WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Random Observations and Local Events of Lesser Magnitude.

Isaac Hays and Mrs Julia C. Hinton were married this morning by Justice Filloon.

One solitary hobo was admonished by the recorder this morning that his only safety lay in instant flight.

Miss Nettie Sturweis, 14 years of age, died yesterday morning at Dufur and will be buried tomorrow morning.

Members of the Rathbone Sisters are requested to be present at K. of P. hall for a special drill Tuesday afternoon at 3 p. m.

A. M. Herrick, the canneryman, has arrived at Aberdeen, and is putting the cannery there in shape for work as soon fall fishing begins.

A new cement walk is being laid in front of Johnston's store. A new plank walk is to be laid adjoining Judge Liebe's residence on Third street.

Mr. Arthur Kennedy was missed yesterday from among those who compose the band. The big drum's assailant for the occasion was Mr. Ed Williams.

G. J. Gessling's strawberry crop netted him, above all expenses, $208.79, says the Hood River Glacier. His patch covered just 96 square rods. This is close to $400 an acre.

Alex McLeod of Kingsley finished threshing last Thursday. He threshed 1440 bushels of a number one wheat, off a field of forty-five acres which shows that Wasco county is all right.

The horses, harness and stage coaches of the Arlington-Fossil stage line have been sold by the administrator of the estate of L. Parker to Reed, Buckingham & Nevins, of Fossil, who will continue to operate the line.

In one of the country stores in this county appears the sign "Bryan buttons for sale here." Some two weeks afterward a wag observing that the contents of the box containing them had not decreased perceptibly, added surreptitiously in pencil, "damn cheap."

A messenger arrived yesterday from W. E. Sylvester's camp, which is in the mountains about 25 miles from town. He was in a hurry and was after Mr. Sylvester's rifle. He was no other than that gentleman's young son, and he just had time to shout: "Dad forgot his gun, and he's got a bear tread, and I've got to hurry back. Good-bye!"

The case of the State of Oregon vs. Jerome Lauer was called before Justice Filloon at 10 o'clock this morning, and on motion of his attorney, continued until Wednesday. Saturday Lauer, who is attending to the Skibbe hotel in the proprietor's absence, got in an altercation with one Matthews, which developed into a scrapping match. During its continuance Lauer drew a pistol and shot at Matthews, luckily missing him. Matthews then swore out a warrant charging him with assault with a dangerous weapon.

In the competitive examinations for West Point and Annapolis, which closed Saturday evening, Ed. N. Johnston of Portland won the West Point honors, with Clarence B. Sewell of Portland alternate. For Annapolis, Huntington Johnston of Portland was first, with Darcy C. Bard of Piedmont second. The two winners are brothers.

The funeral of Mark Vanbibber yesterday was perhaps the largest ever attended in the county, with the possible exception of Virgil Bolton. Eighty-eight carriages were counted in line by an observer, while others were noticed coming across the sand to join the procession. This only testifies to the regard in which the deceased and his family was held.

In referring to the first issue of the Temperance Thunderbolt in Saturday's daily, we unintentionally omitted to state that that periodical is controlled by the Grand Lodge of Good Templars of Oregon, and purports to be an organ for that order in this state. The editorial staff, in addition to Messrs. Merrell and Stewart of this city, is composed of Mrs. E. W. Cann of Portland, and Grand Secretary W. S. Hurst of Aurora. The publication of the paper does not interfere with the previous pursuit or occupation of any member of the staff.

To Inform the Voter.

At Republican League headquarters the work of mailing literature is progressing rapidly. The first installment of 140,000 pieces has arrived and is being sent out. The various pamphlets embraced in the 140,000 pieces, are McCleary's speech, Babcock on money, Reed on the tariff, Apsley on protection, Republican platform, Blaine's reply to Gladstone, Babcock's "Money and Silver," and a German edition of Babcock on money. The special lists of addresses Secretary Wells has made arrangements to secure in every precinct in the state are coming in every day, and to these "Babcock on Money" is now being mailed. All who apply for literature in bulk for their personal distribution are also being supplied, as well as those who ask for it for their own information. The tariff pamphlet, "Defender," is also being mailed to all who ask for it. The Oregonian announces that any person who will call at headquarters, room 527 Chamber of Commerce, Portland, will be supplied with anything there is on hand which he may desire, in any quantity he will use to advantage.

