Maltese Cross.

MAIER & BENTON are Sole Agents for the Maltese Cross Fire and Garden Hose for The Dalles. Anyone once buying this brand of Hose will never buy any other. It is carbolized and guaranteed to stand a pressure of 350 pounds to the square inch. This city has just purchased 500 feet of the Fire Hose and the School District 200 feet of the Garden Hose. The city has some of the Maltese Cross brand that was bought seven years ago, and it is better today than some other brands that were bought only four years ago. The Maltese Cross has been the standard Hose for years, and is manufactured by the Gutta Percha Rubber and Manufacturing Co. Parties wanting hose for spray pumps and lawn purposes will do well to buy the Maltese Cross. It will cost a little more in the start, but it is the cheaper in the long run.

The Dalles Daily Chronicle.

Weather Forecast.
PORTLAND, Aug. 14, 1896.
FOR EASTERN OREGON—Tonight and tomorrow fair and cooler.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Random Observations and Local Events of Lesser Magnitude.

The smoke is again settling over the country. Republicans, to arms. McKinley club tonight.

The Allen Bros. of Yakima shipped a number of wagons and carts to Astoria this morning, to be employed on the new railroad.

Mr. Glasius has received a letter informing him of the death of Mrs. Johns, a former resident of The Dalles, which occurred at Soda Springs August 2d.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maxwell, parents of W. A. Maxwell, of the Arlington Record, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding day at Columbus, Wash., yesterday. The editor and his wife were present.

Twenty teachers are being examined for certificates at the high school building. Eighteen of the number were in attendance at the institute. Examination for state diploma and state life diplomas will be made Saturday.

Though the thermometer hugs the century mark, the heat does not seem so intense nor disastrous in its effects as is reported from the East. No one has been stricken down by it, and no death has occurred from it, even incidentally, so far as has been reported.

Considerable gold dust is being shipped from Grant's Pass, even in these dry times. Nearly every store in town handles it, and it is legal tender without the government stamp for all merchandise here. There is considerable difference in its value, however, owing to the presence of more or less silver. One shipment was made last week that only brought $9 an ounce at the mint. Some of the dust has brought as high as $19.10. The silver-producing localities are known and dust from there is scaled down accordingly.

Patronize Home Industries.

Mr. Peterson informs us the cigar trade is dull. It would seem strange that a city of this size could not consume all the cigars that could be made by the cigar-makers of the city. As a matter of fact many more cigars are consumed than the number daily made here, but the trouble is that Eastern goods are too often purchased. It is a fact that no better cigars are sold than those made at home. Consequently there is no good reason why foreign should be preferred to home brands. The pictures on the box may not be so gaudy, but the cigars cannot be excelled. On the contrary there is every reason why home cigars should be given the preference. Their production adds to the number of consumers of all other lines of goods. The money sent away for labor of making cigars is kept at home. The cigars made are known to be unadulterated.

Dealers ought therefore to keep in stock and give preference to home made cigars, and consumers should likewise call for them. One who should refuse to keep them, after they have been called for, has not a proper spirit of loyalty to the town where they themselves are supported. One of our earlier presidents once set the example of patronizing home industries by wearing a suit of homespun clothes in preference to the fine broadcloth of England's looms. It is a healthful and satisfactory spirit to cultivate.

ANOTHER DROWNING.

Marcus Vanbibber Sinks Beneath the Columbia's Fierce Current.

The cruel Columbia has swallowed up another victim. This time a youth just entering upon the threshold of maturity, bright and promising, and the hope of his parents, who had thrown around him every advantage that he might perpetuate in honor the family name.

Marcus Vanbibber was drowned about dusk last evening while swimming in a bay-like place in the river at the mouth of a slough four miles below The Dalles. Those who were swimming with him were Thos. Lorenzen, Andrew Pearson, Will Sechler, Clem Whittle and a smaller boy who accompanied them. Marcus was a good swimmer, and for some reason struck out from the bay into the current of the river. This current skirts the bay and its line of demarcation is otherwise established by a precipice beneath the surface. A swimmer may step off a level into eighty feet of water, and the temperature of the water changes as suddenly from warm to cold. It was not the cold water which destroyed young Vanbibber by giving him cramps, but an unusually powerful current, which commenced to drag him underneath the moment he struck it. He realized his danger at once; he perceived his inability to battle against the fearful suction of the fierce current, and shouted twice for help. Seckler started to help him, and finding himself in almost the same perilous position as Vanbibber, he in turn shouted for a hand. Lorenzen, who was just within the bay, extended his hand just in time to save him from a like fate. The current must have been very powerful, for Lorenzen says he was almost pulled off his feet trying to draw Seckler out. Poor Marcus Vanbibber was forced to give up the struggle and sank after a moment of heroic effort. He tried to reach the bay again, by stemming the current. It is thought that if he had swam with the current, he could have reached the bank lower down the river. He was an accomplished swimmer.

Within a short time efforts were made to recover his body with grappling hooks, but they were unsuccessful. This morning about daylight efforts were resumed by Al and Walter Klindt with a sturgeon line, and the first cast was successful. He was brought up about 20 feet from where he sank, one of the hooks catching him under the chin.

The death has created an air of gloom over the city, as the young man was well known and universally esteemed. It will be a sad blow to the parents, who had centured their hopes in a bright career for Marcus, and had taken great pains with his education to fit him for a long and useful life.

The funeral will occur Sunday at 2 o'clock p. m. from the residence on Chenoweth creek.

Council chambers, 8 o'clock tonight.

Nine Candidates for Cadetship.

Nine applicants are being examined today by a board composed of P. L. Gilbert, Prof. Gavin and N. J. Sannott for admission to West Point and Annapolis.

There are four for West Point and five for Annapolis, as follows:

West Point—Clarence B. Sewall, Rhee Jackson, Ed. N. Johnston, all of Portland, and Carl Kreutzen of Astoria.

Annapolis—Rufus C. Holman, Huntington Johnson, Bruce Kaitz, of Portland, Darcy C. Bard, Piedmont, and Arthur C. Stabling, The Dalles. The examination commenced at 10:30 this morning and will continue over tomorrow morning. The successful candidate will then be chosen, and appointment made by Hon. W. R. Ellis.

The age for the admission of cadets to the West Point Academy is between 17 and 22 years, Annapolis 15 and 20. Candidates must be unmarried, at least five feet in height, free from any infectious or immoral disorder, and generally from any deformity, disease or infirmity which may render them unfit for military service. They must be well versed in reading, in writing, including orthography, in arithmetic, and have a knowledge of the elements of English grammar, of descriptive geography (particularly of our country) and of the history of the United States. The physical examination includes the following points: They must not have any cutaneous affection; severe injuries of the head; impaired vision; deafness or discharge of the ears; unsound teeth; impediment of speech; want of chest capacity; hernia; varicose veins; fractures, flat feet, lameness, unequalled length, bunions, overlying toes; ulcers, etc.

McKinley club meeting tonight. Important.

Notice!

There will be a regular meeting of Mt. Hood Hose Co., No. 4, at the hose house this (Friday) evening at 8 o'clock.
