FREE SILVER MEXICO.

Examples are the strongest kind of argument, and to the average mind will carry weight when subtle reasoning fails. The silver craze, which is sweeping over the country, has affected all classes of people. There are those who—if they have not done it—will study the question seriously and come to a rational conclusion. Others will refuse to let in the light, and declare, as one man did on the streets of The Dalles not a week ago, that he would "vote for a dog if the dog were for free silver." With such a man argument has no force, and to reason with him is but a waste of energy. He can, however, be reached by some concrete example, and no better one can be brought forward than the illustration of Mexico, a country which rests purely and simply upon the silver basis.

Francis E. Clark—the president of the president of the Society of Christian Endeavor, has just returned from a journey through Mexico, and his observations are most timely. He writes not as a partisan of silver nor gold, but simply as a traveler who has kept his eyes open. "The silver of Mexico," he says, "has not found its way, to any great extent, into the pockets of the poor people. Wages are evidently on the highest sort of a gold basis. A number of my friends told me that they pay their cooks about five dollars a month, about one quarter the price of such labor in the United States. In the country district an able-bodied man earns six dollars (Mexican) a month; three dollars (American) and his board; while a fair day's wages in city or country for a laboring man is fifty cents (Mexican), twenty-five cents (American). Nowhere are beggars more in evidence than in prosperous (?) Mexico. Indeed, the condition of common people seems not one whit better than that of the fellahin of Egypt or the pariahs of India. Is free silver the good genius of the republic? I will leave it for the financiers to say. I simply record the impressions of a traveler."

This is impartial testimony, and the verdict for which it forms a basis is that free silver is inimical to the welfare of a nation. The natural resources of Mexico should place it among the great nations, yet it is occupying an inferior position, and the reason is not hard to see.

The warm spell which has visited us for the last three weeks has been of no benefit to growing vegetation. In many places the spring grain has been damaged, while the yield of fall-sown wheat will not be as large as indications pointed earlier in the season. The shortage will not be so great, however, as some people predict, and Wasco county will have a good harvest even if it will not be so large as we would wish. In no year has the superiority of good farming been demonstrated more than this. Those who planted intelligently, using forethought and good judgment, will be substantially rewarded, while the farmers who trusted too much to good fortune will fall short of their expectations. This rule will not fit all cases, but will apply generally. In farming, as in everything else, the man who uses his thinker is the one that comes nearest to winning.

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed on exhibit at the world's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain a showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the world's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla was in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."
