one of the most lovable of Boston's fairest daughters.

Sait-jah happened to see this picture, and asked permission to take a good look at the pleasant features. The miniature was placed in his hand, and his eyes seemed to devour its expressive lineaments. Throughout the remainder of the day he bored me with frequent requests for another look, and the next morning, as soon as the camp was astir, he offered me his bow, arrows and splendid leopard-skin for the picture.

The offer being refused, he added his horse, and whatever other property he might have; then, finding me deaf to his entreaties, he took one long, last look, vaulted on his horse, set off at full speed, and rapidly disappeared in the distance.

BENCH AND BAR.

Qualities Necessary to Make Good Judges and Lawyers.

A judge must be fearless; for if timid this weakness is at once taken advantage of by sharp-witted lawyers, who will do all they can to "bluff" him into some unjust concession or unwilling ruling, knowing his fear of having any unpleasant scene in the court room, writes Eugene Macs in Home and Country.

If the occupant of the bench has not the courage to promptly and effectually squelch these blusters, the dignity of the court suffers and the judge in allowing lawyers to dominate over him is humiliated. Under such circumstances reproof must be administered when deserved, yet it must be administered mildly, although thoroughly, lest by showing his anger, or giving vent to it, the court again loses its dignity.

A judge should always be prompt to check the ardor of legal windbags, who bring up formidable stacks of sheep-covered volumes, and cite authority after authority in dreary succession regarding points concerning which the court has already passed an opinion. Above all things a judge must not be imaginative, and should never allow himself to be carried away by his feelings. His calm judgment and reason must be his sole guides.

Let it not be imagined, either, that a judge, to perform his duties rightly, must be either devoid of feeling or inspired by inhuman pitilessness. On the contrary, a judge should be great-hearted, while impartial; merciful, while just.

"Mercy, indeed, is the laurel wreath of the honor for the just judge. In every truth it is twice blessed—it blest him who gives, and him who takes." Often, when confronting a prisoner, whose first offense awaits sentence, the words of the court, as well as the sentence itself, may either harden the poor unfortunate, or else be the turning point for good in his life.

AN HONORABLE THIEF.

The Night Prowler Was as Good as His Word.

"I once had an experience that proved to me that there is honor among thieves," said a Cincinnati drummer, to a reporter. "It happened several years ago in a little town in Michigan. I retired to bed in the hotel at the usual time, and placed my watch and pocket-book under the pillow. After having been asleep some time I was awakened by hearing a strange noise in the room. "You can imagine I was considerably startled at beholding a man with a handkerchief tied over his face standing by my bedside. In his hand was a dark lantern, which shone fully in my face. He did not give me much time to think, but in a gruff voice demanded my watch and money. I don't know whatever put the idea into my head, but, endeavoring to be calm as possible, I said:

"If I tell you exactly where they are will you promise not to molest me and leave me to finish my sleep?" "Well, you are a cool one, I must say," he replied, "but you must tell me where your valuables are, and I will promise not to harm you, and leave you in peace."

"I will take you at your word," said I; my watch is at the jeweler's being repaired and every cent I have is locked up in the safe downstairs."

"He stared at me a minute or two, as though trying to tell by my face if I had spoken the truth. It must have convinced him, for, muttering something I did not catch, he turned on his heel and walked out of the room without a word."
