FOR
La Grippe, for Colds, Coughs,
AND LUNG TROUBLES,
AYER'S CHERRY
PECTORAL

"Two years ago, I had the grippe, and it left me with a cough which gave me no rest night or day. My family physician prescribed for me, changing the medicine as often as he found the things I had taken were not helping me, but, in spite of his attendance, I got no better. Finally, my husband, reading one day of a gentleman who had had the grippe—and was cured by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,—procured, for me, a bottle of this medicine, and before I had taken half of it, I was cured. I have used the Pectoral for my children and in my family, whenever we have needed it, and have found it a specific for colds, coughs, and lung troubles."—EMILY WOOD, North St., Elkton, Md.

Something Wrong.

The force of men who came up to work on the McCoy ditch expected the arrival of Mr. F. Erickson from Portland last night, who has the work in charge. He failed to arrive on the boat and did not come later on the train. But this morning, the foreman, Mr. Stephens received a letter from Erickson, stating that he had gone to San Francisco. The letter was written in such a way as to mystify the force who are here, and they do not understand just why he has made so sudden a change in plans. They are therefore completely demoralized. Without a director and in a strange place, they are at a loss to know what is best, for them individually to do. Erickson did not give his reason for going, did not say when he would be back, and made the matter more mysterious than ever by telling the foreman to write him at either San Francisco or San Luis Obispo. That something is wrong is evident from the fact that twenty horses which were shipped from Portland to The Dalles yesterday were ordered shipped back on reaching the Locks.

CROSS-EYED HEADLIGHTS.

New Idea for Lighting Railroad Tracks on a Dark Night.

A new thing in track lighting has been put into service on the New York New Haven & Hartford railroad on the new "air line flyer" between New York and Boston, says the Boston Transcript. It is the cross-eyed headlight, an invention of Col. N. H. Heft, of the electrical department, and it is said to be such a success that it will be supplied as speedily as possible to all through fast trains on the road that run in the night. Superintendent Ostrander explains the use of the two headlights, which are set "cross-eyed," or precisely as the eyes are set in some cross-eyed persons. They are set thus so that each will throw a light across the other's rays. The light on the right hand side is thrown over the left, and that on the left over the right. It has been found that this arrangement is of great advantage in throwing a light around a curve. The single headlight hitherto in use shines straight ahead when the locomotive is turning a curve. The fields, or whatever is alongside of the tracks upon which the train is dashing, are illuminated, but the rails ahead for the moment are in total darkness. With the two lights set it makes no difference which way the curve turns, for one or the other of the headlights illuminates the pathway.

SAVED FROM AN ANGRY COW.

Evil Chase of a Montana Man from a Sharp-Horned Bovine.

While a freight train was lying over at a small mountain station in Montana the engineer borrowed a shotgun and started for a hunt. He was about returning to his train when a cow made her appearance. Before he realized that there was any danger the animal made a rush at him, and he ran with all his might. But the cow was a better racer, and in a few minutes caught him by the clothing, splitting his coat from waist to collar and tossing him into the air. Getting to his feet as quickly as possible he dodged behind a tree, and then, to his dismay, found that the gun barrel was bent so as to be useless.

The next ten minutes, says the Bozeman Avant Courier, were lively ones. The cow chased the engineer round and round the tree, and when he got a chance to hit her with the gun barrel it only seemed to enrage her the more. It was only a question of time when he would succumb to fatigue, when a diversion occurred which saved his life. An angry snort was heard and a big elk appeared upon the scene, head down and prepared for a fight. The cow was so mad by this time that she was ready for anything, and in another moment the two animals dashed at each other. The engineer watched the combat for a few minutes, until prudence suggested that he should make a retreat while he could. He regained the train in safety and never knew the outcome of the battle, but the presumption is that the elk was the victor.

Pasteur's Carefulness.

Once when Pasteur was dining with his daughter and her family at her home in Burgundy he took care to dip in a glass of water the cherries that were served for dessert and then to wipe them carefully with his napkin before putting them in his mouth. His fastidiousness amused the people at table, but the scientist rebuked them for their levity and discoursed at length on the dangers in microbes and animalcules. A few minutes later, in a fit of abstraction, he suddenly seized the glass in which he had washed the cherries and drank the water, microbes and all, at a single draught.

The German Canary Trade.

It is not at all generally known that Germany carries on a very large trade in the rearing and exporting of canaries, and that the largest establishment in the world for the breeding of these creatures is situated within the domains of that empire, away up among the Hartz mountains of Prussia. From this and the few surrounding but smaller nurseries, no fewer than 130,000 birds are dispatched every year to the United States and Canada, while in the same time at least 3,000 go to Britain and about 2,000 go to Russia.

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair. Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoy the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed on exhibit at the world's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain a showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the world's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla was in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."

Geo. W. Jenkins, editor of the Santa Maria "Times," Cal., in speaking of the various ailments of children said: "When my children have croup there is only one patent medicine I ever use, and that is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It possesses some medicinal properties that relieve the little sufferers; immediately. It is, in my opinion, the best cough medicine in the market." If this remedy is freely given as soon as the croup cough appears it will prevent the attack. It is also an ideal remedy for whooping cough. There is no danger in giving it to children, as it contains nothing injurious. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggist.

In a recent editorial the Salem, Or., Independent says: "Time and again have we seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy tried and never without the most satisfactory results. Whenever we see a person afflicted with hoarseness, with a cough or cold, we invariably advise them to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy; and when they do, they never regret it. It always does the work, and does it well." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggist.
