The impecunious young man who marries a girl with a substantial check attached may very properly be said to have been checkmated.—North American.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good as children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always kept a bottle of it in the house. After having the grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

Mrs. Willie Kiesam Vanderbilt is to base her divorce suit on the ground of non-support. Did she expect pie three times per day?—Washington Star.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshon, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhea of long standing in six hours with one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

Friend—Are you superstitious? Do you believe in signs? Successful Merchant—No; newspaper advertisements are better—and cheaper.

When persons are weak and languid, from sickness or overwork, feel debilitated and depressed, it is an indication that the blood is out of order, and they need help to throw off the miserable feeling. The best remedy for this purpose is Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier. It restores lost strength, gives vigor to circulation, promotes good appetite and a flow of cheerful spirits. Price $1.00 per bottle. For sale by the Snipes-Kinnersly

Billing and cooing flourish during the honeymoon. Afterwards the bill-ing sometimes stops the cooing.—Lowell Courier.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

Customer—What have you in the shape of oranges? Grocer—Well, we have base-balls.—Marlem Life.

We have made arrangements with the San Francisco Examiner to furnish it in connection with THE CHRONICLE. Having a clubbing rate with the Oregonian and N. Y. SUMMONS.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Wasco County.
 Joseph May, plaintiff, vs. J. T. Delk, Sarah E. Delk, and H. Fleckenstein and Julius Mayer, partners doing business under the firm name of Fleckenstein & Mayer, defendants.

To J. T. Delk and Sarah E. Delk, of the defendants above named: In the name of the State of Oregon, you and each of you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit on or before the 11th day of February, 1895, at the Circuit Court following the expiration of the time prescribed in the order heretofore made for the publication of said summons; and if you or either of you fail so to appear and answer said complaint, judgment for want thereof will be taken against you, and the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in his said bill of complaint, to-wit: For a decree ordering a foreclosure of the mortgage of plaintiff, described and mentioned in said complaint, and that the premises mentioned therein be sold to the plaintiff, in and to the satisfaction of the sum of $100.00, and interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent. per annum since the 1st day of January, 1893; and for the further sum of $100.00 reasonable attorney's fees, together with the costs and disbursements of this suit, including subsequent and accruing costs and expenses of sale; that upon such foreclosure and sale all of the right, title and interest of the defendants, or of any or either of them, and of any or all persons, claiming or to claim through, by or under them, in and to the premises hereinbefore described, or of the equity of redemption; that plaintiff be allowed to bid for and to purchase said premises at his option; and that the purchaser said premises be the immediate possession of the same; that plaintiff have judgment against the said J. T. Delk and Sarah E. Delk for any sum that may remain unpaid on said note after the foreclosure and sale of said premises; and for such further and other relief as to the court may seem to be just and equitable.

The service of this summons is made upon you by publication thereof in The Dalles CHRONICLE, a newspaper of general circulation, published weekly at Dalles City, Wasco county, Oregon, by order of Hon. W. L. Bradshaw, Judge of the said court; which order was duly made at chambers in Dalles City, Oregon, on the 6th day of November, 1894.

H. H. RIDDELL,
 Attorney for Plaintiff.

Assignee's Notice of Final Account.
 Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, as assignee of the estate of W. E. Garretson, insolvent debtor, has filed his final account in the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Wasco county, and that the same will come up for hearing in said court on Monday, the 19th day of November, 1894, at which time said assignee will ask for an order distributing said estate and discharging said assignee.
 Dated this 17th day of October, 1894.
 A. R. THOMPSON,
 Assignee of Estate of W. E. Garretson.

DANGEROUS BUSINESS.

The Perils Attendant Upon an Acrobat's Career.

An Old-Time Professional Relates Some Thrilling Tales of Terrible Falls of Himself and Brothers—His Advice to Boys.

William Hanlon, of the firm of Hanlon Bros., producers of stage spectacles and pantomimes, has had a remarkable career. The Hanlons did not come to America until the year 1881, but before that time they traveled continually in all sections of the earth. William Hanlon, the only remaining member of an acrobatic family, has given up gymnastic feats for good and is now devoting his entire time to the production of his pantomime, "Superba."

