New York, July 14.—The first cyclone in many years struck New York today and resulted fatally in one instance, besides wrecking a large amount of property. The cyclone descended upon the upper end of East New York, continued in its way to the lower plains of Long Island, and from there traveled to Woodhaven. The cloud was first seen going over Cypress Hill. It was funnel-shaped and hung very low to the ground. At the upper end was a red spot that appeared more like an incandescent light than anything else. The cyclone swept over the city cemetery, wrecking handsome monuments. It tore down trees for about 200 feet and then turned to Jamaica avenue, at Crescent street. It went up Jamaica avenue for about half a mile. Trees were torn down and telephone and trolley wires demolished. Light in the middle of the wreckage six miles of the Brooklyn & Suburban railroad were caught and were struck when in front of the Stewart home. Half a dozen passengers were injured.

The cyclone wrecked 30 houses at Woodhaven and a very large schoolhouse. There were 50 residents of Woodhaven struck by various objects which were carried through the air. Chimneys tilted through space as though they were no heavier than feathers. At Woodhaven, a woman was sick in bed, and her house was picked up and carried more than a block. Finally, the woman was landed on one side of the street and the house on the other. The woman died a miraculous escape from injury. Mrs. Louisa Kotrenquin, of Third avenue near Rockaway, was killed. She stood in the doorway of her home when a flying beam struck her on the head, crushing in her skull.

Trolley cars in Harlem were blocked for hours by fallen trees and telegraph poles. Several of the big thoroughfares were made impassible for traffic, owing to the network of fallen wires and other obstructions. The florists on the west side of the city and in the annexed districts were the greatest sufferers, losing early all their growing plants, and their conservatories were badly wrecked.

Injured in the Dock.
WASHINGTON, July 13.—The navy department was informed several days ago of the mishap to the Columbia while in the dry docks at Southampton, as reported in the cable dispatches, but for some reason, saw fit to keep the information from the public. Captain Sumner sent two telegrams on the subject. The first reported that the vessel had been strained, and the second after an examination had been made, stated that serious injury been sustained by the vessel. He expected to start homeward today. Officials here are inclined to believe that the vessel has undergone the real damage.

It is inconceivable how a vessel could undergo such heavy strain in a dry dock without receiving great injury, and the fact that the heavy stanchions supporting the protective deck were bent is evidence that she must have been terribly strained. If her bottom plates are buckled, as reported, it will interfere greatly with the speed trial which was looked forward to with so much interest by naval officers, and which was to be today. However, it is said the damage is not irreparable, and when the ship returns, she will probably be placed in good condition again. The accident is ascribed to the navy department to the fact that the dock plates at Southampton are not used to handling naval vessels.

Whirlwind at Woodhaven and Union Course.

WOODHAVEN, R. I., July 13.—Woodhaven Union Course suffered as much as did Cherry Hill, N. J., from the storm. Houses were unroofed and blown down. Only one fatality has been reported, and 16 are injured. The storm at these points was like that of Cherry Hill and Wind. Houses were turned completely over. Harry Smith's hotel, at Union Course station, was badly wrecked. Union Course schoolhouse, a brick building was blown down.

Mrs. Jennie Petriquan, who lived at Union Course with her husband and mother, left her house just as the cyclone swept along. The air was full of flying debris, and she was struck on the head by a rafter and her neck broken. She died instantly. The three-story house and store owned by J. Johnson, on the Rockaway road, was leveled. Twenty-six dwelling-houses were completely wrecked. Most of them were occupied by poor people.

Marvelous results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rivers junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Snipes-Kinersly Drug Co's Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

"O, will he paint me the way I want,
As bonny as a girlie,
Or will he paint me an ugly tyke,
And be d—d to Mr. Nerli
But still and on and whichever it is,
He is a canty Kerlie.
The Lord protect the back and neck
Of honest Mr. Nerli."

This, one of the last verses written by Robert Louis Stevenson, is in reference to the portrait of himself, which is given to the public with this verse for the first time in the July Cosmopolitan. The lines might have come from the pen of Burns, and are inimitable in their way. The portrait was declared by Stevenson himself to be the best ever painted of him. In this same number of The Cosmopolitan Rudyard Kipling tells an Indian story, to which Remington adds charming illustrations; Mrs. Burton Harrison makes a serious study of New York society in "The Myth of the Four Hundred," and Kate Douglas Wiggin contributes a story of one of the most delightful of Welsh retreats. The Cosmopolitan was with this number reduced to ten cents per copy, and as a consequence, notwithstanding its large edition, it was "out of print" on the third day of publication.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address:
