BRIEF MENTION.

Leave's From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

Licenses to marry were issued today to Fred Kantz and Miss Lucy O'Dell, and S. J. Hanna and Miss E. J. Eastman.

Official members of the M. E. church are requested to meet in the lecture room of the church this evening at the close of the prayer meeting.

Rev. L. Grey of Oregon City, who was to fill the pulpit of the Lutheran church next Sunday, will be unable to keep his engagement. Services will be conducted by Rev. A. Horn.

The city council has offered a reward of $250 for the arrest and conviction of the person and persons who set fire to the pest house. It is only a question of time until the person is discovered.

Postmaster General Bissell has tendered his resignation of that office to President Cleveland. It is said to be quite certain that Congressman Wilson of West Virginia will be his successor.

The old telegraph poles on First street are being chopped down, now that the new ones are in place. Although they have been in the ground a number of years they are quite sound, the sap alone showing signs of decay.

We spoke yesterday of Dr. Hollister having "a wife and babies," in which statement we were guilty of unintentional exaggeration. Instead of saying babies, we should have been satisfied with the singular, baby.

The male quartette will occupy a prominent place on the concert program next Wednesday night, and those who have not heard them, will have a treat on that occasion, while those who have heard them will take care not to miss it.

O. B. Hartley and E. Calkins of Hood River were in the city yesterday, on their way home from Sherman county. Mr. Calkins is the owner of some very fine thorough bred colts, which he had just taken to Sherman county for the summer.

Dr. Hollister reports the smallpox patient as being in fair condition, considering that he is at the most critical stage of the disease, and has strong hopes of his pulling through all right. The next two days will decide the matter for him.

There was a runaway yesterday about noon, the team that distinguished itself belonging to a Chinese vegetable man. The horses ran up First street, following the railroad track and those who saw the affair say that vegetables fluctuated very rapidly.

The suit of Urquhart against Eshelman has been occupying the time of the recorder this afternoon. The action was brought to recover constable fees in a civil suit, and we judge from the amount of argument over some of the legal points that there are several knotty questions involved.

Mr. J. R. Bone came up from Vancouver yesterday for the purpose of buying wheat here. He finds that owing to the especially low rates to Portland caused by the D. P. & A. N. Co.'s boats that this market is one of the highest priced ones in the Northwest, and that he can get his grain from Portland at as favorable prices as from here.

Yesterday afternoon the officers quietly took the six quarantined persons to the pest house, and had them safely lodged therein before anyone knew anything about it. Up to date none of them have shown any symptoms of the disease, though this is the sixth day since they were exposed. By Monday both scare and danger will be over, unless in the meanwhile a new case should develop. This is possible, of course, but hardly probable.

Mrs. Mattie A. Oilar of Hood River was arrested a few days ago on the complaint of the road supervisor of that district, charged with obstructing a public highway, and was tried before Justice Soebe, of that precinct, yesterday, found guilty and fined. The case will be appealed. The road which Mrs. Oilar is charged with obstructing, is that portion of the old Dalles and Sandy wagon road leading from a point a few rods west of the Hood River bridge to the river, a distance of perhaps fifty yards. Mrs. Oilar owns the land, and claims that the change in the road from the old route, which crossed the river and came out on the east side near the end of the railroad bridge, to its present route, was an abandonment of that portion of the road. The matter has been a source of continual quarreling and we hope will now be settled permanently.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Spring straw shapes, just received from the East, will be displayed in the windows tomorrow.

How the New Remedy for Diphtheria Was Discovered.