"It is a question, and a great question, whether the success that might be gained by a professional acrobat is worth the years of constant training, the hardships and terrible dangers of following such a vocation," said this famous gymnast to a representative of the Chicago Inter Ocean recently. "I would not advise a young man to undertake to become a professional acrobat for those reasons. I remember I got my first fall at Malta through the carelessness of a Mr. Lees, to whom I had been apprenticed. The drop was only about twenty feet, but I lost my senses the moment I began to fall. In subsequent falls I was conscious until the 'thud' came, and in my first great fall, strange as it may seem, I had time during the drop of thirty-five feet to think of all the terrible accidents I had ever seen in my life and of many other things as well. This last happened in Manchester, England, and the result was a badly broken arm, which the English doctors failed to properly mend. I was laid up for a year, during which time we crossed the Atlantic, and Dr. James K. Wood, a then famous New York surgeon, fixed me up in good shape, a job which caused a great deal of talk at the time among the medical profession throughout this and the old country.

"I had another terrible fall in Havana, Cuba. In Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, I got another bad tumble; in fact all of my brothers as well as myself had at least twenty bad falls during our acrobatic career, but the worst happened to poor Thomas. It was at Pike's opera house, Cincinnati. In all our career we had never used nets, as they do nowadays, and you can easily imagine what a tumble to a hard stage floor meant to any of us. In making the flying leap from one trapeze to another Thomas lost his hold and fell into the footlights, bounding from there into the orchestra, and smashing the bass violin. His head struck two gas jets, breaking them off, and it was a long time before he seemed on the road to recovery.

"Strange enough, just one year from that time we were again playing in Cincinnati and one night Thomas was missing. He was found a few days after wandering in a demented condition in Harrisburg, Pa., and died there. It was afterwards found that a fragment of the skull, which was fractured by the fall, had penetrated the brain.

"Still, there are bright sides to the life of the professional acrobat. If he is superior in his line his triumphs are absolute and pleasing. He is received well wherever he goes, and he is given opportunities to see things that many wealthy people are even unable to observe, as was the case with us. We saw and met many members of royalty, including Eugenie, empress of the French; duchess of Theba of Spain, duke and duchess of Alba, and the queen of Spain, but of all the royal people we met the rajah of Burdhan was the most magnificent. His throne, which I was allowed to see also, was the costliest on earth. It was wide enough for two very large men to sit on and built of solid gold. The seat was upholstered in the finest down and satin, and the arms terminated in two knobs, each half the size of a man's head, thickly incrustated with rubies as large as a pigeon's egg and other rare jewels. A silken canopy was surmounted by a dove, which was ablaze with first-water diamonds of great size. This throne was worth a king's ransom, but everything in the rajah's court was on a similar scale of magnificence. The Brahmin priests had a remarkable influence over the prince, and were constantly concocting plans to rob him and enrich themselves. One was to induce him to build a golden cow, life size, hollowed so that he could get inside, and once or twice a year fast for twenty-four hours. At the prince's death the golden cow was to become the property of the priests. The prince died. All such sights and experiences go to make up the enviable side of a professional acrobat's life, but the other side leaves me the only survivor of a once large and happy family. Boys—don't do it."

Not Howling About It.
 While Lord Coleridge was on his way to Chicago, an interviewer, failing otherwise to draw him out, began to belittle the old country. Lord Coleridge bore it all patiently; finally, the interviewer said: "I am told, my lord, you think a great deal of what you call your great fire of London. Well, I guess that the conflagration we had in the little village of Chicago made your great fire look very small." To which Lord Coleridge blandly responded: "Sir, I have every reason to believe that the great fire of London was quite as great as the people of that time desired."

It Was the Cat.
 An earnest Englishman, Prof. Jones, recently suffered a severe loss through a strange mishap. He was holding a lecture in the large hall which contains his books, when a cat, jumping upon the table covered with papers, threw over the petroleum lamp, and the efforts of the professor and the audience to extinguish the fire were of no avail. All the valuable books were destroyed.
