

LOSS OF VOICE

After Acute Bronchitis
CURED BY USING
AYER'S Cherry Pectoral
A PREACHER'S EXPERIENCE.

"Three months ago, I took a violent cold which resulted in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms, and I feel sure that one or two bottles more will effect a permanent cure. To all ministers suffering from throat troubles, I recommend Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—E. M. BRAWLEY, D. D., Dist. Secretary, Am. Bapt. Publication Society, Petersburg, Va.

DOLLY MADISON'S TACT.

How She Managed to Win Everybody's Heart.

It was the tact and genuine kindness of Dolly Madison that made her one of the most prominent of American women. Several episodes mentioned in Mrs. Goodwin's "Life of Dolly Madison" are significant of this. At one of her levees, her attention was drawn to a rustic visitor, a youth who was evidently suffering all the torments of embarrassment. He had at last ventured to help himself to a cup of coffee, when Mrs. Madison walked up and addressed him. In the surprise of the moment, he had dropped the saucer and strove to crowd the cup into his pocket. His tactful hostess took no notice of the accident, except to observe that in such a crowd no one could avoid being jostled, and straightway turned the conversation to the boy's family, and ended by sending her regards to his excellent mother, and bidding the servant bring another cup of coffee. On another occasion two old ladies from the country arrived at the white house while the family were still at breakfast. To the surprise of the rural visitors, the woman they had come to see appeared in a stuff dress of dark gray, protected by a large housewife's white apron, and with a linen kerchief pinned about her neck. Her simplicity of manner and attire completely swept away their awe, and before departing one of them found courage to ask: "Perhaps you wouldn't mind if I kissed you—just to tell the folks about!"

Reduction in Railroad Fares.
As there will be numerous requests for reduced rates on account of political meetings during the coming contest, it has been decided that in order to treat all parties alike, a one fare rate will be made by the O. R. & N. Co. for various meetings of this character. This of course is intended only for occasions where there is sufficient number to justify a reduction in rates. This is done so that there will be no partiality in favor of any one party.

Made of Pacific Coast Fir.
It is not generally known that Professor Nansen's Arctic ship Fram, which for three years braved the terrors of the frozen North and finally returned with all on board safe and sound, is the product of Puget sound timber, says the Seattle Times. About four years ago, when Nansen was casting about for the strongest and most durable wood for the construction of his steamer, he decided that Puget sound Douglas fir was the wood he desired, and the order for the timber, out of which the ship was to be built, was placed with the Puget Sound Lumber Company, of Port Gamble. The lumber, sawed into the desired lengths and sizes, was sent to Norway with other cargoes, and the Fram was constructed.
It remained for Victor H. Beckman, editor of the Pacific Lumber Trade Journal, of Seattle, who always is alive to the needs and prosperity of lumbermen of the Sound to discover that the Fram was built of fir, and this month's number of his publication, which is now in press, contains an interesting account of fir tests, in general, and in particular the great test given the timber by the Fram. Mr. Beckman considers the best testimonial as to the strength of fir comes from Professor Nansen himself, who said:

"On January 4th and 5th the Fram was exposed to the most violent pressure we experienced. She was then frozen in ice of more than thirty feet of measured thickness. This foe was overridden by great ice masses, which were pressed against the port side with irresistible force and threatened to bury, if not to crush her. The necessary provisions, with the canvas kayaks and other equipments, had been placed on the ice. Every man was ready to leave the ship if necessary and was prepared to continue to drift, living on the floe. But the Fram proved even stronger than our trust in her. When the pressure arose to the highest, and the ice was piled so high above the bulwarks she was broken loose and slowly lifted out of her bed in which she had been frozen. Not the slightest sign of a split was to be discovered in her. After that experience I considered the Fram equal to almost anything in the way of pressure. After that we experienced nothing more of the kind, but our drift rapidly continued north and northwestward."
