MISSOURI AND REPUBLICANS.

The reason for the interest which the coming Republican canvass in Missouri is beginning to arouse throughout the country is easy to grasp, says the Globe-Democrat. As the Empire State of what | ing in the postoffice at The Dalles unhas been known as the solid South, it is called for March 6, 1896. When Missouri was carried by the Republicans for the state ticket chosen in 1894 the country saw that an epoch had been closed. A new era, with different political ideals and other and larger interests and aspirations, opened with that victory. In that canvass was dealt the blow which shattered the solid South. imenting. The reverse of the Italian arms in Abyssinia means serious things for Italy. A nation that is on the very verge of bankruptcy cannot stand any further drains. The enly hope for a government like Italy, which is torn by internal dissensions, to perpetuate its Oregon. existence is to maintain such a brilliant foreign policy that the people forget the misery at home. The Rome of ancient days did this, and when its foreign conquests ceased its domestic strength quickly failed. There promises soon to be an upheaval among the European nations, and Italy will be the first to pass under the new order.

Ex-Senator Dolph delivered a speech on the money question before the Mt. Tabor Republican club, the printing of which occupied two pages in the Oregonian. Dolph made a good record while in the senate, but it never came through ability to interest his hearers.
