"It is immaterial, in my judgment, whether the sheep grower receives any benefit from the tariff or not."

Whether he does or does not, I am for free wool."—Extract from speech of William J. Bryan in the house of representatives when the Wilson bill was under consideration.

THE MAIN QUESTION.

It is true, as Speaker Reed says, that two months ago it was generally believed that Republican success was a foregone conclusion. This belief was founded upon certain well-known facts and justified by confidence in the good sense of the American people. "What has happened since then?" he asks. "Have the last four years of history been blotted out? Not one scrap of them. Is our condition better? Rather worse." This presents the case in a clear light, and emphasizes the main question of the campaign. The facts that led everybody to concede the election of the Republican ticket two months ago still exist and still mean what they then meant. They are to the effect that the Democratic party has proved itself to be incapable of managing the affairs of the government and unworthy of public trust and respect. This is certainly a sufficient reason for saying that it should not be given another lease of power, and for believing that such a result will not ensue. Why, then, should we be told that the popular judgment of two months ago as to the outcome of the pending contest should now be modified by doubt and fear in that relation? The situation has not been changed in any way that lessens the measure of Democratic incompetency and of Democratic responsibility for the hard times. What is there, then, to justify the idea that the Republican ticket may be defeated after all?

To be sure, says the Globe-Democrat, in the last two months, the free silver fallacy has been fastened upon the Democratic party as its leading doctrine and its principal purpose; but in what respect does this warrant the inference that the people may possibly shut their eyes to the facts of the last four years and continue the unquestionable evils of Democratic rule for another term? Even granting that the free silver theory is right and would do everything for the country that its advocates assert, the same general and decisive objections to the Democratic party would remain, and intelligence would suggest that such a party could not be depended upon to carry out any advantageous policy. The money question involves the larger one of choosing between the two great parties on the basis of their respective records in the matter of conducting the public business and dealing with the interests of the country. It is not to be forgotten that the Democratic party is proposing to repair damages that it has itself wrought; and what reason is there to suppose that it would do any better on further trial? "Human experience in every walk of life," as Speaker Reed puts it, "teaches that those who have blundered will blunder again." The extent to which the Democrats have blundered in the last four years is unprecedented in our political history; and it is safe to say, therefore, that they will not be permitted to carry this year's election and prolong the misfortunes that are directly attributable to their folly and wickedness.

A Gentle Corrective is what you need when your liver becomes inactive. It's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets; they're free from the violence and the griping that come with the ordinary pill. The best medical authorities agree that in regulating the bowels mild methods are preferable. For every derangement of the liver, stomach and bowels, these tiny, sugar-coated pills are most effective. They go about their work in an easy and natural way, and their good lasts. Once used, they are always in favor. Being composed of the choicest, concentrated vegetable extracts, they cost much more than other pills found in the market, yet from forty to forty-four are put up in each sealed glass vial, at the price of the cheaper made pills. "Pleasant Pellets" cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation, sour stomach, loss of appetite, coated tongue, indigestion, or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heart-burn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Put up in sealed glass vials, therefore always fresh and reliable. Whether as a laxative, or in larger doses, as a gently acting but searching cathartic, these little "Pellets" are unequalled. As a "dinner pill," to promote digestion, take one each day after dinner. To relieve the distress arising from over-eating, nothing equals one of these little "Pellets." They are tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules. Any child readily takes them. Accept no substitute that may be recommended to be "just as good." It may be better for the dealer, because of paying him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help. A free sample (4 to 7 doses) on trial, is mailed to any address, post-paid, on receipt of name and address on postal card. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.
