

OVERWORK -INDUCED- Nervous Prostration

Complete Recovery by the Use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless to-day had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. HISSON, Postmaster and Planter, Kinard's, S. C.

should have been a hundred times larger. He called up the varied forces of logic, experience, example, hope, persuasion and defiance, as the stops of an organ respond to the touch of the practiced musician. "There is no question about the result of this election," said he emphatically. "Whenever this country has been in danger the requisite nerve and brain has always sprung up to meet it. It will do so again, for if there was ever a time when this country needed the aid and brains of its citizens, it is now. This crisis is no new thing to me, though I believe it is to Oregon. I have been driven before it like a beast at bay wherever I have lived. It has driven me to Oregon, and here I must make my last stand, or be driven entirely out of the country. I must flee to China. Many of you do not recognize the new enemy. It is not new to me. Free silver, stripped of its cloak, is the same old fallacy of flat money. It is taking with it many old-time Republicans, but it has not fooled me, and I want to say this for the grand old party: Whenever it has been in power it has furnished employment at good wages; times have always been prosperous. I may have been misled along other avenues, but the Republican party has never fooled me once." Mr. Isenberg then related a very comical story about naming the baby. He wanted it called Benjamin after his brother and his wife wanted it called Arthur after her's. So it was mutually agreed to call it Benjamin Arthur. It was during a campaign, and before the baby had been christened letters were received from both brothers. Mr. Isenberg's brother had become suspicious of the party through the accusations of the enemy, and his brother-in-law was also at the point of severing his party ties and going over to the Democrats. It made Mr. and Mrs. Isenberg both so mad they gave up their intended names and always after called it Walter Henry. Mr. Isenberg told of how a Republican could be reached who honestly differed, or was in a quandary as to what to do, but he advised letting a Populist alone, because he had renounced his reason. "I have found, also," he said, "that one Populist can make more noise than a score of Republicans. They are like the coyotes of my neighborhood. They can howl in so many and ridiculous kinds of noises that they may be easily overrated. Don't be fooled upon their numbers." In like strain the speaker continued for several minutes, and at the conclusion was roundly cheered.

Mr. Hugh Gourlay was also called and responded briefly. He began by saying he could conceive of no circumstances under which he would vote either the Democratic or Populist ticket. He spoke of the words attributed to Blaine concerning the single gold standard by the free silver press, and pronounced them bogus in such strong terms as dishonest, garbled, etc. He had the words of Nickolay & Hay, containing Mr. Blaine's speeches, and nowhere was contained such language now going the rounds of the press as it is said Blaine delivered himself of. A party that will do this cannot be right upon any question, said the speaker strongly. We must conduct a school-house campaign throughout the land. A party must not rule that condemns the supreme court of the United States, or threatens a president because he orders dispersed a mob.

Mr. Hill of Kansas, now a teacher at Hood River, was present and was invited to speak. He reviewed the financial history of the nation from 1792. He exposed the platitudes of the Democratic platform, laid bare their plan of appealing to the prejudices of the people, and concluded with a brilliant peroration that is as important to respect the financial honor and the laws of the nation as a strict obedience of the laws beyond the grave.

Hon. W. R. Ellis arrived about this time and upon invitation took the floor. It is not so much what Mr. Ellis says as his manner of saying it which captivates an audience. His faith in the Republican party is unbounded, and when making a speech his eyes are slight with enthusiasm. His earnestness is contagious, his words magnetic. All within sound of his voice must perforce listen. He disclaimed any intention of making a political speech, but said he hoped at no distant time he might have the pleasure of addressing many audiences in the state. "I am in hearty sympathy with the movement to effect a Republican victory this fall. It is for the best interests of the people that the Republican party shall succeed. I consider that the platform as a whole is the very best of them all, and that it is essentially necessary that the party should succeed. We must not go astray because we disagree on minor points. If 19 out of 20 planks are in accord with our views we should support the ticket. As regards the financial plank, it is more important that what money we have got should be put in circulation than to quibble about the kind of money. What is wanted is to restore the names of laboring men to the pay roll, and when Saturday night comes pay them in dollars that will be worth their face anywhere in the world. I am willing to pin my faith to the Republican party and trust them to do the right thing. The candidates on both tickets are men above reproach in their private lives. It is therefore not a question of men, but of principles. I shall do all in my power to promote Republican success. In the East I have seen the black smoke stacks of factories rising in the air like monuments of decay, the doors and windows boarded up, the yards deserted which once were teeming with industry. I want to put life in them again, and when we do I think the financial question will be practically settled. To this end we must work shoulder to shoulder. I believe the masses are willing to trust the Republican party in the future as they have in the past. We must seek to promote harmony, and whatever dissension there has been in the past, we must let the dead past bury its dead."

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed on exhibit at the world's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain a showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the world's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla was in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."

Through trains on the O. R. & N will run via Umatilla, Walla Walla and Pendleton. Through sleepers, first and second class will run in connection with the Union Pacific, the same as heretofore. ### Reduction in Railroad Fares.

As there will be numerous requests for reduced rates on account of political meetings during the coming contest, it has been decided that in order to treat all parties alike, a one fare rate will be made by the O. R. & N. Co. for various meetings of this character.

This of course is intended only for occasions where there is sufficient number to justify a reduction in rates. This is done so that there will be no partiality in favor of any one party.

LATIN AND GERMAN TAUGHT.

GERMAN.

The undersigned desires to organize a class in German. Every American citizen who can attend both time and expense ought to be master of at least two languages. The German language has many advantages over modern languages for account of her profound literature in all branches of ancient and modern science produced in her world-renowned universities. Those who would drink from these inexhaustible and yet unadulterated fountains of knowledge, must master the language which contains the key to them. The undersigned will organize a class in German, and will begin with actual work on the first day of September. The class will meet two or three times a week in the evening or when most convenient to the pupils. Rapid progress guaranteed to those who get down to earnest labor. All who desire to participate in this work will please announce their intention to the undersigned at an early date, as the class will be limited to a certain number. Charges will be very reasonable.

LATIN.

The undersigned will also organize a class in Latin. There are so many reasons why those who desire to advance their knowledge beyond a common school education should take at least a course in Latin, that probably everybody is familiar with at least some of them. I will not take space here to speak of the beauties of the Latin language nor of the many advantages in life possessed by those who have mastered it. I will here only announce my intention to organize a class in Latin. Rapid progress guaranteed to those who will work hard. Charges very reasonable. All desiring instruction in Latin are kindly requested to announce their intention to the undersigned before September, if possible. A waiting year application, I am, very respectfully yours, L. GREY, Evangelical Lutheran Pastor.
