THE RECOGNITION BUSINESS.

There seems to be considerable misunderstanding upon the matter, now before congress, as to the recognition of belligerent rights to the Cubans. The proposition is not to entangle this nation in the least, in any promise to give material aid to the Cubans, or to commit us to any policy leading to any prospect of hostilities with other nations. Nor does it in any degree precipitate action detrimental to the upbuilding of the cause of the universal adoption of republics as a higher growth for humanity than the old monarchies; on the contrary it is in direct line with that action, a course which this nation is presumably unalterably committed to.

The recognition is in fact only an expression of sympathy for the cause of Cubans, and which they certainly have well earned by the persistent, brave and determined stand they have maintained against such fearful odds.

The Globe-Democrat says: "The rights of belligerents cannot be strictly defined, so much depends upon the circumstances of the case. In a general way, however, they imply a recognition of the fact that a state of war exists, and that equal consideration should be given to the two parties engaged in it. Thus, in the present instance, the Cuban insurgents will be allowed to send vessels into our ports the same as Spain is permitted to do, and private traders will be allowed to sell them certain kinds of goods. But neither side can buy arms, ammunition, or any other military supplies from us. It will also be the duty of our government to prevent the fitting out of expeditions in our territory for the assistance of either party; and our merchant ships will be open to search on the high seas for articles contraband of war. There will not necessarily be a war with Spain, any more than there was when she hastened to recognize the Southern confederacy, but there is a possibility of it, and the Cubans will probably do all they can to bring about such a result. They cannot claim assistance from us as a right; there is no obligation on our part to fight their battles, or to do anything more in their interest than in that of Spain, practically speaking."

"It is a great mistake to suppose that the recognition of the belligerent rights of the Cubans means a declaration of war against Spain. Those who indorse such an expression of sympathy do not wish to make two wars where there is now but one. Their desire is to promote the early conclusion of the one now in progress, and to put a stop to the taking of life and the destruction of property. The Cubans have maintained themselves for a year against superior numbers, and the proposed inauguration of a policy of massacre against them is equivalent to a confession by the Spanish commander that they can not be beaten by legitimate and justifiable means. It seems to the people of the United States, therefore, that the time has come to say that these struggling patriots are entitled to the rights of belligerents, and to all the advantages to be derived from a formal assertion of our desire for their success. The charge that we are looking to the acquisition of Cuba has nothing to support it. There is no sentiment of that kind in congress, and no party is committed to such a plan. The feeling in favor of the Cubans is entirely free from any expectation of territorial expansion in that direction. It pertains only to the question of right, of justice, of propriety in the adjustment of the relations of Spain and Cuba. The insurgents have waged a prolonged and determined fight against heavy odds and under all sorts of difficulties; and they certainly deserve as much consideration from us as we have a right to give them, which is to say that the action of congress for their comfort and encouragement is correct and will be approved by all good citizens."

PROGRESS.

People who get the greatest degree of comfort and real enjoyment out of life, are those who make the most out of their opportunities. Quick perception and good judgment, lead such promptly to adopt and make use of those refined and improved products of modern inventive genius which best serve the needs of their physical being. Accordingly, the most intelligent and progressive people are found to employ the most refined and perfect laxative to regulate and tone up the stomach, liver, and bowels, when in need of such an agent—hence the great popularity of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. These are made from the purest, most refined and concentrated vegetable extracts, and from forty-two to forty-four are contained in each vial, which is sold at the same price as the cheaper made and more ordinary pills found in the market. In curative virtues, there is no comparison to be made between them and the ordinary pills, as any one may easily learn by sending for a free sample, (four to seven doses) of the Pellets, which will be sent on receipt of name and address on a postal card.

ONCE USED THEY ARE ALWAYS IN FAVOR.

The Pellets cure biliousness, sick and bloated heads, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation, sour stomach, loss of appetite, coated tongue, indigestion, or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heart-burn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Put up in glass vials, therefore always fresh and reliable. One little "Pellet" is a laxative, two are mildly cathartic. As a "dinner pill," to promote digestion, take one each day after dinner. To relieve distress from over-eating, they are unquated. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules; any child will readily take them. Accept no substitute that may be recommended to be "just as good." It may be better for the dealer, because of paying him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help.
