IT SHOULD PASS.

Senator Mitchell's bill to amend the constitution so as to provide for the election of United States senators by popular vote, ought to pass. There is no reason why the election of the senators should be delegated to the legislatures, and there are many reasons why they should not be. The present deadlock in Salem is a case in point. Here at our own capital we have the spectacle of a party being placed in power by an overwhelming majority of the votes of the people, and in an overwhelming majority as regards legislative votes, frittering away time that is costing the people $200 an hour, and that should be devoted to law making, in an apparently hopeless quarrel. That quarrel is based upon a dispute as to what the people want. Each side claims to represent the people, and there seems to be no way of settling the matter. Had it been left to the people themselves instead of being delegated to the peoples' representatives, the matter would have been settled the way the people wanted it. Another reason is that under the present system the senate is composed largely of men of great wealth or else men who represent not the people but the great corporations. This condition of affairs is becoming a menace to our institutions and a rock upon which the good ship of state will wreck if the rock is not removed.

There is a question before this people now that is forging to the front as the vital one. More important than the tariff; more important than the financial question, and that is the establishing of the respective rights of labor and its creature—capital. We are not cranky as concerns corporations. We recognize their importance and their necessity. We know that individual wealth cannot carry out the great business of the country, and that corporations by which vast sums can be gathered and controlled are a feature of modern civilization that cannot be dispensed with. They are necessities, the creature of the laws and must not be allowed to become the creators of them. It is for our legislative bodies and for congress principally, (because the larger corporations are national in their ramifications) to say how far the right of the corporations to levy tax upon the public shall extend. It is for them to limit the powers of these aggregations of capital, and to hedge about and protect the rights of the citizen and the laborer. It will not do for this task to be placed in the hands of corporation attorneys, or corporation officers. The representatives of the whole people, and they alone, should be allowed to undertake this difficult task.

This country has prospered under a protective tariff system, and it has moved along under free trade. It prospered when silver was at a premium, it will prosper with silver at a discount when some settled financial and revenue policy shall be established, but the conflict between capital and labor is irrepressible and must be fought to a finish. Neither can exist without the other and each know this, but as long as greed exists (and than corporate greed nothing is greater) the matter cannot be left to the parties to settle, because the stronger would per force settle it, and settle it wrong. It is for congress, a congress elected by all the people, to grapple with the question and settle it in the interests of all, and therefore right.

TWO OF A KIND.

An onion, which had been placed by a careless cook on a shelf of the pantry, began in a short time to put on airs over its proud position. It could peep out of the window and see the great world on which it looked down, and each day it felt more and more the exalted position in which it had been placed, and soon grew quite contemptuous towards the world which it could see so far beneath it. "It does not seem possible," it murmured, as it cast a glance over its round belly and glossy skin, "that I was once of that common earth that I see, and that I grew among the lowly vegetation of that mucky soil." In the midst of its proud musings the cook placed by its side a slab of codfish that came from the banks of Newfoundland. The proud and haughty onion was at first speechless with indignation, but swallowing its wrath and drawing its brown silken robes away from its neighbor, as if it feared contamination, it demanded from whence its uncivilized visitor came and why it encroached on its domains. "On your domains?" replied the codfish. "Why yours? The same cook that placed you here placed me here." "That may be," said the onion, "but I was never so put upon in my life. Methinks from your offensive smell that you have not washed your feet for a year." "Smell! is it you say? O'ds fish! but you are no violet! You've a breath on you like a free trade argument." "You are beneath my notice," said the thoroughly enraged onion, "and were it not for the offensive effluvia, I should turn my back upon you to some purpose. As it is, how can I hope to escape your presence, which makes itself known as offensively as one of your deceased cousins, the mackerel, when exposed to the moonlight, and which the longer it is ignored the worse it smells." "Its 16 to 1," retorted the codfish, "you have never associated with respectable people, or you would realize that you are somewhat of a 'stinkard' yourself." "I shall appeal to the cook to remove you," growled the onion. But at that moment the cook appearing, without more ado, popped both onion and fish into the slop bucket remarking that that rotten onion and decayed fish were spoiling the pantry and ruining everything in the house.

Moral—Of two evils take neither, but elect the senator yourself.

Ten days loss of time on account of sickness and a doctor bill to pay, is anything but pleasant for a man of a family to contemplate, whether he is a laborer, mechanic, merchant or publisher. Jas. O. Jones, publisher of the Leader, Mexia, Texas, was sick in bed for ten days with the grip during its prevalence a year or two ago. Later in the season he had a second attack. He says: "in the latter case I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with considerable success, I think, only being in bed a little over two days. The second attack I am satisfied would have been equally as bad as the first but for the use of this remedy." It should be borne in mind that the grip is much the same as a very severe cold and requires precisely the same treatment. When you wish to cure a cold quickly and effectually give this remedy a trial. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—The funeral of the late W. W. Stow, park commissioner and a well-known politician, will be held tomorrow. Interment will be in Mountain View cemetery, Oakland.

Barge Recovered.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The Standard Oil Company's barge Merrimac, which broke away from a tug which had her in tow, carrying eight men and the captain to sea, has been recovered.

Mrs. Emily Thorne, who resides at Toledo, Washington, says she has never been able to procure any medicine for rheumatism that relieves the pain so quickly and effectually as Chamberlain's Pain Balm and that she has also used it for a lame back with great success. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

women often feel the effect of too much gayety—balls, theatres, and teas in rapid succession find them worn out, or "run-down" by the end of the season. They suffer from nervousness, sleeplessness and irregularities. The smile and good spirits take flight. It is time to accept the help offered in Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a medicine which was discovered and used by a prominent physician for many years in all cases of "female complaint" and the nervous disorders which arise from it. The "Prescription" is a powerful uterine tonic and nerve, especially adapted to woman's delicate wants for it regulates and promotes all the natural functions, builds up, invigorates and cures.

Many women suffer from nervous prostration, or exhaustion, owing to congestion or to disorder of the special functions. The waste products should be quickly got rid of, the local source of irritation relieved and the system invigorated with the "Prescription." Do not take the so-called celery compounds, and nerves which only put the nerves to sleep, but get a lasting cure with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"FEMALE WEAKNESS."

Mrs. WILLIAM HOOVER, of Bellville, Richland Co., Ohio, writes: "I had been a great sufferer from 'female weakness.' I tried three doctors; they did me no good; I thought I was an invalid forever. But I heard of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and then I wrote to him and he told me just how to take it. I took eight bottles. I now feel entirely well. I could stand on my feet only a short time, and now I do all my work for my family of five."

SUMMONS.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Wasco County:

Caleb Brooks, Plaintiff,

Georgiana A. Brooks, Defendant.

To Georgiana A. Brooks, the above-named defendant:

In the name of the State of Oregon: You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit, and now pending in the above-entitled Court, on or before Monday, the 11th day of Feb., 1895, that being the first day of the next regular term of said Court; and if you fail so to answer, for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the said above-entitled Court for the relief demanded in his complaint, for a decree of divorce forever dissolving and annulling the marriage relations now existing between you and plaintiff, and for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem equitable and just.

This Summons is served upon you by publication thereof in The Dalles Chronicle, a newspaper of general circulation published weekly at Dalles City, Wasco County, Oregon, by order of the Honorable W. L. Bradshaw, Judge of said Court, which order was duly made at chambers Dalles City, Wasco County, Oregon, on the 27th day of December, 1894.
