BRIEF MENTION.

Leaves From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

Rain is in the weather program for tomorrow.

A marriage license was issued today to Charles Wallace and Edith M. Eastman.

In the land office this morning R. E. Williams filed a homestead entry for the NE 1/4, Sec 24, Tp 1 N R 13 E.

Four cars of cattle were shipped from The Dalles to Troutdale this morning. Two cars of cattle passed through town from Arlington to the same destination.

This afternoon S. R. Brooks redeemed the property which had been sold under foreclosure sale by the Solicitors Loan and Trust Co. The amount paid was $383 and costs.

The Republican club of Columbia precinct held a meeting yesterday and chose George H. Riddell and Sylvester R. Brooks as delegates to the convention to be held in Portland February 4th.

The Rockland dairy, which has moved over to The Dalles, has established telephone communication with town, and is prepared to furnish milk at short notice. The telephone number is 252.

The pastor, Rev. O. D. Taylor, will preach at the First Baptist church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Sermon subject, "The Hidden Life." Sunday school at 11:15. Lesson, Luke iv: 14-22. There will be no evening service.

At the whist club last evening Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hobson were the entertainers. The evening passed in that pleasant manner, as do all the meetings of the club. When the scores were counted Mr. T. A. Hudson was found to have won the first prize and Mrs. A. J. Tolmie the second.

Lieutenant Taylor, who is the officer in charge of the engineering corps at the locks, and who thus represents the government in carrying on that work, is to be promoted to a captaincy. The recent death of Major Post has caused promotions to be made all along the line. Lieut. Taylor has proved himself a capable officer and his promotion is deserved.

Next Monday evening revival services will begin in the Ninth street chapel. They will be under the auspices of the United Brethren society, and led by Rev. Mr. Parker, presiding elder of this district, whose home is in Eugene. There are quite a number of United Brethren in this community, and the revival services will undoubtedly stir interest in the church. A cordial invitation is given every one to attend.

The Congregational church, corner of Court and Fifth streets—Sunday services as usual: At 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. worship and a sermon by the pastor, W. C. Curtis. Sunday school immediately after the morning service. Meeting of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m. Topic, How and why we should testify for Christ, 1 John iv: 2-15. All persons not worshipping elsewhere are cordially invited.

An interesting case has arisen in the local land office. Some time ago Lewis C. Baker filed a contest against John Sperry for land situated near Mosier. Subsequently Baker went temporarily insane and was sent to the asylum. The time for completing Baker's contest passed and proceedings were begun by W. T. Meeks against Sperry for the same piece of land. Baker soon recovered from his mental trouble and was discharged from the asylum cured. He immediately took steps to regain his rights in the contest, making a showing to the department that the lapse was no fault of his. This morning Register Moore and Receiver Biggs received a circular from the department at Washington, which contained a notice to Meeks, citing him to appear and show cause why his claim of contest should not be cancelled in favor of Baker. The result of the matter will be awaited with interest.

In the office of Mr. Hugh Glenn are three pen and ink drawings of the Regulator, cleverly executed by Mr. W. E. Campbell, the civil engineer. The drawings were made to illustrate the workings of a "wind spar"—a contrivance calculated to assist the steamer in making her landings when the wind is blowing. The spar is attached to the side of the steamer so that when she lands against a bank with her head to the wind the spar is swung out and prevents her from coming broadside to the shore. The first drawing shows the steamer landed with the spar acting in the manner above stated, the second drawing shows her backing away using the spar as a pivot for turning quickly, the third picture gives a side view of the Regulator steaming along with the wing spar drawn in. The drawings are very good likenesses of our handsome steamer and in the absence of nautical testimony to the contrary, the wing spar seems to be a clever contrivance. Mr. Campbell has also made a drawing of a steamer which he calls the "Open River"—a designation which will be as appropriate to the next steamer built at The Dalles as the name "Regulator" is to the one which has proved such a good investment to the citizens of The Dalles.

"Five to One, or Where the Taxpayer's Money Goes."

The beautiful working of our jury system was exemplified yesterday by a case which was tried in the recorder's court. A young man named Harry Lane was arrested night before last for disturbing the peace. He was arraigned before Recorder Phelps yesterday morning and, through his attorney, N. H. Gates, demanded a jury trial. As this was his prerogative, of course the request was granted, and, armed with the proper authority, the marshal started out after jurymen and succeeded in obtaining the following gentlemen, who were found competent to serve as talesmen: W. E. Sylvester, S. B. Adams, J. F. Staniels, J. W. Carey, F. N. Hill and N. Whealdon. The city was represented by H. H. Riddell.

After listening all afternoon to the details of the row, the jury retired for deliberation at 5:30, and just precisely at that hour, we are informed by a jurymen, the fun began. The city hall was turned over to the jurors for their deliberation and the plaster of the walls cracked at the echos of eloquence which reverberated in every corner. At 6 o'clock the jury had not agreed; neither had it at 7 or 8 or 9. Ten o'clock came, and still they were hopelessly at variance—five for conviction and one, Mr. Adams, for acquittal. As the weary hours passed along, and all hopes of supper had melted with the snow, some of the jurors lost that urbanity of manner so essential to good feeling, and some rather vehement speeches were delivered. Eleven o'clock found them in the same fix—five to one, and at 11:30 the jurors asked to be taken before the recorder, to whom previously had been handed this document, which, in looking over the records of the case, a CHRONICLE reporter ran against, and thought it too good to keep from print:

TO THE HONORABLE COURT:

We, the jury, called to try the case of Dalles City vs. Lane, will never agree in God's world, and ask to be discharged for the following reasons:

First—That we have had no dinner or supper.

Second—Our cows are not milked.

Third—We have no case of any importance to decide.

Fourth—We are getting too old to stand such hardships.

Fifth—Jack Staniels is out of tobacco.

Sixth—William Sylvester wants to go to the Salvation Army.

Seventh—Mr. Hill has contracted to work on the railroad.

S. B. ADAMS, Foreman.

Could human heart withstand such an appeal as this? Not unless it was made of harder material than flesh and blood. And seeing from the looks of the jurors that all hopes of an agreement were impossible, and as Mr. Adams said he wanted to go home and was going home, the recorder consented to their discharge. This case will probably be re-tried Tuesday, as the city authorities are determined to see whether or not the city's peace was made to be broken or preserved. The general opinion seems to be that the position of the five jurors was the correct one.
