

CANCER CURED

—AND A—
LIFE SAVED

By the Persistent Use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"I was troubled for years with a sore on my knee, which several physicians, who treated me, called a cancer, assuring me that nothing could be done to save my life. As a last resort, I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking a number of bottles, the sore began to disappear and my general health improve. I persisted in this treatment, until the sore was entirely healed. Since then, I use Ayer's Sarsaparilla occasionally as a tonic and blood-purifier, and, indeed, it seems as though I could not keep house without it."—Mrs. S. A. FIELDS, Bloomfield, Ia.

Rev. I. H. Hazel preached another sermon from his series on Revelations last evening, the topic being "God's Vengeance Against Pagan Rome." He explained the meaning of the symbols used in the fifth and sixth seals, and the fulfillment of the prophecy by the conquest of arms of Constantine the Great over the pagan world, which established Christianity on a firm foundation in the year 324.

Rev. J. H. Wood, at the Methodist church, took for his morning text "The Curse of the World and Its Cure." This curse he comprehensively denominated as sin, and gave a very realistic picture of its prevalence everywhere—in every human mind, in every society, in every political platform, in every church. He illustrated its insidious approach by a gigantic wisteria vine in Norwich, Conn., possibly the largest in the world. Over a foot in diameter at the base, it divided into two branches. One of them covered the front of a residence, the other divided into four branches and ran up into a gigantic oak tree, which it beautified and was beautified by. After a time the tree languished and died, and it was discovered the vine had cut into the bark of the oak by its tenacious folds, constricting the tree and finally killing it. Sin enters human life by very slight infractions, but always retaining what it gains, steadily increases its hold. Sin is also deceitful in offering rewards which it never makes good. The youth is attracted by its apparent pleasures and by ambition, but which fail of realization. The cure of the sin the speaker found in the scriptural text: "Behold the lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world," referring to the sacrifice of Jesus Christ on the cross. The spilling of blood was necessary to cleanse from sin since the Mosaic law, and the sacrifice of Christ himself cleansed from all sin since the date of his death on the cross.

The theme of Rev. W. C. Curtis' morning sermon was "The Tribe of Do-as-you-likes." The discourse was radically different in character from any preceding, and was a surprise to even the regular attendants of the Congregational church, to whom surprises are no longer a novelty. The sermon of yesterday dealt largely in allegory, being apparently prepared to please the children, but it was evident the older ones were interested. The morals and precepts were woven around a story of a chimney sweep, who had left his master and wandering away, fell asleep by a running brook. While asleep he fell in the water and became transformed into a water baby. He was taken in charge by two beautiful fairies, named "Do-as-you-would-be-done-by," and "Be-done-by-as-you-did." The latter took the new charge under instruction and read a book to him containing the history of a tribe called "Do-as-you-please," portraying the life of a people without ambition, care or strife, and who take matters as they find them, "and this tribe," said the speaker, "may be found anywhere from Second street to the bluff."

An Up-to-Date Affair.

Saturday evening there was a most thoroughly surprised portion of this town, namely, in the region of the corner of Ninth and Union streets. All was quiet and serene as usual in that well-behaved quarter of the city at 8:30 o'clock, but a few minutes later it seemed to the neighborhood as if Pandemonium was turned loose. In this case Pandemonium was led by Judd Fish, who waved the Umatilla House dinner bell frantically with his right hand, while his left vigorously pulled the door bell of the residence of Mr. H. Glenn. To the rear of Judd was stationed W. H. Hobson, playing "Her Golden Hair Was Hanging Down Her Back," on a sweet-toned coal oil can. Mrs. Briggs made Rome (also The Dalles) howl with a No. 2 cow bell, possessing a fog-horn voice and was accompanied in her good work by Mrs. Bradshaw with a No. 3 cow bell. Their duet would have brought crocodile tears to the eyes of a buffalo. During this time Mr. Briggs was nobly manipulating a half-dozen bunches of fire crackers. While Mrs. Fish and Mrs. Wilson were endeavoring to get the upper hand of a couple of fog-horns, Mrs. Hobson and Mrs. Peters were so overcome with laughter as to be unable to add anything to this charming (and hearty) serenade. It would have been a picture fit for a Paris salon could Judge Bradshaw have been transferred to canvas just then, as he was beating the spots out of a large-sized coal oil can, with a still larger-sized stick of stove wood.

When the inmates of the house had caught their breath sufficiently to open the door, the merry serenaders were invited in, and then began one of the jolliest evenings ever spent in The Dalles. The time was passed in whist and charades, until supper was announced in the dining-room, and such a supper! The table groaned, and Judd has groaned ever since.

It was with regret that those present finally realized it would soon be another day, and wended their way home, tired out with laughter.

The exposure to all sorts and conditions of weather that a lumberman is called upon to endure in the camps often produces severe colds, which, if not promptly checked, result in congestion or pneumonia. Mr. J. O. Davenport, ex manager of the Fort Bragg Redwood Co., an immense institution at Fort Bragg, Cal., says they sell large quantities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the company's store and that he has himself used this remedy for a severe cold and obtained immediate relief. This medicine prevents any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia and insures a prompt recovery. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggist.

It May Do as Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began to use Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price 50c and $1.00. At Blakeley & Houghton's Drug Store.

Geo. W. Jenkins, editor of the Santa Maria "Times," Cal., in speaking of the various ailments of children said: "When my children have croup there is only one patent medicine I ever use, and that is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It possesses some medicinal properties that relieve the little sufferers immediately. It is, in my opinion, the best cough medicine in the market." If this remedy is freely given as soon as the croup cough appears it will prevent the attack. It is also an ideal remedy for whooping cough. There is no danger in giving it to children, as it contains nothing injurious. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggist.

In a recent editorial the Salem, Or., Independent says: "Time and again have we seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy tried and never without the most satisfactory results. Whenever we see a person afflicted with hoarseness, with a cough or cold, we invariably advise them to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy; and when they do, they never regret it. It always does the work, and does it well." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggist.
