ROYALISTS PLOTTING

Planning to Restore the Brazilian Monarchy.

KNOWN IMPERIALISTS INVOLVED

The Eternal City Gets a Severe Shaking-Up--Some Palaces Badly Damaged--News Notes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The Herald's correspondent in Rio Janeiro telegraphs that the government, through the interception of telegrams sent to Europe, has discovered a plot to restore the monarchy in Brazil. The headquarters of the conspiracy is in San Paulo, with branches in Rio Janeiro, Bahia and other cities. Telegrams addressed to Comte de Eu and other prominent persons in Europe, and sent by Henry Lowndes and Comte Leopoldina, are in the hands of the government.

Papers comprising several persons who were governors of states under the imperial regime, have been found, and orders for the arrest of prominent imperialists have been issued.

ROME SHAKEN UP.

Great Panic in the Eternal City, but No Lives Lost.

ROME, Nov. 1.—A severe and prolonged earthquake shock was felt here at 4:38 this morning. Many houses swayed badly, walls cracked and pictures fell from walls. The people ran panic-stricken into the streets, and a serious disaster was apprehended. Happily the first shock seems to have ended the subterranean disturbance without serious damage. Some idea of the alarm created may be gathered from the fact that prisoners broke out in open revolt and tried to escape. The vatican buildings were severely shaken, but the pope was perfectly tranquil. He sent to the nearest police depot to inquire if there had been any loss of life or serious damage.

The series of shocks lasted 11 seconds. Two clocks in the observatory were stopped and the old tower of the Roman college cracked. Two houses collapsed and it is reported several persons are injured. Four palaces and the Bank of Italy are uninhabitable. The Pallacio Odeschalcie and five other palaces are seriously injured. The vatican buildings, the Quirinal, the main railroad station and the ministry offices are also reported to have sustained some damage.

THE PENALTY IS DEATH.

Durrant Convicted of the Murder of Blanche Lamont.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Theodore Durrant, assistant superintendent of the Emanuel Baptist church Sunday school, was today convicted of the murder of Blanche Lamont, for which he has been on trial since July 22 last. The jury was out 20 minutes, and arrived at the verdict on the first ballot. As there was no recommendation of mercy, the punishment was fixed at death.

It was exactly 21 minutes from the time the jury left the courtroom to the time the verdict was announced, but that time was all taken up in deliberation. In fact, there was no deliberation at all. The jury had evidently decided upon a verdict before they left the box. It was 3:34 when they filed out of the courtroom into the grand jury room which had been placed at their disposal. It took the 12 men until 3:50 o'clock before they settled themselves comfortably, and at 3:55 a knock on the door announced to the anxious waiters that a verdict had been found. It took just five minutes of actual time to elect a foreman and take the one ballot necessary.

The scene in the courtroom when the verdict was announced will never be forgotten by those who were present. Judge Murphy finished his charge at 3:30, and the jury at once retired. Although there was supposed to be little prospect of a verdict being returned before 7 or 8 o'clock in the evening, the throng of spectators, who had remained in the overcrowded courtroom all the afternoon to hear the judge's charge, settled themselves back in their seats to await the return of the jury. Mrs. Durrant and the prisoner talked and laughed together as if an acquittal were a foregone conclusion. They were joined by half a dozen friends, and the conversation was becoming animated, when it became whispered about that the jury had agreed upon a verdict.

In an instant a hush fell upon the little circle that had gathered around the prisoner. Durrant's face, always pale, assumed a ghastly hue, and his mother was speechless. Then the big doors at the rear of the room opened, and the members of the jury filed in and took their seats in the box.

In the intense excitement which followed, the room, although it was filled to its utmost capacity, was almost as quiet as if it had been vacant. Judge Murphy, who had retired to his chambers, was summoned, and took his place upon the bench. Clerk Morris asked the usual question, as to whether the jury had agreed upon a verdict. Foreman Warren Dutton arose and replied in the affirmative, saying:

"We, the jury, find the defendant, William Henry Theodore Durrant, guilty of murder in the first degree."

As the aged foreman, pale and trembling, read the words which fixed Durrant's fate, a low rumbling noise like the roar of a mob arose from the rear of the courtroom. The next moment, men were cheering wildly, while women hysterically wept in their excitement. The bailiff rapped loudly for order, but the tumult continued for a minute before anything like quiet could be brought out of the disorder. Then District Attorney Barnes arose and asked that a day be set upon which the sentence of death should be passed upon the prisoner. Judge Murphy said that sentence would be passed next Friday, upon which day he would also set the day for the trial of Durrant on the charge of murdering Minnie Williams.

During the tumult which followed the announcement of the verdict, Durrant and his mother were lost sight of, except by the few who sat near them. As the last words of the verdict were uttered, Durrant made a spasmodic effort to arise to his feet, but before he could do so, his mother, with a half sigh, half moan, threw her arms around his neck and sank back into her chair. His mother's grief seemed to make Durrant forget his own position, and for the next few minutes he sat with his arms around her neck, trying to soothe her. The long strain, however, had completely shattered her self-control, and it was some time before Mrs. Durrant could leave the courtroom.

When Your CAKE Is All Dough

When your cake is heavy, soggy, indigestible, it's a pretty sure sign that you didn't shorten it with Cottolene. When this great shortening is rightly used, the result will surely satisfy the most fastidious. Always remember that the quality of Cottolene makes a little of it go a long way. It's willful waste to use more than two-thirds as much as you would of lard or butter. Always use Cottolene this way and your cake and pastry will always be light, wholesome, delicious.

Genuine COTTOLENE is sold everywhere in tin, with trade-mark "Cottolene" and also in bulk in cotton-plant wreath—on every tin.
