INCREASE MILITARY STRENGTH

Now that the appointment of the Venezuela commission has been made and the country is satisfied with the men selected, there will be a diminution of war-talk for a time. The examination which the committee is to make will occupy a lengthy period of time, and till their report is made no further action will be taken at Washington. So in the great rush of events the attention of people will be turned to other themes, and the issue raised by the promulgating of the Monroe doctrine will for a while, at least, be allowed to slumber. In the meantime some of the lessons which the late flurry of impending war excitement has taught, should not be overlooked. The country has shown it is not lacking in that quality of patriotism which is so necessary to continued prosperous existence. From all over the land came hearty offers of men to wage the country's battles, and within a short time an army could have been raised the counterpart, in numbers, of Mexico's host.

Another fact which has been painfully impressed upon observing people is the critical condition of our means of offense and defense. Since President Cleveland's message was announced attention has been strongly attracted to the military conditions attending this country in the event of a foreign war. The consensus of opinion is that our condition is lamentably weak, and no time should be lost in rectifying the errors which our legislators have committed in allowing our sea coast defenses to fall into the deplorable state in which they are, and in not raising our army and navy to a point of greater usefulness in conflict. Among the many who have studied this matter, none have done so more carefully than Colonel Jackson, of the regular army, now stationed in Portland. In a recent address Colonel Jackson said:

"Patriotism of itself will not save the republic; coupled with it must be power. Weakness for defense or offense is another, and perhaps the greatest menace to the permanence of the republic.

"Among the 'great military powers' rank and consideration are accorded in proportion to the ability of a nation to defend itself, or its interests, and to inflict injury in these respects upon other nations. It does not need much research in ancient or modern history to know that weak governments have received, but little consideration and short shift when their interests or existence ran counter to those of strong military powers. Current history, with which you are all familiar, shows us that the world is no better in this respect today than in the past.

"At the close of the civil war this country was rated as one of the most powerful of nations. Nothing but our great war strength and willingness to use it induced the British government to consent to arbitration in the Alabama claims, and when we declared that the Monroe doctrine would be enforced, and sent 70,000 veterans to the Texas frontier, France took the hint and retired from Mexico. Does any one suppose that within ten years of the close of the civil war Great Britain would have neglected or repeatedly expressed wish to have the Venezuela boundary question submitted to arbitration, or have persisted in the seizure of territory in a friendly republic, or in the extension of the boundaries of British Columbia in Alaska?

"The nation that would survive in a world where force is law, must itself be the most forceful, and there is no disguising the fact that we are dangerously weak as compared with other nations; neither is there any doubt that the great military powers will not hesitate to take advantage of any weakness of ours to hamper our progress and despoil our commerce to their own advantage; that also is a part of the struggle for existence, and to hold our own in the battle for national life and prosperity we should at all times be sufficiently strong, not only to prevent encroachments upon the soil of American continents to our disadvantage, but to promote and defend measures necessary to the success of our trade relations with other countries."

These words of Colonel Jackson should be heeded. They express a truth which however unpleasant, is no less vital. It would be good for the country if the majority of men in congress were like Colonel Jackson, who can see the need of the country and would not hesitate at supplying the remedy. If the United States is going to stay in the front rank of nations it must possess the necessary requisites.

England will be glad of the intermission afforded by the inquiry of the Venezuelan commission. She has her hands full just at present in South Africa, where an English company is trying to conquer a free state. The cheering news comes today that the invading force sent by the British South Africa company, was defeated by the Boers and forced to surrender. Although the home government disclaims any responsibility for the invasion, the occurrence will not make Germany or any other European nation who has interests in Africa, feel more kindly towards the bullying country of Great Britain. England is just at present out of joint with the rest of the world, and must stand having the worst constructions put upon her motives.

Oregon is beginning to receive attention in the eastern magazines. An article entitled "Conquering Down Some Great Mountains," by H. L. Wells of Portland, appears in the current issue of the Cosmopolitan. The piece is descriptive of the ascent of Mt. Hood by the Mazamas, and is illustrated by several interesting views. The great Northwest can hold its own with the rest of the world in magnificent scenery, climate or natural resources for business purposes.

science

Science is "knowing how." The only secret, about Scott's Emulsion is years of science. When made in large quantities and by improving methods, an emulsion must be more perfect than when made in the old-time way with mortar and pestle a few ounces at a time. This is why Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil never separates, keeps sweet for years, and why every spoonful is equal to every other spoonful. An even product throughout.

In other emulsions you are liable to get an uneven benefit—either an over or under dose. Get Scott's. Genuine has a salmon-colored wrapper.

BABY OF CUTICURA REMEDIES

Cared of Disfiguring ECZEMA By the CUTICURA REMEDIES

Our little baby of two months was badly afflicted with Eczema. It began when she was three weeks old, and in spite of all our skill and that of two good physicians, she continued to grow worse. Her head, arms, neck, and limbs, and, in fact, nearly every joint in her body, were raw and bleeding when we concluded to try CUTICURA REMEDIES. The child being so small and delicate, we began with CUTICURA (ointment), and CUTICURA SOAP, according to directions, and after the first application we could see a change. When we had used the remedies one week she was very much better, some of the sores had healed entirely and had ceased to spread. After using them for less than a month, the child was free from scales and blisters, and to-day has as lovely skin and hair as any child. She was shown at the Orange Fair when four and a half months old, and took the premium of a silver cup, as the prettiest baby, of the sixteen others. We recommend CUTICURA REMEDIES to all our friends, and cannot praise them too highly.

Summons.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Wasco County.
William L. Isbell, Plaintiff, vs.
Mattie J. Isbell, Defendant.
To Mattie J. Isbell, the above named defendant: In the name of the State of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear in the above entitled court, and answer the complaint filed against you in said court and cause, on or before the first day of the next regular term of the Circuit Court for Wasco County, Oregon, following the expiration of six weeks publication of this summons, to-wit, Monday, the 10th day of February, 1896, and you will take notice that if you fail to so appear and answer, for want thereof, plaintiff will take judgment against you for the relief prayed for in his complaint, to-wit: A decree of divorce forever dissolving the bonds of marriage heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, and for such other relief as may be equitable and just.

"This summons is served upon you by publication thereof in The Dalles Chronicle, a weekly newspaper of general circulation, published at The Dalles, Wasco County, Oregon, by order of Hon. W. L. Bradshaw, Judge of the above named court.

Dated at Dalles City, Or., December 24, 1895.
G. W. PHELPS,
dec25-5t Attorney for Plaintiff.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution and order of sale issued out of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Wasco County, upon a decree and judgment, made, rendered and entered by said Court on the 19th day of December, 1895, in favor of the plaintiff, in a suit wherein the Solicitors Loan and Trust Company was plaintiff and Sylvester Brooks was defendant, and to me directed and delivered, commanding me to levy upon and sell the lands mentioned and described in said writ and hereinafter described, I did duly levy upon and will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash in hand, on Monday, the 27th day of January, 1896, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the front door of the County courthouse in Dalles City, Wasco County, Oregon, all of the lands and premises described in said writ and herein described as follows, to-wit:

The southwest quarter of section fourteen in township one, north of range fourteen, east of the Willamette Meridian, Wasco County, Oregon, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to satisfy the sum of $388.30 and interest thereon from January 28, 1894, at the rate of eight per cent per annum, $40 attorney's fees in this suit, and $7.50 costs in said suit, together with costs of said writ and accruing costs of sale.

Dated at Dalles City, Wasco County, Oregon, this 26th day of December, A. D. 1895.

T. J. DRIVER, Sheriff of Wasco Co., Or.
