THE GREATEST ISSUE.

Attorney-General Harmon speaks the words of truth and soberness when he criticises Mr. Bryan's implied promise that, if elected, he will do nothing to maintain the authority of the federal government until called upon so to do by the government of the state where the insurrection exists. We quote the Attorney-General's words:

"This is, in my judgment, a far more serious matter than the money question or any of the other questions now before the people, grave as they are. Our form of government may survive a wrong decision on those questions, and the people may endure for a time the evils which result from false systems of finance and taxation, but if the president has deliberately disregarded the instrument upon which the union is founded by supplanting the authority of a sovereign state by armed force, a precedent has been made which threatens our form of government, while if a candidate for president pledges himself in advance, as Mr. Bryan has done, to do nothing to protect the property, maintain the authority and enforce the laws of the United States, unless and until the officers of another government request or consent, then we really have no federal government; for a government which is not entirely free to use force to protect and maintain itself in the discharge of its own proper functions is no government at all."

"It was under the power conferred by the section last named (Sec. 5298 R. S.) that the late rebellion was suppressed. Mr. Bryan's doctrine that this law is unconstitutional is more dangerous than that of secession. The latter, at least, left the government some power and authority in the territory which chose to remain. Mr. Bryan's would reduce it to the idle mimicry of the state. "It must be that Mr. Bryan, amid the many demands on his time and attention, has fallen into an inadvertence. I cannot believe that he really thinks the president has no power under the constitution and laws to maintain the government entrusted to his charge. Nor can I believe that Mr. Bryan means to promise or to make or permit others to think he has promised not to interfere if he should be elected, and the situation of the riots of 1894 should arise during his term. I will not lightly question either his knowledge as a lawyer of his sincerity as a public man. Certainly, his letter is generally misunderstood unless it means either that Mr. Bryan thinks the president has no power, or that he would himself not use it if elected."

The per capita consumption of wheat in the United States in 1890 was 6.09 bushels; the average for 1894-5 was 3.97 bushels. With the same per capita consumption in 1895 that we had in 1890 under a Republican administration, the quantity of wheat exported in 1895, 164,000,000 bushels, would have been consumed at home.

Is it well to entrust our government to the party who selected the rulers of the past four years? Is it well to believe the promises of those who four years ago promised prosperity to the producer and manufacturer? Is it well to place in the White House a man who advocated the last administration?

Mr. Bryan's campaign is based upon the proposition that the interests of the laboring man are adverse to those of the employer of labor. This is as absolutely false and pernicious as was his claim four years ago that the interests of the laborers of this country would be best subserved by free trade.

From now until election there should be frequent public discussions of the questions at issue in this campaign in every schoolhouse in the county. The campaign of public speaking is less active than it should be, and this is the formation period. What is the matter with our county committee and our McKinley club?

If employers of labor would go to the silver standard today and pay nothing but silver, as did the Carbon Hill Coal Company in Washington a few days ago, the free silver craze among the laborers would vanish as a silvery mist before the golden rays of the sun.

The following table, compiled from official statistics shows the difference to farmers of a protective and free trade policy:

	1888-92	1895.
Corn	39.8	26.4
Oats	35.2	19.9
Wheat	57.2	50.9
Rye	68.0	44.0
Potatoes	59.0	26.5
Hay	954.0	836.0
