GOLD IMPORTATIONS.

The Telegram finds cause for congratulation in the reported return movement in gold. Whether it means a permanent cessation of reserve-raiding or is a mere spasmodic speculative effort, it indicates a baffling of the plans of those who would sacrifice the nation's credit for private gain, and it also reflects a feeling of confidence in the world of finance that the free-silver madness is already beaten. The recent heavy withdrawals of gold from this country were undoubtedly prompted by the belief that the metal would command a handsome profit if the plans of the silver monometalists should succeed, and the inflow of gold reported yesterday may therefore be accepted as evidence that those who were ready to traffic in the country's misfortunes have abandoned hope of a free-silver victory at the coming election.

The results of a rapid reverse movement of gold shipments would be of vast benefit just now. There would be a speedy relaxation in the media of exchange and a consequent stimulation of all channels of commerce and industry. The process of currency contraction which has been in steady progress in this country during the last three years, and which was created and kept alive by the introduction of free coinage as an actual living issue in our politics, is the source of a large share of all our misfortunes. This contraction consists only to a small extent in actual money. The withdrawal of gold from circulation is a mere bagatelle compared with the contraction of credit money—checks, drafts and other substitutes for currency—which it involves. This paper is the real circulating medium of the country, and is so vast in its amount and so flexible in its adaptation to the demands of trade that any interference with it is most dangerous to the industrial health, because it responds with the utmost sensitiveness to confidence and doubt. The dollar of gold which is shipped to Europe is a mere nothing in comparison with the thousands of dollars of credit paper which that one dollar represents and can support, but which will not be circulated failing the existence of a solid basis of redemption. It is this credit money which has been contracted and contracting ever since 1893. It is this movement that is the source of our deepest troubles, and that can be remedied only by a return of confidence. Therefore the reported turning of the gold tide is cause for congratulation to the American people.

If the importation of gold continues for any length of time or assumes an aspect of permanency it will discourage those speculative American citizens who have been putting their capital into gold dollars and hoarding them to get the comfortable premium which a free-silver victory would put upon the yellow metal. The pecuniary interest of these speculators upon the life and death of the nation, are, however, of small consequence as compared with the prosperity which a relaxation of the currency would restore to ninety-nine per cent of the American people.

A COINAGE QUERY.

Issued on Postal Card, by J. G. Bennett & Co., Pittsburg.

If a dollar be a dollar—honest coin—without deceit—one may melt it, one may smelt it, but its value won't retreat.

Melt ten dollars—silver dollars—in unbiased melting pot, and the silver "slug" resulting, only sells for "five the lot."

Melt gold dollars—melt an eagle in aforesaid melting pot—and the golden "slug" resulting quickly sells—for "ten the lot."

Will you tell me—kindly tell me—how these dollars equal are—if a little glowing furnace puts on only one a scar? There was never yet equation that demanded legislation to establish right to be; an equation is equation—else is it a fallacy!

And I'm thinking—quietly thinking—that a poor man has poor sense—if he vote to have a dollar that will melt to fifty cents.
