A Big Job

It would be a big job to tell one hundred people every day anything that would interest them in your goods.

It's Dead Easy

If done the right way. This paper will tell several thousand at once.

WOOL GROWERS ASSOCIATION.

President William Lawrence, of the National Wool Growers Association, has issued a call for a meeting of the association to be held December 4, 1895, at the Ebbitt House, Washington, to take measures to secure wool tariff provisions on any revenue bill that may be passed by congress. The subject is one of vital interest to wool growers, and in order to let the wool men of Eastern Oregon know that a strong effort is being made to right, in some measure, the grievous wrong which democratic legislation has committed, we publish the following address. It is doubtful if the coming congress will grant any relief. The election of 1896 and the acts of the consequent congress furnish the only hope of permanent relief for the wool growers. Following is the body of the address issued with the call.

The president will, of necessity, recommend an increase of revenues. The suggestion of an increase of the tax on beer should be resisted. It is a dodge to avoid tariff revenues to be paid by foreigners. The revenue on beer should be left to the states. The suggestion for short time interest-bearing treasury notes is another dodge. It is disgraceful to increase the public debt. A large majority of the representatives elected to the present congress favor protection. The people have repudiated the Wilson-Gorman free wool act. It is believed a majority of the senate will concur in a tariff bill passed by the house. Now is the time to strike.

Wool growers have a right to know if congress will meet the popular will; whether manufacturers now enjoying protection will aid in securing justice for wool growers. Wool growers will not consent to delay. The position of candidates for the presidency and for congress next year must be known in advance. The suggestion that the president may veto any revenue bill with wool tariff is a cowardly surrender in advance. If the president will not approve, or at least permit, a bill to become a law, as he did the Wilson-Gorman bill, he must take the responsibility and the consequences. Duties on wool are a good source of revenue. The government derived revenues from duties on wool under the McKinley act as follows:

1890	$5,400,885	32
1891	6,552,257	54
1892	7,779,085	63
1893	8,147,220	39

The Wilson-Gorman act, by giving protective duties on cotton manufactures, rice, sugar and some other products, and by placing wool on the free list, made an odious, unjust discrimination against wool growers. Under the new law the imports of shoddy, noils, wastes and other adulterants, in the year ended August 31, 1895, were 17,066,583 pounds, displacing more than 50,000,000 of American morino wool—more than the entire wool product of Texas and California.

These wrongs must be righted, and now is the time to act.

In view of the many foolish things Attorney Deprey has said in connection with the Durrant case, it is refreshing to read of one good one. In commenting upon his colleague's argument, Mr. Deuprey said: "His argument was admirable. He showed that he understood the intelligence of the jury by eliminating all oratorical flights and all bouquet-throwing. He plunged at once into the argument, and his line of thought was remarkably sustained and accurate throughout." If Mr. Deuprey had used the same judgment in his opening address to the jury, wherein he stated that the defense would, in but a short while, introduce evidence that would incontrovertibly show the innocence of Durrant, his statements would not have had the boomerang effect which they did produce. The jury was led to believe that some startling evidence in favor of the defendant was to be expected, and when it did not come the discrepancy tended to incline their minds against the defendant. Durrant may not be convicted, but his innocence has not in the least been proven.

Shrewd political observers make the guess that Grover Cleveland means to stand in the same relation to his countrymen as did George Washington, and go down in history as the man who declined the nomination for the third term. It is not at all unlikely that Cleveland will be nominated, and, if he is, his declination will follow. Cleveland is too shrewd a politician to miss this chance of bringing to himself the everlasting fame and glory his administration has failed to get for him.

H. H. Holmes, now on trial in Philadelphia, charged with many murders, has discharged his attorneys and is conducting his own case. If he succeeds in acquitting himself, his reputation as the greatest lawyer in the country will be made, and a new procedure in criminal trials established.

The people of Antelope are to be treated to a dramatic performance, Nov. 29th, when the "Old Homestead" will be put upon the boards by the Antelope Dramatic Club. The program which has just been issued from the Herald office, gives the synopsis of the play and cast of characters. The proceeds of the performance will be applied to the purchase of a fine set of brass band instruments and the announcement says "great care has been used in selecting the cast of characters, music, costumes, stage settings, etc., and no pains should be spared to make this the greatest and most elaborate dramatic performance ever given in Eastern Oregon." The character of Joshua Whitcomb will be impersonated by E. J. Gilson, while Fred N. Wallace will act the part of "Happy Jack." E. M. Shutt, the editor of the Antelope Herald, will appear as "Judge Patterson" and also play the part of "Len Holbrook," a country fiddler with but one tune. The performance will conclude with a grand ball. Tickets, including supper, $1.50.

Mr. J. K. Fowler, secretary and treasurer of the Corinne Mill, Canal and Stock Co., of Corinne, Utah, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy says: "I consider it the best in the market. I have used many kinds but find Chamberlain's the most prompt and effectual in giving relief, and now keep no other in my home." When troubled with a cough or cold give this remedy a trial and we assure you that you will be more than pleased with the results. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggists.

Any doctor will tell you that Professor Hare, of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, is one of the highest authorities in the world on the action of drugs. In his last work, speaking of the treatment of scrofula, he says:

"It is hardly necessary to state that cod-liver oil is the best remedy of all. The oil should be given in emulsion, so prepared as to be palatable."

He also says that the hypophosphites should be combined with the oil.

Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil, with hypophosphites, is precisely such a preparation.
