BRIEF MENTION.

Leaves From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

Jos. T. Peters & Co., have cord wood, which is desirable in all respects and respectfully solicit your orders.

Four drunks up before the city recorder this morning, and received the usual fine, which of course, they did not pay.

Do not forget that all county warrants are made payable to order now, and that to transfer them they must be indorsed.

The French troupe gave their last performance last night to a small house. It will probably be some time before they stop here again.

There will be preaching in the Christian church Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. by Elder J. W. Jenkins. All are cordially invited to attend.

Owing to the continuation of the protracted meeting in the M. E. church at Dufur, Elder J. W. Jenkins will not preach there Saturday and Sunday as announced.

The Regulator is having an overhauling, and is found in good condition. The bulkheads are being repaired and caulked, so that, even should she knock a hole in her, she will not sink.

Owing to the commissioners' journals being in use all day by the county clerk, who is making out the warrants from the same, it was impossible to get the remaining bills for publication today.

Noting the effort being made to establish a wool scouring plant here the East Oregonian says: "The people of The Dalles are becoming thoroughly alive to the advantages of having a wool scouring mill at that place. Pendleton is greatly the gainer from the presence here of one and there is room for others in Eastern Oregon."

The Congregational Y. P. S. C. E. will give a sleighing party to the Irvine place, below town, tomorrow (Friday) night. Teams will take passengers from the Congregational church there and back for the sum of 50 cents, including supper. Parties wishing to furnish their own teams will be served supper for 25 cents each.

The Joles-Collins store will be opened tomorrow under the name of E. J. Collins & Co., who are successors to the firm of Joles, Collins & Co. Mr. Collins is a thorough business man and his many friends and patrons will be pleased to learn that he is again ready for business and that the old store, where they traded so long, again has its doors open.

At the conclusion of the play last night, Mr. French came before the curtain and made a brief but pertinent speech. He said in substance that he had heard it rumored that he and his company had had a falling out with Mr. Birgfeld, that there was absolutely no truth in the statement, not even a foundation for the rumor. He added that he was more than pleased with the treatment he had received at the hands of Mr. Birgfeld and the Orchestra Union, all of which had done everything possible to make his engagement a success, and his visit to The Dalles pleasurable. He also added that The Dalles had one of the finest orchestras in the state. His remarks were heartily applauded, and he may rest assured that if he did not gain much financially, that he did gain friends here.

Mitchell Notes.

The weather of the past week has been as pleasant as one could wish. No snow at all on the nearest hills, but on our mountains there is from fifteen to twenty inches. John Gage came from Prineville one day last week, and says he traveled through thirty inches of snow.

Dr. Hunlack and wife left us one day last week to go to Lone Rock, where they mean to make their home.

Ab. Tills is very ill at his home on Shoo Fly.

Charley Maits, who lives in the mountain vicinity, is very ill.

Puet and Flock have sold their steam saw mill to A. Campbell. Part of the payments are town property.

Mr. J. J. Cozart was in town a few days since. He is the same in many respects, but has grown much older in appearance.

The Progressive club has organized a dancing school, and now they trip the time to the mazy waltz. But no girls are admitted. Don't they have a lonely time?

A remonstrance against the new county is being circulated in this and other vicinities, but of its success I cannot say.

Reports are that the snow at Prineville is fifteen inches. In consequence of our splendid weather, many are suffering from colds. E. V. E.

Dolph Nominated on the First Ballot.

SALEM, Jan. 16.—Senator Dolph's succession to his own seat in the senate of the United States was settled tonight in the joint caucus of the republican members of both houses of the legislature. The last vestige of opposition to the caucus proposition died out this afternoon, when the meeting of what might have been called the anti-caucus members assembled and decided to go into the caucus. This meeting was presided over by Senator Alley, who urged a compliance with the caucus call on those present for the good of the party. Long before the hour of assembling the door of the armory, a room in the capitol basement, was surrounded by curious outsiders and much speculation was indulged in as to the appearance of the anti-caucus element. Predictions of absenteeism were unfulfilled, however, for the last of the hesitating ones went in just before 7:30, and the caucus began. Organization was effected by the election of Senator Alley chairman, and Representative Long secretary. The roll-call showed every republican present, except Representative Cole, of Multnomah county, who is slightly ill tonight, but who voted by proxy. Considerable time was occupied, in fact nearly all of the two hours the caucus was in session, by preliminary discussion, partly as to the method to be used in voting. It was finally decided to call the names and have each member as called upon drop his ballot in a box. This was done. The first ballot settled it. The count showed:

Dolph, 41; Fulton, 12; Tongue, 11; Lowell, 4; Lord, 2; Hermann, 2; Strong, 1; total, 72.

Senator Lowell's four votes were friendly to Dolph and would have gone to him upon a second ballot. It was George L. Strong, of Portland, who received the single vote. It was then moved and voted without a dissenting voice that the nomination of Dolph be made unanimous. News of the result was instantly carried upstairs to the senate chamber, where Senator Dolph was sitting with friends, and three cheers for him were given with a will, at the instance of ex-Representative Gullixson. The senator was immediately surrounded by members and citizens who crowded forward to tender congratulations. About the next busiest man was Senator Simon, who was congratulated quite as warmly, and seemed fully as pleased at the result.

The End of It All.

Mr. R. A. Power, who came up from Mosier yesterday, brought with him Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Baker, residents of that precinct, who, owing to misfortune, are indeed among hardlines. The husband is sick, nigh unto death, and is mentally deranged; the woman a confirmed invalid and physically helpless. The county court, examining the unfortunate man this morning, and he was committed to the insane asylum, being sent down in charge of Mr. Power, who has been taking care of him. The little woman was taken back to Mosier, where she will be cared for by friends.

where she will be cared for by friends.

It was a touching sight to see the husband carried into the baggage car of the local this afternoon on a stretcher, the wife, helpless and emaciated, being borne after him in a rocking chair. We could not help but let our fancy dwell upon this winding up of a life's romance. We thought of the time when he who, in the years gone by, in the flush of manhood, wooed and won the girl about whose image his heart-strings had grown. Of the time when she had made joyous his life and brightened the future with dreams, far different from the reality. Of the faith, the hope, the courage with which the battle of life was fought against poverty, and hardship, and disease, until hunger and want proved too much for them. And what a parting!

As the train pulled out the brave little woman, her chair moved beside the cot on which her husband lay, clasped his hands in her's for the last time. The flesh was weak, but the spirit in that poor little body was brave. We saw the convulsive clasp of fleshless little hands about the fleshless large ones, and we saw the smile that overspread the pinched and drawn little face as it bent for the last time over the lover of her girlhood days, the husband of her mature years—a smile that shone alone for him and for his sake; that bid him hope, though she was hopeless. What visions of youthful hopes! What dreams of girlhood days! What recollections of struggles and of self-denials for his dear sake, whom now she saw for the last time; whom yet for one brief hour her eyes might behold, her hands touch, her heart mourn over, swept through her mind. What an ending for a youthful romance, for a life's struggle. But ere these lines are read the parting will be over, the romance ended, the life struggle ceased.
