

NOT A SICK DAY
For Over Thirty Years!
RESULT OF USING
AYER'S PILLS

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills for over thirty years have kept me in good health, never having had a sick day in all that time. Before I was twenty I suffered almost continually—as a result of constipation—from dyspepsia, headaches, neuralgia, or boils and other eruptive diseases. When I became convinced that nine-tenths of my troubles were caused by constipation, I began the use of Ayer's Pills, with the most satisfactory results, never having a single attack that did not readily yield to this remedy. My wife, who had been an invalid for years, also began to use Ayer's Pills, and her health was quickly restored. With my children I had noticed that nearly all their ailments were preceded by constipation, and I soon had the pleasure of knowing that with children as with parents, Ayer's Pills, if taken in season, avert all danger of sickness."—H. WETSTEIN, Byron, Ill.

Caution That Should Be Heeded.

The county court of Douglas county has just issued the following words of caution to justices of the peace:

All justices of the peace of Douglas county, Oregon, are hereby cautioned against issuing warrants for the arrest of persons charged with petty offenses, unless the justice should be satisfied that the evidence is sufficient to convict, or that the accused is attempting to leave the county or state, and when warrant is issued to notify the district attorney or his deputy, and in all cases where practicable, such as where defendant is not attempting to leave the county or state, to submit a full statement of the case to the district attorney or his deputy before issuing a warrant. Special attention of all justices of the peace is called to the following section of the code:

Section 2172—The justice may, in his discretion, require the private prosecutor in a criminal action to give security for costs and disbursement, before making or receiving the complaint therein, in the amount authorized in civil action, and not otherwise.

The above section is applicable to all misdemeanors of which the justice has jurisdiction to try and impose punishment.

A MIGHTY HUNTER.

Death of a Once Famous Pennsylvania Nimrod.

In Years Gone By He Was Known as the Most Successful Trapper and Woodsman of the East.

Joseph Mahn, of Elk county, once famous as a mighty hunter, died a few days ago, nearly 90 years old. It was less than ten years ago that failing eyesight compelled him to give up his life in the woods. He had hunted and trapped in the Pennsylvania woods since 1820, and the stories of his exploits are household words in the western and northern portions of this state. He remembered when elk were yet numerous in the state, and one of his favorite stories was of the time when he was a boy and went with his father on an elk hunt. They followed the elk from the headwaters of the Alleghany river until it crossed the river below where Oil City is now, and led the chase into Ohio, where, on the third day of the hunt, it was killed not far from what is now Mansfield.

This old woodsman ended his career as a hunter and trapper by a series of successes which he declared were the most satisfactory to him of all his exploits. He was trapping in Center county, and had four bear traps out. He started out one morning to look after them. The first trap he visited had done good work. It had a big bear in it with a magnificent coat of fur. The old trapper shot the bear and went on to another trap. That one had a surprise for him. It was not a bear, but an ugly, glaring, snarling catamount, the largest one Mahn had ever seen in all his career in the forest. It was not only ugly, but extremely tough, for the trapper had to shoot it five times before it would die. This trophy was over four feet long.

After killing the catamount Mahn went on to the third trap, and there he found awaiting him a monstrous old-timer of a bear, caught in the trap by both fore feet. How the bear managed to get both feet into the trap was something Mahn could not understand, as it was a thing unheard of in bear trapping. This bear was a savage old chap, and resented its capture with so much tenacity that he would not give up until four rifle bullets induced him to. That three traps in succession should have yielded each so fine a prize was enough to astonish even a veteran trapper, but when the fourth one came to the front with a third bear, as fine as either of the others, the old trapper rejoiced greatly. It was a trapping event without precedent in the Pennsylvania woods, and as it was a fortnight since Mahn had shot the biggest buck on record as having been killed in the state, he was willing to go home and rest the remainder of his days on the laurels these exploits alone had won him. And he fully intended to do so, for he had lost the sight of one eye entirely, and the other eye was failing. But he was not permitted to retire just yet.

A few weeks after his great trapping experience a delegation of backwoods farmers waited on him and solicited him to go kill a bear or something that was playing havoc with their sheep and pigs. The weather was warm, and Mahn did not care to undertake the task, being then almost 80 years of age. His neighbors insisted, and he took down his gun once more and slithered his traps. He put out six wildcat traps and four bear traps. The next day each one of five of the former had a wildcat in it, and the sixth one had the lower part of a wildcat's fore leg. Two of the bear traps had each a big bear. A third bear trap was missing. The chain was broken loose from the wood-clog, and it was plain that a bear had walked off with the trap to one of his legs. The fourth bear trap had not been disturbed.

Mahn did not intend to go home without recovering his missing bear trap. He tracked the bear that had it to a swamp and scoured it out. The trap was fast to one of the bear's fore feet. The bear was inclined to fight the trapper, but Mahn killed it with two shots. On his way back home to get help to carry in this most unheard of collection of sheep and pig stealers the old man struck a bloody trail. He followed it, and it led him a mile, where it ended at the foot of a big chestnut tree. On a branch of that tree, well toward the top, lay a wildcat. Mahn brought it down with a single shot. As the wildcat was minus one fore paw, the old trapper knew he had bagged the cat that had got out of his sixth trap. Mahn had left his undisturbed bear trap in the woods. The next day he went out and got his fourth bear. Then he put away his traps and hung up his gun, and never used them again. Chicago Chronicle.

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed on exhibit at the world's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain a showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the world's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla was in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."
