THE NEW ERA.

The river and harbor bill, carrying a $50,000 appropriation for the completion of the Cascade locks, opening the river to navigation, which passed both houses of congress over the president's veto, removes the last obstacle to the great commercial opportunities of the Inland Empire. Millions of pounds of wool, hundreds of thousands of bushels of wheat, our enormous yearly salmon output and our great and increasing yield of fruits of the tree and vine will hereafter have the advantage of the cheapest possible transportation—that of river steamboating. This places The Dalles in the same category as the big commercial cities along the Mississippi river, cheapening our imports and lessening transportation charges on our exports. Twenty-five years ago the foremost citizens of Oregon, appreciating the vast resources of the Inland Empire, tributary to the great Columbia river, resources as varied as vast, including stockraising, grain, fruit, fish, and general farming, began an agitation for the removal of the obstructions at the Cascades, to enable these great mercantile commodities to have the advantages of water transportation. The four or five years which they then considered ample to complete this improvement lengthened to ten, fifteen, twenty, twenty-two, twenty-three, and now in the close of the twenty-fourth the dream attains realization. There remains but a slight amount of work to be done to complete a piece of work on the middle lock. A sufficient amount has been appropriated to complete it, and the appropriation is immediately available. The present session will see the work completed, and the Inland Empire will take its proper place in the great world of commerce.

A week's work of congress is summed up in the advancement of three appropriation bills, the final passage of one, and the adoption of the bill to exclude illiterate immigrants by the house. The act to restrict immigration in the case of males of mature age to persons who can read and write the English or some other language was first amended to exclude aliens who retain their homes in some foreign country. This is aimed at the French Canadians, who flock into New England and the cities along our lakes, to earn and save the high wages we pay, and then return to their villages in Quebec. It will involve some nice distinctions as to what constitutes a home in a foreign country, and probably will break down under the interpretation of the courts, which rarely sympathize with such restrictions. The main provision of the bill is harmless, because it presents no real check to desirable immigration. Those who wish to come will soon master the arts of reading and writing, if they have them not already. Neither will it check the undesirable immigration of anarchists and socialists, who are generally educated up to the higher average of the working classes of northern and central Europe.

I was under doctors' care for two years with womb disease, and gradually wasting in strength all the time. I was so weak that I could sit up in bed only a few moments, for two years. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and by the time I had taken one-half dozen bottles I was up and going wherever I pleased, and have had good health and been very strong ever since—that was two years and a half ago."
