

FOR 20 YEARS the formula for making Scott's Emulsion has been endorsed by physicians of the whole world. No secret about it. This is one of its strongest endorsements. But the strongest endorsement possible is in the vital strength it gives.

Scott's Emulsion

nourishes. It does more for weak Babies and Growing Children than any other kind of nourishment. It strengthens Weak Mothers and restores health to all suffering from Emaciation and General Debility.

For Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Consumption, Blood Diseases and Loss of Flesh. Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

A Spokane Mystery.

SPokane, Jan. 29.—The most mysterious attempt at suicide in the history of this city was made today. An unknown young man entered a lodging house and secured a room. Soon after a shot was heard, the door was broken in and on the floor, weltering in his own blood, which flowed freely from a ragged wound in his forehead, was the outstretched body of a young man, apparently about 28 years old. At midnight, he was still alive, but unconscious, and physicians say he cannot recover. Who the man is, where he came from, or what motive prompted him to do the terrible deed, are yet unknown. Before the commission of the rash act, he destroyed every vestige of paper on his person that would lead to his identity, and only a small pile of smoldering ashes was left. The burned outline of a photograph, apparently of a man, was in the stove, but when touched it crumbled to ashes. The unfortunate person was attired in a light coat, vest, trousers of a dark striped material, black sateen shirt and a blue necktie of a flowered pattern. On his feet were a pair of laced calf shoes with cloth tops. On the bureau was a black plush cap, while on the bed was a brown frieze overcoat. In his pocket was over $10 in cash, while in his vest pocket was a small silver watch, with a Swiss movement. He is smooth-shaven, with the exception of a small light mustache, fair complexioned, about 5 feet 9 inches in height and weighs about 150 pounds. He has soft hands, which show he did not belong to the laboring class. Some cards of the Franklin house, San Francisco, found in his pockets, seem to indicate that he was a runner for hotels.

TRICK WITH A BANK BILL.

A Man Who Planned a Good Joke on His Boston Friends.

A man walked into a hotel near the Grand Central station early the other morning, having just left a train. He ordered and ate a hearty breakfast and then, instead of giving his waiter the money to pay the check and waiting for the change, as most men do, he "tipped" the waiter and carried the bill to the cashier. In his hand, says the New York Tribune, along with the bill for his breakfast, he held a ten-dollar note.

"I wish," he said to the cashier, "that you would pin a slip of paper to this bank bill, so that you can identify it, and then put it away, please, until I call for it. I'll be back to-morrow."

The cashier looked rather astonished. "Yes," said the other. "I only want to leave it here as security for my breakfast. I'll come back to get it."

"But it's a good bill," said the cashier. "I'll accept it and give you the change."

"No," replied the stranger. "I don't want you to do that. I want merely to leave this bank bill in pawn. I want to pledge it. Give me the price of my breakfast on it, and to-morrow I'll redeem it."

"Oh, I see," said the cashier, with a smile, "you want to keep this bill because it has some peculiar value through association. It's a sort of a souvenir, eh?"

"Well, not exactly," was the answer. "You see, I have been over in Boston. I went nearly broke there. When I was coming away some of my friends insisted on lending me some money. I told them that I should not need it, but they declared I could not pull through. One of them forced ten dollars on me."

"I'll tell you what I'll do, I said. 'You take down the number and date of this bill. I'm coming to Boston again next week. Now to prove to you that I don't need this ten dollars, I'll bet you that I bring the same bill back with me, I'll bet a dinner for us all.'"

"They took the bet, and that is why I want to put this bill in pawn. Pretty good joke on them, eh?" he said, with a wink. "I spend it, and yet I keep it. Take good care of it for me," and he went out, looking like a conqueror.

About five minutes later the cashier took out the bill, pinned the slip of paper to another one of about the same color and appearance, and slipped them back into his cash-drawer.

"I wonder who'll have the joke on him, now?" he said to himself, and then he whistled softly.

COINS OF LITTLE USE.

The Gold Dollar Had No Utility, While the Three-Cent Piece Served a Purpose.

To one who has not given the subject thought it would seem that the most useless coins ever issued by the United States were the silver three-cent pieces. They were small, as thin as a sheet of manilla paper and before they finally disappeared from circulation they came to be regarded as nuisances.

Although there is much to be said against the annoying little coins, says the New York Herald, they were, as a matter of fact, of far greater utility, as far as circulation is concerned, than another coin. This is the gold dollar, which, experts at the sub-treasury say, has never served any useful purpose. Said Maurice Muhleman, cashier of the sub-treasury, recently:

"From the mutilated condition of the gold dollars sent here for redemption it is positively shown that the public do not regard them as coins. Their only use appears to be for bangles, necklaces, watch charms, scarf pins and the like. It is doubtful if one in a thousand ever really passed in circulation."

"With the three-cent silver piece, it was different. When first coined, the country had nothing in the shape of a coin between the huge copper cents and half cents and the silver half dime. The small coin was hailed as a blessing, and became popular at once. There was an excellent reason for its issue also.

"Strange as it may seem, it was not provided for by a coinage act, but by an act revising the postal rates. This law lowered the cost for transmitting the unit of weight for letters from five to three cents. It was deemed advisable by congress thereupon to issue a coin of corresponding denomination. The coin was of great utility, and circulated freely until the advent of the nickel."

Carlton Cornwell, foreman of the Gazette, Middleton, N. J., believes that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy should be in every home. He used it for a cold and it effected a speedy cure. He says: "It is indeed a grand remedy, I can recommend to all. I have also seen it used for whooping cough, with the best results." 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.
