THE ELECTION RESULTS.

The republicans have cause to feel well satisfied with yesterday's elections. The results are more satisfactory than ever the most sanguine anticipated.

The statements made so freely by democratic papers that the majorities this year would be greatly reduced, have not been verified and the disgust of the people for the policies of the present administration is plainly seen.

SYMPATHY FOR ARMENIANS.

The Duke of Westminster has written to "invoke the sympathy of the great republic with the suffering Armenians, now in dire distress from treatment received and still receiving at the hands of the Turkish government.

We earnestly hope some way will be found by the powers that be to respond to this appeal, that all the civilized governments of the world will unite, that the "unpeakable Turk" may be restrained from a continuance of these iniquities, and that the guarantees that they shall not be repeated, shall be worth something.

Dr. J. Hunter Wells writes from Seoul to the Medical Record under date of August 19th, 1895, in reference to the epidemic of cholera there. In one month there were 6000 deaths, in a population of 350,000. This ratio applied to New York City would be about 8000 in one week.

Patrick Henry Winston, an attorney of Spokane and formerly United States attorney for Washington, has written a book entitled "American Catholics and the A. P. A." The American News Company has refused to handle the publication, on the ground of not wishing to be mixed up in this rather delicate question.

Senator Sherman, who has lived longer and seen more of American politics than probably any other statesman now living, made the following remark in a recent speech at Massillon, Ohio: "I believe if the republican policy since the war had been maintained uninterrupted by the present administration, and the McKinley law had remained in force, subject to such changes as time proved necessary, the recent financial disturbance would not have occurred and the entire interest-bearing debt of the United States would have been paid in full before the close of the century."

COMMENT ON THE VANDERBILT-MARLBOROUGH WEDDING.

East Oregonian: Now that the Durrant trial is ended, Murderer Holmes has been convicted, Jim Corbett's and Fitzsimmon's jaws have ceased to wag, the readers of daily newspapers have but one thing to cause "that tired feeling" and that is the approaching wedding of an American filly named Vanderbilt to a descendant of a worn-out race of thoroughbreds and good-for-nothings.

Evening Telegram: When the duke steams away with his bride and her ducats a brief respite from Vanderbiltism may reasonably be looked for by the readers of American newspapers. Inventive genius has not yet (thank heaven!) devised a means of keeping the people ashore in constant communication with the ocean liners, so, until the newly-wedded couple reach the other side their movements must go unrecorded.

Spokesman Review: What vulgar curiosity this Marlborough-Vanderbilt wedding is calling into display! But since it affords entertainment for the shallow and the frivolous, and the recipients mistake it for homage, and since all concerned seem to be happy, why let go as evidence of a great and growing civilization, which always carries with it a lot of folly and ill-bred ostentation.
