The band belonging to Mahara's Minstrels appeared upon the street at noon today and played several selections in a charming manner. The band is an uncommonly fine one and the pieces played were difficult. The Grand selection from the Opera "Erminie" gave the band an opportunity to do some good work and they did it.

Word has just come to town that a lot of hay on the Porter place, a few miles from Antelope, was burned day before yesterday. Phil Brogan lost between seventy and eighty tons, which he was saving for the winter feeding. Tracks were seen leading from the stacks, and the despicable miscreants have been tracked and parties are now in pursuit. This is the first occurrence of this kind near Antelope, though similar burnings have been frequent near Mitchell. It is hard to understand how a man can be so mean as to set fire to a neighbor's haystack, but so it seems. It is to be hoped that some of the offenders may be caught, and such an example made of them that others will be prevented from imitating them.

The lecture given by Dr. G. W. Gue at the Armory last night was very largely attended, it being estimated that over 400 people were in the hall. Dr. Gue was introduced by J. M. Patterson, Esq. and for over an hour entertained his hearers. The address was what might be called an "off-hand" one, being free from any attempt at oratory yet full of power. At times the speaker rose to eloquence. Dr. Gue is an old soldier and loves the American flag, and all that it means, with an enthusiasm delightful to see. His address last evening was patriotic to the core and made a deep impression upon the audience. During the course of his remarks he told some amusing anecdotes of army life with which the old soldiers present could sympathize. Dr. Gue returned to Portland this morning.

FLAG DAY EXERCISES.

The Public Schools Capture the Town--The Armory Crowded to Witness the Exercises.

Yesterday the city was turned over to the students of our public schools. Long before the hour for the exercises to begin people were wending their way to the armory, and by the time the children were in their seats the large building was taxed to its utmost capacity. Many seats had been provided, but as it was, a great number of people were compelled to stand. The stage was beautifully decorated with American flags, while upon the platform were seated the members of the Relief Corps, with the president of the state corps, Mrs. Myers, and Dr. Gue, who had been invited to deliver an address. The audience was in high anticipation of an interesting afternoon, and when Prof. Gavin announced the first number upon the program there was quiet in every part of the building.

The exercises opened with the song "Our Flag and Union Forever." Miss Ethel Deming sang the solo, assisted in the chorus by the high school quartette. Walter Reavis recited "The American Flag" in a manner that brought rounds of applause from the audience. In expression of feeling, in voice, gesture and pronunciation the young gentleman was well nigh perfect, and brought upon himself the warmest commendation from his hearers. A song, "Patriotic Glee" by four small girls and a recitation giving the history of the flag were pleasing numbers upon the program. The singing by thirty-five primary pupils of the "Red, White and Blue" stirred the deep impulses of the audience. To bear the little tots singing the grand old anthem and see each one waving the stars and stripes was enough to stir the blood of the most lethargic. To the old soldiers present the song had especial significance. The recitation, "Devotion to the Flag," by six boys and "The Flag Drill" by twenty-four boys and "The Flag of Our Ancestors," pleased the audience immensely. The pleasant task fell upon Mrs. Mary Scott Myers, state president of the W. R. C., of presenting, in behalf of the corps, the flags to the school. Mrs. Myers' address of presentation was exceedingly felicitous in expression and delivered with fine effect. Prof. Gavin received the flags on behalf of the schools in a well expressed speech of thanks. When Prof. Gavin had concluded, Dr. Gue, of Portland, was introduced and was compelled to remain silent for some time till the applause had subsided. Dr. Gue spoke only a short time but although brief his address was eloquent. He told of how the flag was being honored today and how different the scene was when in 1861 the stars and stripes suffered dishonor. Dr. Gue's address was well received. After the chorus "Home Sweet Home," melodiously sung by the High School Quartet, came the costume dialogue, "Liberty Seeking a Home," which was a very pretty tableau. Miss Ann Mann took the part of the goddess of liberty, while the remaining impersonations were as follows: America, Virgie Cooper; China, Grace Hobson; Spanish, Pearl Dean; Russia, Hattie Marden; India, Myrtle Stone; Germany, Beulah Sterling; Scotland, Florence Sampson; France, Maud Gilbert; Ireland, Lilian Snell; Japan, Hattie Cram. The old favorite "Star Spangled Banner" was sung and then came a pleasing recitation "The Schoolhouse and the Flag" by Grover Young, which was followed by a sweet recitation by Little Lena Sexton. The sash drill by seven girls was a very pretty movement and the grace and ease with which the figures were gone through with showed natural accomplishments and careful training. The participants in the drill were Edna Glenn, Bessie French, Bessie Rowland, Lizzie Schooling, Georgia Sampson, Hattie Marden and Eda Fisher.
