AGAINST CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

The Democratic convention which nominated Mr. Bryan for the presidency did so many eccentric things that the public has hardly had time to consider them all. One of the most important of these is the declaration which the platform makes against civil service reform. The words read:

"We are opposed to life tenure in the public service. We favor appointments based upon merit, fixed terms of office, and such an administration of the civil service laws as will afford equal opportunities to all citizens of ascertained fitness."

The "ascertained fitness" undoubtedly means political faithfulness and an ability to corral votes.

The demand for civil service reform has been pressed since the administration of President Hayes, who manifested an earnest desire to extend the beneficent scope of its workings. Through succeeding administrations the number of employes placed under the civil service law has been steadily increased, but a few months ago an order being issued by President Cleveland placing 30,000 government employes beyond reach of partisan dismissals.

Presidents Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland and Harrison continuously expressed themselves in favor of this reform, and it waits for the heedless Mr. Bryan to declare in Delphic language: "They complain about the plank which declares against the life tenure in office. What we oppose in that plank is the life tenure that is being built up in Washington, which excludes from participation in the benefits the humbler members of our society." Another of his indefinite, inconceivable phrasings.

To intelligent people there is no need of argument in behalf of civil service reform. The advancement which already has been made by recent administrations, resulting in increased ability in the conduct of public routine, has shown that the sooner civil service reform is made universal in the departments of our national government, where no views of policy govern, the better it will be.

Mr. Bryan's idea is that every department clerk in Washington should lose his place as the head of the administration changes. Such a view belongs rather to the peanut politician than to an intelligent statesman.

There is a union of all the forces for the free coinage of silver. There should be a like union of the sound money believers. Patriotism should be above party considerations.

Every day or so come telegraphic reports of the formation of a Japanese steamship line, with Portland as its eastern terminus. Portland's new steamship lines are a good deal like the Cascade locks—something of a myth.

Reports from different portions of Wasco county show that the sound money sentiment is growing continually. Active work between now and November will give a handsome majority for McKinley in the banner county of Eastern Oregon.
