BRIEF MENTION.

Leaves From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

A heavy wind storm at Tygh one day last week blew down the church at that place.

The exercises at the armory hall last night were well attended of which, more tomorrow.

It is to be hoped now that Rainier has proved to be a smoker, that its wife won't buy its Christmas cigars.

J. H. Ferguson and M. F. Loy have purchased the livery stable stock and business of Will Rand at Hood River.

License to marry was issued today to L. V. Nealeigh and Miss Mary Beatty, both of Hood River. The marriage will take place this evening.

Some twenty-five school teachers left for Portland this morning on the Regulator to attend the state teachers' institute beginning there tomorrow.

The distributing of the prizes at L. Rorden & Co.'s Christmas eve, resulted in the holder of coupon 2734 getting the dinner set, 2456 getting the lamp and 1992 the doll.

On account of the death of J. W. Reedy, a member of Wasco Lodge No. 15 A. F. & A. M. the public installation, banquet and dance for Thursday coming next, has been indefinitely postponed.

Maier & Benton will award the prizes given by them New Year's Eve at 9 o'clock. They have an immense stock of stoves and Maier told us confidently this morning that there isn't a stove in the lot will cut its own wood, split its own kindling, and call the hired girl to bake the matutinal flap-jacks.

The party sent out by the Seattle Post Intelligencer to examine into the question as to whether or not Mt. Rainier was smoking, sent in word by carrier pigeons yesterday noon that the mountain was smoking; that the party was only five miles from the summit and the jets of steam and columns of curling black smoke were plainly visible. This settles the question against Tacoma, which claiming the mountain as its own, refused to let any one else make any discoveries concerning it.

The price of sturgeon having suddenly advanced in Portland, the fishermen who have heretofore confined their labors to the lower river have invaded the middle Columbia. The Regulator brought up seven boats and outfits last week, that are now busy between here and the Cascades. Yesterday the Regulator took down quite a lot of the big fish caught near Crate's point.

Funeral of Thomas N. Joles.

The funeral of Thomas N. Joles took place from the Methodist church yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The orders to which he belonged, the Workmen, and Degree of Honor, Odd Fellows, Woodmen and Good Templars, were all out in force, forming in procession at Fraternity hall and marching to the residence of Isaac Joles, where the body of the deceased brother lay. The long procession filed through the parlor where, in a coffin covered with masses of flowers, rested all that was mortal of the friend and brother. The lodges formed again and marched to the Methodist church, the main part of which had been reserved for them. The wings were already filled and the church was crowded to its utmost capacity before all were admitted. The services were impressive, the sermon being peculiarly fitting. At its close each order sought the conveyances provided for it, and the solemn procession wound its way to the city of the dead. At the grave the simple services of the A. O. U. W. were performed, a beautiful hymn was sung by a quartette consisting of Dr. Doane, C. J. Crandall, Balfe Johnson and W. F. Magee, the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Whieler and all was over.

Notwithstanding the fact that it was a badly selected hour for the funeral, the attendance was large, the procession containing nearly sixty vehicles, the first twenty, at least, of which contained not less than nine persons each.

At the Methodist Church.

The Christmas tree and Santa Claus at the Methodist church last night filled the church to overflowing, the little folks, of course, being in the majority. After brief but interesting exercises the presents were distributed. One of the most interesting parts of the exercises was the fish-pond for the little folks, and some of the things caught out of that same pond would have astonished good old Isak Walton. Another thing that caused much amusement was the telegraph line, worked by a special agent of Santa Claus. Altogether it was a very pleasant affair and served to make all the little folks, and therefore the larger ones, happy.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Killed in a Collision.

A head end collision occurred Christmas morning about 3:30 between the west bound passenger train and a freight, on the side track at the summit, seven miles east of here, in which Engineer Joseph Reedy was instantly killed and the engines and several cars were badly wrecked. A special was sent out from here and the passengers were brought here early in the morning, and with them was brought the body of poor Reedy. A coroner's jury was summoned yesterday afternoon and the inquest beginning this morning is not yet completed. Briefly the story is told that Reedy had orders to meet the west-bound passenger at the summit. He pulled by the siding and backed his train on it, at the same time sending out a flagman to stop the passenger, as he had not gotten his train clear of the main track and the switch closed. The flagman signaled the passenger train all right, his signal being answered by Engineer W. J. Sherman, who for some cause did not stop, though heslacked his speed. It is supposed that Engineer Sherman seeing Reedy's engine was on the side track thought he had nothing to fear until the rear end of the freight was reached. When his engine reached the switch it was too late to do anything, and Sherman and his fireman jumped. Reedy was sitting at his post in the cab, and when the collision came he was thrown back on the coal, and the tender turning over, he was buried under it and instantly killed. It was three hours before his body was recovered. His fireman, Pearson, says he does not know how he got out. He received a bad gash in one arm and some severe bruises, but will soon be all right.

The deposition of the witnesses and the verdict of the jury cannot be given until tomorrow.

Engineer Reedy was a splendid fellow, liked by all who knew him, and his death causes genuine sorrow among his many friends. He leaves a little daughter, aged about 8 years to mourn an irreparable loss. His mother has been communicated with, and upon her desires will depend the place of his funeral. He was a member of the Masonic lodge of this city, belonged to the Albina lodge K. of P. and was president of the local lodge of the American Railway Union of this city.

The coroner's jury is composed of the following gentlemen: A S Macallister, A Larsen, W Magee, W McCrum, George Runyon and R G Closter.

The following witnesses have been examined: Wm. Harding, conductor, W. H. McCoy, head brakeman, C. Clark, rear brakeman and J. Pearson, fireman, all of the freight, and W. J. Sherman, engineer, and F. Jobson, fireman, of the passenger.

The jury went out to the scene of the wreck this morning, returning about 1 o'clock this afternoon.

A Really Merry Christmas.

The amount of money expended here for the past week for holiday goods has been unprecedented. Every merchant in the city reports phenomenal sales and money more plentiful than it has been for some time. One prominent merchant said he believed more money had been expended for presents this Christmas than for the three preceding ones combined. We know of no better criterion of the condition of the people than their ability to spend money for sentimental objects, and we venture the assertion that there is not a community of the same size as The Dalles and with the same population as Wasco county, in the whole United States, that is as well fixed financially as ours. We do not believe there was a child in the county that did not receive something to gladden its heart yesterday, and that is a record of which any community might well feel proud. Oregon is the best state in the union, and Wasco its banner county.
