

of the country are running on full time, when railroads are taxed to their utmost in transporting materials to be manufactured, when new industries are springing up, the manufacturer and the railroad corporation is prospering. At the same time, and not at any other time, is labor in demand and well paid. Wm. Mc-Kinley stands as the representative of the policy which encourages capital to engage in manufacturing-the policy of highest and truest prosperof an experiment, which is founded upon a financial fallacy, the attempt to legislate value into something which has less than the law declares.

most ably edited of the religious newspapers, referring to the so-called "crime of 1873," says: "The question of the law of 1873, by which the standard of value was determined in favor of what was then the cheaper question. The wrongs, if any, are beyond undoing. If it was a mistake, which we do not believe, it was racy proposes to repeat, on a larger scale. The difference in value then between the metals was very slight; now it is very marked. Then every creditor was 'robbed' of a cent or two on the dollar, now every creditor claim. The law does not care for tri-
