LET US CELEBRATE.

Now that politics are for a time past, the attention of our citizens can be turned to other things. Every time The Dalles has decided to hold a Fourth of July celebration the result has been a great success. There is every reason to believe such would be the case this year should our citizens take up the matter of an Independence day celebration. The considerations in favor of such a movement from a patriotic standpoint are many, but these can be left to the orator of the occasion. Just now we are going to be more material and speak of the need of a celebration with a view to the city's good.

Should The Dalles not hold a celebration, it is probable many of our citizens would betake themselves to Portland, where arrangements for a grand event to occur July 4th are well under way. Our citizens had better stay at home on such a day, and one of the means to keep them here will be a proper observance of the national birthday.

Civic pride is a necessary element in municipal life. Let us be deeply concerned in the fame of our town, and make it known to the rest of the state that The Dalles is well to the front in patriotic observances.

Nothing is lost financially or otherwise by a Fourth of July celebration. On the contrary the advantages are many and obvious. Let The Dalles decide to honor the nation's birthday with fitting ceremonies. The Commercial Club is a good place for such a movement to originate.

Though the stage is not considered the best vehicle of moral reform, Milton Nobles' shows will help to incline the scales to that side. His fun is pure and suffers no deterioration thereby. Of course we believe American humor is the choicest in the world, and consider English jokes as stupid as they consider ours obtuse. Nobles' humor is of the Mark Twain stripe, and consequently is representative American humor. There is no ribaldry about it, no suggestion of indecency to bring a blush to the cheek of innocence. He dispenses with high kicking actresses, as he does with coarse jokes, and yet he keeps up a continual ripple of laughter, and it's tone is healthful, elevating and intellectual. Milton Nobles is therefore an ornament to the American stage. His remarkable successes indicate an appreciation of the refined on the part of the American people, which cannot but be eminently satisfactory.

The dispatch from Washington shows that the Oregon delegation has not been working of late merely for election purposes. Our senators propose to leave no stone unturned until the locks are opened to navigation.

The continuance of the Astoria fishermen's strike means more business for the upper river men, but the general effect is for ill, and there should be an end of it.

The race for congressman grows interesting. A matter of a hundred votes or so will decide it, and the returns from each belated precinct are scanned with interest.

PICTURING A SEA FIGHT.

How Instantaneous Photography Figures in the Modern Painter's Art.
Instantaneous photography has made it easy to-day for men with little knowledge of seamanship to place ships and boats under sail in a picture, but in early days, says Temple Bar, the power of doing so correctly was limited to a few men like Stanfield and Capt. Beechey, R. N.

The difficulty of obtaining anything like a reliable description of a sea fight, even from those who had taken part in it, was, according to Stanfield, very great, and he told us how, when planning his picture of "The Battle of Trafalgar," he applied to Capt. Hardy for advice as to the position of the Victory, Hardy's answer being that, owing to the height of the action to see beyond the ships alongside, adding: "I am about the worst man you could come to, for some time before that which your picture represents the Victory's tiller ropes had been shot away, and I was below in the steeage attending to them and the helm, and down there we knew so little of what was going on that we Thieves are using a contrivance looking like an ordinary walking stick, but which is so arranged that by pressing a spring at the handle the ferrule will spread apart and form a sort of spring clip that will take hold of anything that is within reach. In the fall of 1893 a son of Mr. T. A. McFarland, a prominent merchant of Live Oak, Sutter county, Calif., was taken with a very heavy cold. The pains in his chest were so severe that he had spasms and was threatened with pneumonia. His father gave him several large doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which broke up the cough and cured him. Mr. McFarland says whenever his children have croup he invariably gives them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it always cures them. He considers it the best cough remedy in the market. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton's Drug store.
