BRIEF MENTION.

Leaves From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

Additional Local on Fourth Page.

Eight cars of stock from Heppner passed through The Dalles this morning bound for Troutdale.

Wednesday and Thursday will be fair and warmer, according to the weather prophecy received from Portland today.

The Regulator company's office is adorned with an elegant new sign, which is a fine piece of artistic skill. It attracts attention from passers by.

The pile driver belonging to The Dalles Portland & Astoria Navigation company is being put in good repair for operations, which will begin shortly.

There will be a meeting of the fire board this evening in the council chambers. Every member is asked to be present. The meeting is called for 8:30.

Martin Engman, the young man who met with the terrible accident near 5-Mile, by which he lost his hand, went to Portland this morning, where he will enter the hospital.

The returns from the cherries, which were shipped from The Dalles July 12, arrived this morning and the fruit growers, who had consignments in that car, are receiving checks today.

The fruit car from Portland, which was expected to arrive on the local this morning will not come till the night train. The load will be completed here tomorrow and sent to the Eastern market.

Three hundred boxes of peaches left The Dalles on an early train this morning for Portland. Besides these, thirty-six crates of cantaloupes were shipped. The Dalles is taking high rank as one of the foremost fruit shipping points in Oregon.

The funeral services of Chester, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Bolton, took place this afternoon from the residence of Mr. Bolton's mother. The services were attended by a large number of sympathizing friends of the bereaved father and mother.

The exodus from the city to the seashore and mountains will soon cease, and then the tide of travel will turn the other way and each train and boat bring back suburban citizens, who have been digging clams by the sounding sea, or resting in the shade of the tall firs.

Balle Johnson, the accommodating telegraph operator of the Western Union, has been granted a leave of absence by the company, and left today for a visit to his former home in Oregon

City, and then for a trip to the seashore. While absent his position will be filled by Mr. F. DeParcy, who, with his family, have come from Portland.

The Good Templars of Dalles Lodge, No. 2, will give a lawn social in the Academy park, on Saturday evening, Aug. 17th. As a visit, the Academy park will be a pleasure, and since the Good Templars are noted for their social entertainments, this will be one of the most pleasant events of the season. All are invited to come and have a good time. An amusing program will be arranged and refreshments served for the low sum of 15 cents.

The Elks are counting on having a grand time at their next meeting at Cascade Locks. Several people from The Dalles, who want horns put upon them, are candidates for initiatory exercises. All the members of the lodge who reside in this city will go along as escorts of honor. It is not yet known how the trip will be made. If a sufficient number goes, and the hours can be arranged, the Regulator will probably be chartered. Otherwise the party will go by train.

Another runaway came nearly being recorded this morning. The team of George E. Teal was standing quietly in front of THE CHRONICLE office, when one of the horses remembered that it had been several days since The Dalles had seen a runaway and started to jump, kick and perform all sorts of queer antics. It broke the traces, and in spite of the efforts of a plucky boy, who held the lines, would have broke away had not the owner rushed out and stopped the animal and also a longer item.

Manager J. W. Condon, of the Siefert-Condon Telephone Company, came in today from the front. The workmen are making rapid progress. The poles are now in position as far as Boyd, while the wire is stretched to 8-Mile. By the end of the week connections will be made with Dufur, and the first telephone communication between The Dalles and any of the interior county towns will have been accomplished. There are no obstacles to delay the work, and the soil proves easy digging. The benefits derived from this enterprise will be very great, and when the line is extended farther south and connected with other places, business dealings with The Dalles will be greatly increased.

The boat company have decided to build a large dock and warehouse on the river front. At the last meeting of the board of directors the scheme was agreed upon. Plans have been drawn for a building 250 long and 60 feet wide. The structure, which will be as large in floor surface as the largest building in town, will be erected on the open ground back of the present company's offices and will reach past the Cosmopolitan Hotel. The piles have been ordered from Cascade Locks and will arrive some time this week, when active operations will be begun. Mr. Hugh Glenn has been appointed to take charge of the work. It is the intention of the management of the boat line that other steamers, which will reach The Dalles when the locks are through, can find a landing place at the D. P. & A. N. Co.'s dock and storage room in the new warehouse, which will be convenient for the discharge of freight to and from steamers. This move is made absolutely necessary by the increase of business carried by the Regulator and Dalles City and the still further increase looked for when the locks shall be through.

The examination of Bluford Douglas was concluded yesterday afternoon before Justice Davis. The defendant was held to await the action of the grand jury in bonds to the sum of $300. The case occupied most of the afternoon, and was closely contested. Frank Watkins, George Molloy and Art Barnham were the witnesses for the prosecution. Watkins was the one from whom, according to the evidence, the horse was obtained, and Molloy the man to whom it was sold. Barnham testified as to giving the defendant a saddle, which, it was claimed, Douglas sold to Molloy. The defendant moved to dismiss the charge on account of insufficiency of evidence; but the motion was overruled. The question was then argued as to whether the justice had jurisdiction to pronounce sentence, as it was a case of larceny by bailee. The court decided it did not and that the justice acted only in the capacity of committing magistrate. Douglas was taken to the county jail, and up to this time had not furnished bonds.

Interview With Mr. Lord.

Mr. W. Lord of The Dalles, while in Portland Sunday was interviewed by an Oregonian reporter and made some interesting statements regarding the growing greatness of The Dalles as a wool center. Mr. Lord is manager of the Wasco warehouse and well qualified to speak on the subject. During the course of the interview Mr. Lord said:

The Dalles is getting to be the largest wool market in the country. An immense territory, increasing in area each season, is tributary to it. Our company alone has handled, this season, over 3,700,000 pounds of wool from actual growers. In all not less than 5,000,000 pounds have been handled at The Dalles this season. We tapped the Bickleton county away out beyond Goldendale. Condon and Arlington have also shipped their product to The Dalles. Next year they will hitch up a lot of teams and bring the Heppner product to the same market. Wool has brought, at The Dalles this year, 2 cents a pound more than at any other market in Eastern Oregon and Washington. This was due to the fact that the heaviest buyers make their headquarters at that point, and also because of the cheaper transportation. The freight on wool per 100 pounds from Heppner to Boston, where all the wool is shipped, is $1.80, while from The Dalles it is only $0.90 to $1.00. The steamers do it. You see, the Southern Pacific has an arrangement with the Columbia river steamers, which brings the rate from The Dalles down to the figure stated.
