"It is immaterial, in my judgment, whether the sheep grower receives any benefit from the tariff or not. Whether he does or does not, I am for free wool."—Extract from speech of William J. Bryan in the house of representatives when the Wilson bill was under consideration.

ASKING TOO MUCH.

That the support of the sound money Democrats in the coming campaign would be a valuable adjunct to Republican success, is an undoubted fact; but it doesn't follow that the management of the campaign should be turned over to Democratic hands. From time to time come loud complaints from Democratic papers that the Republicans will insist upon talking tariff, and are giving expression now and then to some remarks concerning the condition of the country during the past three years which are not altogether complimentary to the present Democratic administration. The position taken by these Democratic papers is amusing, and the arrogance they have assumed is quite in keeping with their actions at different times in the previous history of the country.

Why should the Republicans cease to present the tariff as one of the bedrock reasons for their existence as a political organization? and why should they desist from condemning an administration whose policy has brought untold woe upon the nation? The Republican party suffered defeat four years ago upon the tariff issue. Since that time the country has suffered from a commercial panic which has never been exceeded in severity.

There may be those who will refuse to concede that this state of affairs was brought about by the free trade policy of the Democratic party, but the Republicans believe that such is the case. The importation of foreign goods made by cheap labor has compelled the closing down of American manufactories and thrown hundreds of thousands of American laborers out of employment. The removal of the duty upon wool has brought prosperous wool growers of Eastern Oregon to the verge of bankruptcy, and cut off entirely the profits of many of our business houses.

With these facts in mind, is the Republican party so cowardly as to refuse to present the tariff as an issue, because by so doing the feelings of Democrats are hurt? Undoubtedly it is a sorry reminder to them, but it cannot be said that they showed such consideration for the American business man and laborer as to warrant such a sacrifice of principle. The tariff is an issue, and as such must occupy a prominent place in the waging of the campaign.

The Republican party has declared for sound currency; the Democrats have slumped to silver. McKinley represents the march towards prosperity; Bryan a retreat towards distrust and bankruptcy. If the sound money Democrats wish to see the nation entrenched against the attacks of such foes as are now seeking to do it ill, they can accomplish such an end by voting the Republican ticket; but they must not seek to dictate the policy of this party after having failed in controlling their own.

On the other hand, the free silver Republicans who are declaring for Bryan and free silver are turning aside from the goal of former hopes—the restoration of prosperity under a protective tariff—when they have nearly reached it.

The Wisconsin Republicans are organizing for an enthusiastic campaign. In their convention, which closed yesterday, Chairman Lamonaux uttered a striking truth when he said: "Coming, as I do, from an iron-producing section of the country, I have no doubt but that our people would favor free and unlimited coinage of iron at some arbitrary ratio, and there would be about as much reason in such a demand as there is in the demand for free coinage of silver at 16 to 1." This is a simple proposition, which is the kernel of the whole matter.

What has become of the customary fire drills which in previous summers gave confidence of an ability to do good work in time of fire? This inquiry has been suggested to THE CHRONICLE, and we deem it a pertinent one.

It would seem preposterous, were it not true, that there is a large body of people in the United States who are so infatuated with hard times that they are seeking a continuation of present evils.

LATIN AND GERMAN TAUGHT.

GERMAN.
The undersigned desires to organize a class in German. Every American citizen who can afford both time and expense ought to be master of at least two languages. The German language has many advantages over modern languages on account of her profound literature in all branches of ancient and modern science produced in her world-renowned universities. Those who would drink from these inexhaustible and yet unadulterated fountains of knowledge, must master the language which contains the key to them. The undersigned will organize a class in German, and will begin with actual work on the first day of September. The class will meet two or three times a week in the evening or when most convenient to the pupils. Rapid progress guaranteed to those who will get down to earnest labor. All who desire to participate in this work will please announce their intention to the undersigned at an early date, as the class will be limited to a certain number. Charges will be very reasonable.

LATIN.
The undersigned will also organize a class in Latin. There are so many reasons why those who desire to advance their knowledge beyond a common school education should take at least a course in Latin, that probably everybody is familiar with at least some of them. I will not take space here to speak of the beauties of the Latin language nor of the many advantages in life possessed by those who have mastered it. I will here only announce my intention to organize a class in Latin. Rapid progress guaranteed to those who will work hard. Charges very reasonable. All desiring instruction in Latin are kindly requested to announce their intention to the undersigned before September, if possible. Awaiting your application, I am, very respectfully yours,
