IMPARTIAL COMMENT.

The transactions in Portland last Thursday during the Republican primaries will be a cause of chagrin to decent members of the party throughout the state. Although the information which comes to us is colored one way because the Oregonian and its protegee, the Telegram, are controlled by one faction, enough is learned to reach the conclusion that the day was the most disgraceful in the history of Republican politics in Oregon.

Two factions arrayed against one another in bitter enmity, strove for supremacy. On both sides were men of good character and influence in the councils of state; on both sides were the riff-raff, bums, floaters, ward-strikers, and all species that go to make up disreputable politics.

Joseph Simon, the self crowned ruler of Portland, hobnobbing with Larry Sullivan, a disreputable tough, prizefighter and leader of men among whom a piece of money is the strongest argument. This is pure politics with a vengeance. Henry McGinn, a judge upon the bench, a partisan with Simon, leaving the high and honorable position to which he had been appointed by the grace of God and Governor Lord, and mingling in a fight from which every member of the judiciary should be absent.

To one who watched the affair from a distance it looks as if the whole thing were merely a case of the "pot calling the kettle black." The Oregonian, with its eulogies of Simon, cannot make that ubiquitous individual appear more saintly in the eyes of those who have watched his career. Neither can any admiration for District Attorney Hume's fighting qualities blind people to the fact that he is a salary grabber and a man who is for Hume first and possibly for the people afterward.

We cannot look upon the victory of Simon as a triumph for good government; neither would we had Minto, Frank and Hume won. The men named are away down in the category of good citizenship. They represent themselves and their selfish ends, and the interests of Portland are as badly off in the hands of one as the other. As we say, there are good men on both sides, but for the leaders, all that can be said is that they are professional politicians, searching for spoils.

The course of the Oregonian will not commend itself to unprejudiced people. However sublime may be the trust that the Oregonian has in Simon, it is not shared by people generally.

Portland is suffering from too much politics. Its citizens need some good government for a change, but we doubt exceedingly if either

Simon or Messrs. Frank, Hume and Minto will give it to them.

A statement made by an Eastern Oregon paper that The Dalles is the best wool market in the state east of Portland fails to state the fact correctly. The Dalles is a much better wool market than Portland; in fact since the granting of terminal rates to shippers from this city, Portland has ceased to figure to any great extent as a wool emporium. Wool is hauled hundreds of miles to The Dalles, sales are effected and consignments made direct to Boston, or whatever city the Eastern destination may be. The buyers have recognized this place as the great wool shipping point, and during the season buyers are to be found in The Dalles instead of in Portland as formerly. This fact itself shows the importance attached to this city as a wool market.

GOOD WORDS FOR THE DALLES.

Hood River Glacier: The Dalles is having a building boom. Mr. Max Vogt is rebuilding his brick block that was destroyed by the big fire several years ago. Mr. Vogt's building will cost $65,000. A. M. Williams is putting up an additional store adjoining his property, to cost $30,000. Besides these, there are a number of private residences going up, while other buildings are being raised and improved. There is a healthy feeling there in anticipation of a large output of wool and a general confidence in the future of The Dalles that speaks well for the enterprising spirit of its citizens. The expected opening of the locks, which will give uninterrupted water communication, and the fact of its being a general distributing point, also tend to boom the place.

Eczema ON BABY

Grew Worse under Treatment of Best Physicians. Tried

CUTICURA REMEDIES

Great Change in Five Days and To-day is Entirely Cured.

My baby had Eczema in its worst form. One of the best physicians in the city attended her, but she continued to get worse all the time. He finally admitted he was at his wits' end. I then got CUTICURA REMEDIES, and in a few days noticed a great change in her condition. She continued to improve and to-day is entirely cured, has nice head of hair, and is lively and hearty. I spent considerable money for drugs and doctor's bills, which was useless. J. B. JACOBS, 2031 Wilkins Ave., Balt., Md.
