NOT TO BE SNUBBED.

When Rev. J. C. Reed, who attempted to rob the East Portland bank Wednesday, was safely lodged in jail, he was asked what motive he had for the crime, and said:

"They snubbed me; would not allow me to supply the pulpit of the Oregon City Baptist church when that church was in need of a pastor, and in every way have ignored and humiliated me since my return from the East. I have spent almost my last cent, and worried to desperation I attempted the robbery of the First National bank."

To the average mind the facts stated would hardly be taken into serious consideration as palliating the offense. If his family had been in actual want and suffering, one might be disposed to excuse the taking of enough to relieve that suffering, though this can never be taken as an excuse for the crime; but simply in palliation and to show that it was want, and not a criminal disposition, that led to it, it has some light weight. But it was not the wants or necessities of his family that Mr. Reed advances as the principal reason for the robbery. The fact that he was "snubbed" set most heavily upon him, but the thing that made him, after due deliberation, determine to rob the bank was the fact that "They would not allow him to supply the pulpit of the Oregon City Baptist church, when that church was in need of a pastor."

This is a peculiar reason for a criminal act. Of course we are not informed as to the Oregon City congregation alluded to, but if the only thing left to do when one cannot get into the pulpit of that church is to rob a bank, it doesn't speak well for the high moral pinnacle upon which that church rests. Of course the congregation aforesaid are not responsible for their former pastor's shortcoming, and the charitable view of the situation is that instead of being but a lesser degree of crime to rob a bank than to preach in Oregon City, which Rev. Reed's statement would imply, the truth is that instead of descending but a step, that Mr. Reed went to the opposite extreme.

The planning of the robbery and the attempted execution of it do not mark Mr. Reed as a knave. His actions in leaving for the East a few years ago, coupled with his bank-robbing experience, have not a criminal brand. Indeed they are not brands at all, but simply ear-marks, and the ear-marks identify him as an ass.

DEBS COULD CATCH HIM.

Mr. Pullman, the proprietor, or principal stockholder at least, of the Pullman car works and car system, is a very large man. He has fattened off the public until he hath grown so great that petty United States courts and small state governments can peep beneath his huge legs and admire his giant form, but only to realize that he is above their reach. Yesterday in Chicago a deputy United States marshal was seeking him for the purpose of serving a subpoena on him requiring him to appear before Judge Grosscup to give testimony in the conspiracy cases of Debs and others. The officer of the court was sent from one room to the other, ordered about by Pullman clerks, put on false trails after his czarship, Pullman, and after an entire day spent in this manner, was told Pullman had gone to New York. If the United States court is not large enough or powerful enough to bring Mr. Pullman to law and compel him to testify, we suggest that Mr. Debs and those indicted with him, be turned loose, and that when next Mr. Pullman applies to the law for protection, he be treated with the same respect that he shows for the courts.

We are firmly of the opinion that if the courts will not interfere, Mr. Debs and his old associates can soon chase Pullman into the very presence of the United States courts, and make him long for a sight of that same deputy marshal. At any rate, the experiment might be worth trying should the occasion again require, and the lesson might be worth something to Pullman.

A resolution was introduced by Senator Patterson Wednesday, proposing an amendment to the constitution giving women the right to vote. The resolution passed both houses by a handsome vote, and unless some legal objection can be found to it the matter will be submitted in three years from now to the people. We have always believed that women should be granted the right of suffrage, because we have an abiding belief that the presence of women at the polls and their taking an active part in politics would go a long way towards purifying elections. We see no reason why a woman should not vote just as intelligently as a man, and just as conscientiously. If this amendment comes before the people it should carry, and we believe it will.

Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii has abdicated. This master-move on her part comes rather late in the day seeing that the provisional government has been in force and recognized for a long time and she herself most fully and positively deposed. Her abdication is of a piece with the average society resolution on the death of a brother, that "Whereas, God took him, therefore be it Resolved, That we bow in submission to the decree." Queen Lil no doubt intended this as a sort of sop to the powers that be, and to lessen the punishment of those misguided subjects who started a revolution in her interests. She will probably be deported, and this will end all disputes as far as she is concerned.

A Miraculous Escape.

Donata Marencha fired three shots at Tona Fontiana, a bootblack in Portland in the latter's shop Wednesday evening, wounding him twice in the right arm and one bullet penetrating his left breast and lodging under the shoulder blade. Fontiana's wounds are not considered dangerous. Marencha then fired two shots into his own abdomen, and will die. The Oregonian prints the picture of Fontiana, and if it is true or half true to nature, the result of the shooting is inexplicable. Nothing short of a miracle could have prevented at least one of the bullets hitting that nose.

Ten days loss of time on account of sickness and a doctor bill to pay, is anything but pleasant for a man of a family to contemplate, whether he is a laborer, mechanic, merchant or publisher. Jas. O. Jones, publisher of the Leader, Mexia, Texas, was sick in bed for ten days with the grip during its prevalence a year or two ago. Later in the season he had a second attack. He says: "In the latter case I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with considerable success, I think, only being in bed a little over two days. The second attack I am satisfied would have been equally as bad as the first but for the use of this remedy." It should be borne in mind that the grip is much the same as a very severe cold and requires precisely the same treatment. When you wish to cure a cold quickly and effectually give this remedy a trial. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.
