MCKINLEY AND HOBART.

McKinley and Hobart is the ticket which the Republicans of the country are called upon to support. At few times in our history has a spectacle been witnessed like that which has just occurred at St. Louis.

For three years the drift of public opinion has been towards McKinley, and in spite of all the shrewdest of politicians could do to prevent it, the tide has never turned. McKinley has achieved a triumph such as few men live to win. The nomination has come to him with almost the same unanimity that it came to Lincoln the second time or to Grant when he was the unanimous choice of the party. James G. Blaine, who occupied a place in popular affection greater than any statesmen of recent years ever possessed, was not able to achieve even the honor of a nomination without a bitter struggle and then was allowed to meet defeat. Blaine was the greatest statesman this country has seen since Lincoln, yet he never was honored as McKinley was yesterday.

The reason is plain enough. Four years ago the American people, made reckless by continued prosperity, overturned the existing economic conditions and substituted instead the policy of England; refused protection and demanded free trade. Shrewd political prophets foresaw the results and predicted an era of distress throughout the land, and their prediction was fulfilled to a lamentable degree. No sooner was the Democratic party placed in power than the mistake of the people was realized. Prosperity gave way to commercial stagnation, and the country was rent in twain by business upheavals. The wisdom of the policy advocated by the Republican leaders became apparent, and the people yearned for the reenactment of a tariff law, similar in intent, if not degree, to the one with which the name of McKinley is indissolubly connected.

Then and there the McKinley boom began, and it has continued, increasing with time till the culminating point was reached yesterday. McKinley stands as the champion of protection, and it is protection the manufacturer, the business man, the wool grower and the laboring man want. There are other men in the Republican party as able as the gentleman who has been named, but circumstances have not connected them with the protective cause as they have McKinley.

The nomination of McKinley is a triumph for protection. It is a victory, also, for the people over the politicians, since the Ohio statesman was opposed by the men skilled in arts political.

Garrett A. Hobart of New Jersey, who is the associate of McKinley upon the ticket, is not well known to the people of the West, but the Republican convention, which has acted wisely upon all other matters, can be trusted to have shown wisdom in this, and we unqualifiedly indorse the result of their labors.

Protection, sound money, McKinley and Hobart—victory awaits them in November.

McKinley and Hobart! May the enthusiasm that attended their nominations be prophetic of their triumph next November.

Protection and Sound Money vs. Free Silver and Free Trade. These are the issues which the country must decide next November. The welfare of the country depends upon their proper solution.

The Oregon delegation expressed the will of the business interests of the state when they voted in favor of the gold standard at St. Louis. Free silver must find its support outside of the Republican party.

Garrett A. Hobart.

Garrett A. Hobart, Republican nominee for vice president, was born at Long Branch, N. J., in 1844. After receiving a common-school education, he attended Rutgers college, where he was graduated when 20 years of age. He was admitted to the bar in 1866, and was chosen city councillor of Patterson in May, 1871.

In 1872, Mr. Hobart was elected assemblyman, and in his second term was elected speaker of the assembly. In 1877, Passaic county sent him to the state senate. He closed his career as a legislator in 1881-3 when he was the president of the senate.

He was the Republican caucus nominee for United States senator in 1884, when John McPherson, Democrat, was elected. He was the New Jersey member of the national committee in 1884 and was vice chairman. He was president of the New Jersey Midland Co., the Montclair railway and the Jersey City & Albany, and of the First National bank of Newark, director of several banks, and a large number of other corporations.

He was the recipient lately of the degree of LL. D., from Rutgers.

Blakeley & Houghton, desire us to publish the following extract from a letter of Chas. M. Gutfield of Reedley, Fresno county, Calif., as they handle the remedy referred to and want their customers to know what a splendid medicine it is: "It is with pleasure I tell you that by one day's use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy I was relieved of a very bad cold. My head was completely stopped up and I could not sleep at night. I can recommend this remedy." A cold nearly always starts in the head and afterwards extends to the throat and lungs. By using this remedy freely as soon as the cold has been contracted it will cure the cold at once and prevent it from extending to the lungs.
