GREAT MEN OF HISTORY.

The month of February witnessed the birthday celebrations of two Americans, Washington and Lincoln. These times were made the occasions of the gathering together of the leading men of the country at different places where the lives of these illustrious men were made the subjects of comment. Probably because the years have added to the lustre of Washington's name and that the thirty seasons since Lincoln's death have caused the conditions which surrounded him when living and which prevented a proper realization of his character to fade away and allow a full and truer glimpse of the man to be obtained, there has been an increase in the veneration of these men which gives vent upon every occasion when the patriotism of the country assembles. The newspapers are full of references to Washington and Lincoln; their lives are being studied to truer effect by the school children of the land, while public speakers use their names as magic words to conjure enthusiasm in audiences otherwise unresponsive. The country has seen the attempt made by enterprising publishers to create a Napoleonic revival and for a time the life and deeds of the Corsican have been the objects of study, but this is passing and Bonaparte will fall back into the niche history has provided for him—the wonder of the ages—a marvel of selfishness and genius.

Every country has its heroes. England its Alfred, France Charlemagne or Henry of Navarre—these perhaps because time has wiped away their bad qualities, though other and better Frenchmen have lived since; Italy her Garibaldi, Sweden her Gustavus Adolphus and so on through the list. America has found hers and the increased regard for Washington and Lincoln shows their fame is permanent.

The study of these men's lives is especially appropriate just now when the country is suffering from the lack of men more like them. The spectacle which the United States senate presents, with its representation of millionaires, its disregard of the people's wishes, and, with few exceptions, its lack of men able to handle the questions of the day, apart from a narrow party view, causes the country to wish that the patterns set by Washington and Lincoln could be more industriously followed. This nation is rich because of the legacy left by these men, and no better preparation can the youth of the land have for future service to the country than a knowledge of the motives that prompted these prototypes of our best statesmanship to their actions, which have caused the commendation of subsequent times.

The finale in the Portland smuggling cases has come with the pardoning of Nat Blum, the informer upon whose evidence the conviction of Lotan was secured. No surprise will be occasioned by this intelligence, as it was well understood that the price of Blum's testimony was his pardon. This closes a chapter which has been a disastrous one for certain prominent politicians and shameful for the community. It is to be hoped its repetition will not occur.

John L. Sullivan has appeared in the role of political reformer advocating that no men be elected to office except such as are in favor of prize fighting. Sullivan evidently doesn't intend to let the new woman get ahead of him in advocating new and dangerous doctrines.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

The exposure to all sorts and conditions of weather that a lumberman is called upon to endure in the camps often produces severe colds, which, if not promptly checked, result in congestion or pneumonia. Mr. J. O. Davenport, ex manager of the Fort Bragg Redwood Co., an immense institution at Fort Bragg, Cal., says they sell large quantities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the company's store and that he has himself used this remedy for a severe cold and obtained immediate relief. This medicine prevents any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia and insures a prompt recovery. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggist.

W. J. Moore, the practical candy maker, is now located at 114 Second street. This is the only place in the city you can get the favorite marsh-mellow taffy and carbonated nut candies. The best of sugar used. All colors non-poisonous. Give him a call.

Piles of peoples have piles, but DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them. When promptly applied it cures scalds burns without the slightest pain. Snipes-Kinnersly Drug Co.

Don't invite disappointment by experimenting. Depend upon One Minute Cough Cure and you have immediate relief. It cures croup. The only harmless remedy that produces immediate results. For sale by Snipes-Kinnersly Drug Co.
