BRIEF MENTION.

Leaves From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

Additional Local on Fourth Page.

This is the most delightful day of the season as regards the weather.

The weather prediction for Saturday and Sunday is fair and warmer.

The Regulator carried away the usual amount of wool this morning—100 bales.

Mr. H. E. Monsar will deliver a lecture this evening at the Christian church.

The head office of the D. P. & A. N. Co is undergoing a renovating treatment on the outside and is being given a coat of paint.

Dr. Lewenberg will leave tomorrow, so the opportunity to see him is growing limited. A large number of citizens are calling every day and receiving benefit from the experienced oculist.

The driving horse belonging to Charles Johnson, of Collins & Co.'s store, died last night at Mosier. The loss will be a severe one, as the animal was a valuable one for which $250 had recently been offered.

The force in the sheriff's office is beginning to make out the delinquent tax roll and those who haven't yet paid their dues to the county will soon have an experience with the levying process of the sheriff.

There will be no preaching services next Sunday at the Methodist church. Arrangements had already been made for a union meeting at the Congregational church in the evening and owing to the absence of the pastor no morning service will be held. The other exercises including Sunday school and the young peoples' society will meet as usual.

It is rumored that one of our most popular county officials is thinking of putting into practical application the oft quoted saying "two souls with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one." There is a little quiet talk going on in official circles and some stealthy preparations among the boys as if something were in the air. But everyone denies knowing anything about it and all there is to do is to wait and see.

The Regulator was crowded with freight last night. Business on the boats continues remarkably good for this time of the year. In transportation it is generally supposed to slacken during the months of July and August, but so far there has been no sign of a diminution. Several days this week the daily amount of freight shipped by the Dalles

City from Portland has exceeded 50 tons. Passenger business has kept pace with the increase in freight traffic.

Several tourists came up on the boat last night, who have journeyed to this part of the country for the purpose of climbing Mt. Hood. Their intention was to leave the boat at Hood River yesterday evening, but when that point was reached the scenery further up the river looked so attractive that they came on to The Dalles and expressed themselves delighted with the trip. They returned to Hood River this morning and will make arrangements of seeing how the world looks from the top of Mt. Hood.

The Fruit Union received today the returns from the cherries which were shipped from The Dalles several days ago. Manager Peakham has been busy this morning distributing the checks among the various men who made the shipments. After all the expenses of boxes, paper and transportation the fruit growers received a net price of 7 1/2 cents a pound for the cherries. A difference was found in the way the different shippers packed their fruit and some received a larger price than others because of better packing. The returns from the peaches will soon begin coming in.

The fruit car that was loaded yesterday started for Chicago last night. The same number of crates were shipped as by the previous car. The total in each shipment being 120 boxes. Those who made consignments last night and the number of boxes from each were: H. Horn, 10; Geo. Snipes, 12; W. H. Taylor, 207; A. S. Bennett, 248; A. Sechler, 6; Alma Taylor, 154; J. T. Lucas, 14; M. D. Farrington, 30; John Wagonblast, 41; A. Y. Marsh, 14; Marshal Hill, 74; A. H. Jewett of White Salmon, 23; Watson of Hood River, 10; Amos Root of Mosier, 150; Robt. Cooper, 133; C. E. Chrisman, 25; Mr. Lane, 17; Linton, 4; Wilhelm, 9.

Messrs. Emil Schanno and Judge Liebe have returned from an overland trip to the Yakima country. They drove from The Dalles and enjoyed the trip heartily. The scenes along the road were familiar to both these gentlemen who have made the trip many times in the days when such a journey was attended with much excitement. Among the places visited was Fort Simcoe, an important station in the Indian times and now the seat of the government agency. There are two roads leading from Goldendale to Yakima, one of which is in good condition, but the other poorly kept. The gentlemen were unfortunate enough to choose the latter road, which allayed the pleasure of their trip somewhat. The land of Yakima they describe in glowing terms and remark upon the wonderful transformation the country has undergone in the last few years.

"Uncle Tom" in a Tent.

The people of The Dalles had an opportunity last night of witnessing what was, without a doubt, the most amazing performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" ever given in this fair city. The stupendous aggregation, duly heralded and advertised, arrived yesterday morning and proceeded to unravel their thirty acres of canvas, more or less, and provide quarters for the ferocious animals of Siberian nationality. The report had gone the rounds that spectators in other places had pronounced the show exceedingly "crummy"—if such an expression could be used—but who ever started such a rumor erred on the side of mildness. Albeit the regulation number of people walked to the ticket office and deposited their entrance money with a look on their faces of mingled anticipation and regret.

The interior of the tent had something the appearance and effect of a circus, but the soft colors of the decorations and the dim religious light which the flickering gas jets afforded, coupled with the solemn faces of people who were just beginning to realize for what their money had been spent, gave to the combination the look of an unsuccessful campmeeting. The painting of the scenery belonged to a period before the renaissance and the scene upon the drop curtain was an enigma to the audience. Some thought it a picture of the Cascade Locks, with a sailing vessel in the background, while to others it seemed the "Gates Ajar," or the entrance into the Columbia river. But the scenery was a paragon of merit compared to the acting. A reporter of THE CHRONICLE, in company with several friends, attended the performance and secured a resting place on a small portion of a plank just outside the reserved seats. But it was not for long, as the peanut boy and program peddler came that way and wished that place as a rest for his feet while he auctioned off his wares to a patient people.

The first act opened with a dining-room scene in which Eliza crossed the river on the ice. Several dogs of reputed ferocity, each one having a man attached to its collar, walked across the stage in pursuit of Eliza, who, had she known the character of her pursuers, would have felt perfectly secure.

Then came an intensely exciting scene in which Lawyer Marks showed a wonderful capacity for storing away liquors and drank a bottle empty without breathing. The audience was tumultuous in their applause at this gigantic feat and many men were heard to remark that they wished they had Marks' tank. This capacity was really astounding. After Marks was through drinking he began an explanation of who he was and how he came to be there. Then it was time to drink again, which pleased the audience immensely, because Marks with his mouth full of the small end of a bottle was a much better actor than when free to talk. There are some other characters in the play, but as so many of his acquaintances had left, THE CHRONICLE reporter was getting lonely and so he too arose and like the Arab, silently stole away. The remainder of the show might have been good, and if it was, we apologize to the management for these few remarks; but it would take a Joseph Jefferson, or Edwin Booth or the leading man of the Home Dramatic club during the rest of the evening to redeem the show from what it was the first act and a half.

We are glad to praise when we can, so it may truthfully be said the music was good. The band on the street played well, and had there been nothing but the band the audience would have been better pleased.
