THE	POLICY			OF	SURRI	SURRENDER

The foreign policy of the present administration is aptly stigmatized by set fire to it. The gases generated pene-Senator Lodge as a policy of surrender. In every instance of dispute with a for- and scoop everything they reach. eign nation there has been a failure to maintain the dignity and enforce the rights of our country. An ignominious lack of backbone has disgraced our diplomacy, and put us at a standing disadvantage. As often as occasion has been presented to promote our interests abroad, disappointment has ensued by reason of incapacity at Washington. The state department has counted for less than was ever before known, except as a target for derision, and the national honor has been disparaged accordingly. There is a good deal of force in Mr. Lodge's suggestion that the explanation of this unpleasant spectacle lies largely in the fact that the democratic policy of tariff reform makes subservience to foreign nations easy and consistent, if not absolutely necessary. "The economic doctrines which the tariff reformers have been urging," he says, "were of course borrowed from England, and all the queer and extraneous fantasies attached to these doctrines were borrowed with them," thus putting American ideas and sentiments in the background.

It is certainly true that the democratic party has forfeited the robust and sggressive Americanism that characterized it in former days, There is nothing Jeffersonian or Jacksonian about its present attitude towards foreign nations. It was once noted for its determined opposition to the idea of imitating other countries, or of being dictated to by them, but now it is tamely willing to order its course according to foreign intimidation. The American spirit seems to have oozed out of it, and it looks to Europe for inspiration and guidance. It is principally animated by what Mr. Lodge calls "the melancholy doctrine that there is no higher aim or purpose for men and nations than to buy and sell, to trade jack-knives and make everything cheap;" and in giving practical effect to this doctrine, it does not hesitate to sacrifice patriotism in order to gain the favor of other countries. This is one of the reasons why it has made such a mess of the great work of conducting the affairs of the government. during the past two years. It is not in sympathy with the best interests and aspirations of the American people, but has become denationalized in its feelings and tendencies. Such a party is manifestly disqualified for sound and efficient service, and its present lease of power was a member of the Oregon legislature ing assertions modified its language. "Stinkard" is a rude, vulgar word, and our big contemporary should have used "stenchard."

OUR CITIZENS.

Three prominent, though new, American citizens will leave Umatilla for Washington in a few days to interview learn for them why an American citizen with a pedigree running back to the time the Mound-builders were driven off by their ancestors, cannot get drunk if he wants to. The three gentlemen are all leaders in their way, the delegation consisting of Old Chief, Chief No Shirt and Chief Billy One Sock. The delegation of the scanty-wardrobe cognomens are really better dressed than their names would imply, for No Shirt wears a double-breasted Prince Albert, with balloon sleeves and a tail that covers his hip-pants, concealing his utter lack of pyjamas. Billy, he of the single socle, like his unfortunate brother, Jerry, of Kansas conceals his paucity of foot underclothing in a pair of galligaskins, and while he would not be in costume for a his tout ensemble is not to be sneezed at.
