A Big Job

It would be a big job to tell one hundred people every day anything that would interest them in your goods.

It's Dead Easy

If done the right way. This paper will tell several thousand at once.

IN UNION THERE IS STRENGTH

Whatever line of procedure is good for one city is generally good for another, especially when it is founded upon recognized principles of common sense. Each city of Oregon is in the race for greatness, and is planning how best it can attract outside capital and inhabitants. No place can prosper to any great extent while it is torn with internal dissensions, and no truer words were ever spoken than "A house divided against itself cannot stand." The following from the East Oregonian contains good advice, and every city whose elements are not well united should apply to itself these words, which the East Oregonian addresses to Pendleton:

Let's keep busy; not busy fighting and squabbling, but busy pulling together for mutual profit. Let's love our neighbors, let's take the advice of Plutarch: "A man should not allow himself to hate even his enemies, because if you indulge this passion on some occasions, it will arise of itself on others. If you hate your enemies, you will contract such a vicious habit of mind as by degrees will break out upon those who are your friends or those who are indifferent to you." This was the wisdom of Plutarch. He was a great fellow and accomplished a great deal.

Suppose every man in Pendleton possessed the spirit of Plutarch. Why, we would have a mighty inland city here; a city of happy homes and busy workshops. We can have it. All we have to do is to make a strong pull, a long pull, a pull together, and 'keep everlastingly at it.' Now, fellow-citizens, begin this good work by loving your enemies; by forgetting and forgiving the petty differences of the past; subdue prejudices by association, by rubbing up against one another. The profit derived from doing these things will surprise you. The wealth of Golconda is not equal to it. Men who can do such things are big-hearted, big-minded, and always very happy.

A man who loves himself very much, who is stuck on himself, is very apt to hate his fellowmen and learn to believe that they are in his way of accomplishing something, and such impressions are the greatest barrier in the path of general prosperity. We should not have such in Pendleton. Even if Pendleton is a small town, with small buildings and small businesses, it can have big ideas, and it is big ideas that accomplish big things and make men enjoy life. The smallest minded thing always has the worst time. Let's make Pendleton big minded.

LONDON WOOL SALES.

One of the latest reports of the London wool sales, that of J. S. Blomfield, dated London, September 27, 1895, said:

The English have shown themselves the keenest buyers, Yorkshire, and particularly Bradford, having been the most busily employed of all the very busy manufacturing districts throughout Europe. The French, who stood aside last series, and whose stocks are supposed to be very bare just now, are also eager operators, while the German representatives are acting with more reserve.

London is the wool market of the world. From this report, says the Economist, it is evident that the woolen manufacturers of England are "the most busily employed of all the very busy manufacturing districts throughout Europe." There is nothing in this report saying that the American manufacturers are "the most busily employed."

It is probable that the activity of our manufacturers would be more noted in the shoddy markets as, under our present tariff we are unable to supply our home market with woolen goods of a quality similar to those made in England at the same price. The Gorman tariff is an excellent thing for Yorkshire and for European rag pickers. The American wool industry it has practically destroyed, and the chances are that the American woolen manufacturing industry will, before long, be in as impoverished a condition as are the wool growers.

The attorneys for the defense in the Durrant case have finished their arguments, and when the district attorney closes the prosecution and the judge's charge is delivered, the jury will retire to deliberate upon a verdict. As the great case draws to a close, the interest in the outcome and speculation upon the verdict increases. It is absolutely impossible to forecast the verdict of twelve men, removed from all influences save the law and the facts; but the majority of opinion is that either conviction will be secured or a disagreement will result. The case seems too strong against the defendant to admit of the jury rendering a verdict of not guilty; yet in the minds of some not strong enough to warrant conviction. It is to be hoped the suspected man will either be found guilty or acquitted, as a disagreement and a re-trial would be more than the finances of San Francisco and the patience of the reading public can stand.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS.

Pendleton Tribune: The boom which visited the Puget Sound country some six years ago has proven almost as disastrous to that section of Washington as if visited by a Kansas cyclone. What the disastrous effects of a real estate boom failed to accomplish, has been successfully carried out by speculating officials.

Baker City Democrat: The Oregon farmer can find profit and satisfactory results in producing pork and beef from his surplus wheat, and save the fertility of the soil by so doing. There is profit in raising hogs which can be placed in market at eight months old weighing 200 or more, while one taking twelve months to reach that weight causes a loss.

Spokesman Review: If there ever was occasion in the life of the nation for a readjustment of the tariff, that occasion is now before the country. Naturally the democracy wishes to drop the tariff from national issues, because it has demonstrated its inability to deal with that question. But workmen out of employment, and manufacturers without orders, and farmers who prefer a better market, and wool growers who have been driven abroad for a market, will take a different view of it.

A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it, if procurable. G. A. Dykeman Druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottle at Sulpes-Kinerslys Drug Co.'s Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

Saturday evening the Good Templars of Dalles lodge, No. 2, will give a public installation of their officers for the quarter commencing November 1st. A night cap social will be held in connection with the installation. Each lady is expected to bring two night caps and a basket of refreshments, which will be sold to the highest bidder. A rousing time is anticipated, as this is the first public installation given for some time. An invitation is extended to all.

your child

You note the difference in children. Some have nearly every ailment, even with the best of care. Others far more exposed pass through unharmed. Weak children will have continuous colds in winter, poor digestion in summer. They are without power to resist disease, they have no reserve strength. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil, with hypophosphites, is cod-liver oil partly digested and adapted to the weaker digestions of children.