A number of series of experimental observations regarding the nature and causation of diphtheria preceded the discovery of the new remedy. These began with the discovery of the diphtheria bacillus by Klebs in 1883. In the following year, 1884, the organisms described by Klebs were more carefully studied by Loeffler, were cultivated outside the living body, and diphtheria, or a disease resembling it, was reproduced in animals by inoculating them with the cultures of this germ. Loeffler was unable, however, to reproduce the various form of paralysis which frequently follow diphtheria, but Roux and Yersin, in Paris, in 1888, succeeded in reproducing artificially, by the inoculation of animals with cultures of the diphtheria bacillus, a perfectly characteristic diphtheritic paralysis, and they were also successful in separating from the cultures of this organism a poison (the diphtheria toxin) with which they also produced paralysis in animals. Then Behring and Kitasato, in Berlin, found that by the inoculation of animals with the poison obtained from cultures of the diphtheria bacillus they could be gradually rendered extraordinarily insusceptible to both the poison and the diphtheria bacilli themselves. They further showed that this insusceptibility or immunity was due to the formation and presence in the blood of some substance which it has not been possible to separate chemically, and which is known as the diphtheria anti-toxine, or, from its wonderful action, the curative serum. Then followed experiments by Behring, Ehrlich, and other observers in Germany, and Roux in Paris, experiments designed to make this discovery practically available for the prevention and treatment of diphtheria in the human being.

The first important results of these experiments were published in the early part of last year, and they showed a striking diminution in the mortality, in a series of cases of diphtheria subjected to the new treatment. The results obtained in these first cases have been more than confirmed by subsequent experience in the treatment of this disease.—Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, in McClure's Magazine for March.

A Broad-Minded Railroad Manager.

Receiver McNeill is in the city. In conversation with a CHRONICLE reporter this morning, he took what we think is a sensible view of the boat railway proposition, although it is one seldom expressed by men in his position. Although manager of the O. R. & N. he is a firm friend of the boat railway proposition, and thinks that the opening of the Columbia instead of injuring that road will benefit it greatly. That it will open up the Inland Empire to settlement, will result in rapid increase of population, and will in a few years double the products of the country. The rates will, of course, be reduced, but this will be more than compensated for by the greater amounts carried. Though not saying so, it was plainly to be seen that Major McNeill is a firm believer in the doctrine that like causes produce like effects, and that even with the river open the railroad would here, as other roads do that parallel the Ohio, Mississippi and other great streams, carry the greater portion of the products of the country to market. He expressed the opinion that the whole Northwest should unite in petitioning congress for an appropriation sufficient to complete the boat railway at once, and that if this were done the work could be accomplished within eighteen months.

Concerning the locks at the Cascades, he said, "the end can now be seen, and a very brief time will see that work accomplished." From all of which it can be seen that Major McNeill is a broad-minded gentleman, who can see beyond the apparent results of improving the Columbia, and realize what will actually occur, and further that he appreciates the fact that Eastern Oregon cannot develop and prosper, no matter under what circumstances, but that the O. R. & N. will be benefited thereby.

Died at Her Work.

Mrs. Sarah States died suddenly this morning at 11 o'clock, at the residence of D. J. Cooper in this city. Mrs. States has earned her living by washing and doing house cleaning and such work, and has done the washing for Mr. Cooper's family for some time. Last week she had an attack of dizziness and fell while at her work at Mr. Cooper's, but recovered in a few moments and completed her work. This morning she was engaged in washing in the kitchen, Mrs. Cooper being at work upstairs in the room over the kitchen. Being called to another part of the house for a few moments, Mrs. Cooper noticed on her return that there was utter silence in the kitchen and fearing Mrs. States had suffered a recurrence of the attack of dizziness hastened down stairs. Entering the kitchen she found Mrs. States had fallen, her head being over the edge of the tub and her neck wedged between the latter and the post of the wringer. Help was called and the unfortunate woman released from her position. There was a livid mark across her throat where it had rested upon the edge of the tub, and it is quite probable she choked to death, having fainted and fallen where she was found.

Deceased had been a resident of The Dalles for a number of years and though 69 years of age, was an industrious and self-reliant woman. She had no relations here, but one daughter lives in California, who was telegraphed the sad news at once.