DIED.

Firemen's Meeting.

At the meeting of the firemen Saturday night A. Sandrock was chosen chairman of a committee having in charge the arrangements for the Astoria tournament, and H. Christman secretary.

Mr. Lauer stated that he had received notice from the O. R. & N. that they would make a round trip rate of $5, and that the boat company had made a rate of $3.50.

Mr. R. B. Sinnott then read a telegram he had just received from Mr. E. E. Lytle at the Locks, that the railroad company would make a rate of $3.25, if the firemen would guarantee a passenger list of forty persons. The matter was argued for some time, resulting in a motion being carried that the boat would be used. Consequently the firemen will go down the river on the Regulator Wednesday.

A committee of two was appointed to interview all the fire companies to ascertain what arrangements had been made to send delegates to the firemen's convention which meets at Astoria during the tournament. The president appointed as such committee N. J. Sinnott and G. A. Clarke.

Former Oregonians Here.

Hon. E. S. Joslyn and wife of Colorado Springs are visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Brooks, who were old friends in Oregon many years ago. Mr. Joslyn has now been absent from the state 21 years, but he was one of the earliest settlers. He first came to Oregon in 1852 and located at White Salmon in 1853, and was the original owner of the famous White Salmon farm. Speaking of Colorado Mr. Joslyn says it is quite a prosperous state, even at the present. At Colorado Springs, his present home, he says as much building has been done in the past year as in San Francisco and Portland combined. Colorado Springs, as is well known, is the Los Angeles of Colorado, a city composed of rich men. At its 25th anniversary there was a big celebration, at which there was present 280,000 people. Politics is in as confused a state as it is here. The Republicans are anxious to overthrow Populist domination in the state. The somewhat intricate plan is proposed of presenting Henry M. Teller's name for governor, with some good and acceptable Republican as lieutenant-governor. Teller can be elected for anything in Colorado. Teller will resign gubernatorial for senatorial honors, and the lieutenant-governor will be governor. Wolcott is generally disliked and distrusted by the common people on account of his corporation entanglements and alliances. That Colorado is for Bryan is not conceded.

The Concert.

There were several strangers present yesterday at the band concert who appreciated the quality of the music even more than our home people, who have come to regard it as a matter of course. At the conclusion of the concert Mr. Peterson was sought and personally thanked by some San Francisco parties for the pleasure given them by the music, which they assured him, was not second to anything in San Francisco. A Coloradan was also present, who, it was observed, was also very attentive and was enthusiastic in his praise. Fortunately, the concert was one of the best of the season. The most striking numbers were the solos of Mr. Peterson and Mr. Miller and the descriptive selection, "The Dance of the Goblins." "My Old Kentucky Home," a cornet solo by Mr. Peterson, was very fine. The simple air was first rendered with rare expression and in a plaintive almost voiceful manner. Then came the variations, more difficult and musical than it might be supposed the tune was capable of. Peculiarly beautiful was the tone of the cornet in its sudden changes from high to low tones. Entirely different was the euphonium or baritone solo of Mr. J. G. Miller. He plays in a subdued yet penetrative tone, mellow, soothing and grateful to the ear. The succession of short notes is as rapid in the "Honeysuckle Polka" as in the "Kentucky Home," showing that Mr. Miller has a complete mastery of his instrument. The serenade was also a beautiful selection.

A Dismal Night.

True heroism is rarely met with, but the little party which passed Thursday night on the turbulent river, with the wind blowing a gale and the waves threatening every moment to swamp their boat, were engaged in a heroic and dangerous work. John Crate, Al and Walter Klindt, Richard Hassel, and the brother of the deceased, worked until 2 o'clock dragging the river for the body of Mark Vinbibber. The circumstances were peculiarly dismal. The night was of murky darkness, the waves were rolling high; the winds blew fiercely and howled mournfully as if possessed with the spirit of sorrow; every moment the searchers expected to bring to the surface the lifeless body of their former companion and friend whom they loved. It was a work as poignant with grief as filled with danger. At 2 o'clock they desisted their labors to change apparatus, and when with break of day they again resumed their search, their first cast was successful.
