rocker, and, it is claimed, will save three times the amount of fine gold that can be saved by any other process. The name of the invention is the "Gold Bug Chief," and the rocker motion is given it by the action of water.

Mr. Leslie Butler's team, attached to a carriage, ran away this afternoon. In the carriage was seated Mr. Chas. Bacon and Mr. Butler. When reaching the corner by the Joles residence, the buggy was overturned, throwing both gentlemen out in the street.

The Long Creek Eagle says that Hugh Arbuckle recently found the skeleton of a human being in an alkali lick on the middle fork of the John Day, near the mouth of Granite creek. While looking after some stock, Mr. Arbuckle was attracted to the lick by a peculiar formation caused by the incessant licking of the animals and the action of the elements for years past.

The committee on fire and water of the city council have decided they will put in a complete fire alarm system, if the citizens take steps to procure the chemical engine. The engine will cost $1,425. A fire alarm system is a system of dividing the city into wards or districts, so that the locality of a fire may be indicated by the strokes of the fire bell.

Judge Fulton of Sherman county paid THE CHRONICLE a pleasant call today. He says the Rattlesnake Road is in fine condition and a great help to the people of his county. He says the grade on this side ought to have some work and we trust our county court will not lose sight of the fact that the work ought to be done during the wet season and should not be delayed.

"THE CONFEDERATE SPY."

The Plot of the Interesting Play Briefly Related.

The following is the story of "The Confederate Spy," which will be produced at the Baldwin opera house tonight:

George Waterman, a Northerner, meets a Southern belle with whom he falls in love. She reciprocates his devotion, but the two are separated in sentiment by a gulf which appears insurmountable. His sympathies are strong for the North and he enlists, while the girl is an ardent devotee of the Southern cause. She has a brother who is a Confederate spy. He is captured and condemned to death, and the Northern lover is captain of the guard. When the guard discovers the relationship of his prisoner and the girl whom he loves a plan is made to save his life by substituting the body of a dead soldier for the spy.

Geo. Waterman (a young Unionist); N. J. Sinscott Philip Bradley (a Confederate spy); R. H. Lonsdale Fred Ainsley (a rebel); Wm. Rasmus Major-General Banks (U. S. A.); D. E. Horrion Colonel Willard (U. S. A.); J. H. McAvoy Officer Mulgarry (one of the finest when out of danger); John Hampshire Clay (a gentleman of color, what knows what de chickens roost); John Hartnett Soekery Schnell-lebecker (the drafted Dutchman); Wm. Rasmus Rastus (the unknown); Lonsdale-Hampshire Mrs. Waterman (mother of George and widow of Capt. Waterman); Mrs. G. C. Blakeley Mand Bradley (a Southern belle and sister of spy); Rose Mitchell Nora McLaggin (down on the "haythen Chinness"); Lillian Snell Rose Southwick (lady representing flag) Lena Snell

St. Paul's Church.

At St. Paul's Sunday the same music was rendered as on the Sunday previous, with the exception of the Easter anthem. Mr. Goss' sermon was from the 21st chapter of St. John, 4th verse, "But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore, but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus." The rector gave a beautiful description of that scene, likening it to this present life of darkness and doubt (that seems to some but a dream), which will end at the awakening on that great morning when Jesus will be standing on the eternal shore, ready to welcome those who have been his faithful followers. Mr. Goss drew some beautiful word-pictures, and his hearers could not but be benefited by his words of love and encouragement.

Sunday School was also started, and will hereafter be held each Sunday morning at a quarter to ten o'clock. It was a great satisfaction to the rector and to all that there was such a large attendance at the Sunday School, after so long a season without one.

A Little Boy Killed By the Cars.

The little 8-year-old boy of Mr. Dan Daffron, car inspector at Umatilla, was run over by the cars about 8 o'clock last evening at Umatilla and was killed. The accident could not have been averted, for no one knew of it until some of the trainmen came upon the poor little fellow's bleeding body. His leg had been cut off diagonally following its conjunction with the body. He was alive when found, and lived for about six hours. It is thought he had fallen from a box-car when in motion, as he was in the habit of playing around moving cars in the yard.

Mr. Daffron was at one time car inspector in The Dalles, and is well-known among railroad men here. Mr. James Brennan of this city is his son-in-law.

Injuries By Insects.

A young lady before retiring recently noticed a blow fly on her pillow, and would not go to sleep until she had killed it. The following incidents will excuse her alarm: The Oregonian recently published a story about a fly depositing eggs in a sleeping person's nose. The eggs hatched and it was with much difficulty life was saved. An incident capable of the fullest corroboration is that of a lady living near Hood River, in whose ear, about two years ago, a spider deposited eggs. They soon hatched, and large numbers of infinitesimal spiders commenced crawling out of her ear. This caused her intense pain, and she nearly lost her hearing. Cases are frequent of spiders biting children, but beyond a slight swelling and some pain no harm is done.

Among the interesting specialties is a sword fight between Ainslee and Waterman, a song and dance by J. F. Hampshire and J. Hartnett, solo by N. J. Sinscott; quartette by Artisan club, dance by Rastus and an instrumental duet by the Misses Myrtle and Retta Stone.
