

NOT A SICK DAY For Over Thirty Years!

RESULT OF USING AYER'S PILLS

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills for over thirty years have kept me in good health, never having had a sick day in all that time. Before I was twenty I suffered almost continually—as a result of constipation—from dyspepsia, headaches, neuralgia, or boils and other eruptive diseases. When I became convinced that nine-tenths of my troubles were caused by constipation, I began the use of Ayer's Pills, with the most satisfactory results, never having a single attack that did not readily yield to this remedy. My wife, who had been an invalid for years, also began to use Ayer's Pills, and her health was quickly restored. With my children I had noticed that nearly all their ailments were preceded by constipation, and I soon had the pleasure of knowing that with children as with parents, Ayer's Pills, if taken in season, avert all danger of sickness."—H. WETSTEIN, Byron, Ill.

A SEA TRAGEDY.

The Startling Story of the American Barkentine Herbert Fuller.

The sea has ever been a favorable scene with romancers for desperate conspiracies and tragic crimes. This has been due to the seclusion which it offers and also, perhaps, to the traditions of piracy which hang about it. There was a time when the line of demarcation between the pirate and the peaceful mariner was not very sharply drawn, and the late Prentice Mulford, who grew up in a seafaring town and had even served on shipboard before the mast, once wrote an article maintaining that the relations which still prevail between the master and the crew of a ship are a relic of the days when all seafaring men were practically pirates. Possibly a juster explanation of the harsh treatment to which sailors are subjected would be found in the arbitrary authority which law and custom necessarily bestow upon a shipmaster, for it is almost an axiom that unrestricted power always leads to tyranny—that nothing but lack of authority prevents every man from misusing it. At all events, the reader of a sea novel expects to meet with various sorts of mysteriously dark deeds, while the reader of the marine columns of a newspaper is regaled with plenty of actual crime, albeit of a generally commonplace and uninteresting character.

The story of the American barkentine Herbert Fuller, which the newspapers have been recently telling, however, is as tragically startling as any ever related by Stevenson or Russell. The officers of a vessel have often enough been murdered by the crew, who then seized the vessel, and it has sometimes happened that some officer has joined the crew in mutiny against the captain, as in the case of the Bounty. What adds especially to the sensational features of the crime on board the Herbert Fuller is that it does not seem to be known positively who killed the captain, his wife and the second mate. The evidence against the first mate appears to rest on his supposed unwillingness to make port after the discovery of the murders. He is even suspected of having intended to turn the vessel over to the Cuban insurgents. What must have been the astonishment of the pilot on going on board to find the vessel in charge of the colored steward and a Harvard sophomore passenger, the mate in irons, and the bodies of the three murdered persons towing astern in the small boat! That last touch is characteristic. The survivors did not dare throw the bodies overboard because they were needed as evidence to protect themselves as well as to convict the guilty; their superstitious notions were appalled at the notion of keeping the bodies on board the vessel; so they compromised by towing them astern.

Undoubtedly the Herbert Fuller tragedy will form the plot of many a future sea novel. But no romancer could have afforded to invent so extraordinary a tale. He would have been laughed at on account of the inherent improbability of his incidents. The murders might have passed muster, but the Harvard student and the colored steward in their extraordinary role would have been pronounced simply impossible.—Buffalo Courier.

Summer Salads.
Japanese fish salad is inexpensive and particularly good. To make it, mix two cupfuls of cold boiled fish, shredded, with one cupful of cucumber pickles cut into slices. Add well made French dressing and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.
Jardiniere Salad.—Take equal quantities of cold cooked potatoes, turnips, string beans, beets, celery and tomatoes. Put in a salad bowl and add chopped pickle, olives, capers, hard-boiled eggs and shredded lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise dressing.
Salad of Water Cress and Apples.—Use only the tender water cresses. Let them stand half an hour in cold water to become crisp. Then dry them thoroughly. Now mix with thin slices of sour apples and a chopped hard-boiled egg. Add a French dressing and serve.—N. Y. Journal.

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair.
Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed on exhibit at the world's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain a showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the world's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla was in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."
