A SUMMING UP.

Today marks the close of a year, which, from a commercial and financial standpoint, has been a very successful one for The Dalles. In looking back over the twelve months, whose days are at an end, many and substantial improvements are noticed. As a rule business men have prospered. There have been changes among our merchants—some have sold out, and one or two death has visited; but none have been unable to continue business through lack of prosperity. This showing is a very good one. In a year upon which the tail end of a severe panic rests, to have no withdrawals from business due to failure, is to declare that the commercial life of The Dalles draws its sustenance from healthful sources. Many of our business men have enlarged their interests. Larger stocks and more varied are being carried than were a year ago, and the balancing of the books will show that prudence, foresight and economy have been rewarded. To the list of stores at the beginning of the year new ones have been added. The fame of The Dalles as a good business point has gone widely abroad, and men from other towns after coming here and looking over the ground, have cast their lot with us.

Our public schools have been a source of satisfaction and good to the town. Under the management of the present principal and corps of teachers a high standard has been maintained, and many pupils from neighboring counties and different places in this county have been attracted to The Dalles because of its educational advantages. The number of families who for this reason make this city their winter home, is large, and the results, from intellectual, social and financial standpoints, can be easily discerned.

Our population has been much increased. This can be told by the fact that about forty new dwellings have been built this year, and yet every residence is occupied. The city has gained much in appearance by the residences that have been built. They are modern in plan, and built not only for comfort, but to please a discriminating eye.

The prosperity which has attended the Dalles, Portland and Astoria Navigation Company is a cause of rejoicing to every citizen. During the year, soon at an end, the Regulator and Dalles City have done a large and lucrative business. During the past season many tons of wool and wheat were taken by boat from The Dalles to Portland, there to be shipped East. A ten per cent dividend was declared last summer, which added $3,800 to the cash capital of the town. Instead of swelling the coffers of a foreign corporation, the money which shippers pay to the Regulator line comes again into circulation at home. The building of a mammoth warehouse, 250x60 feet, shows that the business of the D. P. & A. N. Co. is expanding.

Socially this year has been a pleasant one. Frequent gatherings have served to bring the people closer together and establish kindly feelings. By no means can the The Dalles be said to be lacking in amusements, and its residents and those who visit it find many means of passing pleasant hours. The starting of the Commercial and Athletic Club will have many opportunities to be of service to the community.

With 1895 closes a satisfactory year for The Dalles. Its advances have been steady. No boom has ever visited the town; we want none. The future is brighter than the past has ever been; the possibilities are unlimited. All that is needed is a unity of purpose in working for the city's good. Petty factions must be laid aside, and every citizen work and labor to make The Dalles what Nature intended—the permanent metropolis and chief commercial city of Eastern Oregon.

Portland is to have a one-cent daily. The Argus, a paper now issued on Sunday, makes the announcement that soon after the new year it will begin the publication of a daily for the price mentioned. In view of the disastrous outcomes which have attended opposition papers in Portland, it takes a great deal of hope and courage to start even a five-cent paper, to say nothing of one for a cent. We doubt if Portland is metropolitan enough to support the venture.

The best thing that will happen to this country in 1896 is the election next November. Compared to the political overturning that will then take place, the landlides of '94 and '95 will be insignificant. The coming year will be memorable as marking the time when the American people passed from under the dark shadow of Democratic misgovernment.

A statement of the value of declared exports from the consular district of Bradford to the United States during the month of November, 1895, and comparing it with November, 1894, shows a net increase of the former month over the latter of $1,026,575. This is but a drop in the bucket in the great export trade which England carries on with the United States.

THE CHRONICLE joins with everyone in wishing everyone else a Happy New Year. To our city the coming year should be the brightest of all the number in its history. At the close of 1895 we hope the bright anticipations that now we hold may be chronicled as realization.

The Regulator left this morning for her last trip to the Cascades till after a season of rest, during which extensive repairs will be made upon the boat. These will occupy at least a month. The arrangements are completed for taking the steamer out of the river and giving a general overhauling and repairing. Several years of hard and steady work have made such repairs necessary. Many people took advantage of the steamer's last trip to visit the Locks and the decks contained a crowd of passengers as the boat backed away from the dock. About twenty young ladies made up an excursion party to the Locks and they started off in high glee. The day promised to be a stormy one, but we will warrant the young people will manage to have a good time anyhow. The stopping of the boat, while it is a stern necessity, will not be very welcome to the dwellers on the Washington side of the river, and they will listen to the first sound of the Regulator's whistle with pleasure when regular trips are begun again.

your child

You note the difference in children. Some have nearly every ailment, even with the best of care. Others far more exposed pass through unharmed. Weak children will have continuous colds in winter, poor digestion in summer. They are without power to resist disease, they have no reserve strength. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil, with hypophosphites, is cod-liver oil partly digested and adapted to the weaker digestions of children.
